BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF MEDALLISTS

Coin, Gem, and Seal Engravers, Ancient and Modern,
with References to their Works.

Most of the previous articles have been revised and republished in the "Biographical Dictionary of Medallists". The references to that work in these supplementary articles will be indicated by the letters "B.D.M." together with the number of the volume and its page.

GODET & SOHN, J. (Germ.). A firm of Jewellers at Berlin, who issued various Decorations, and also a medal on the Bicentenary of the Kingdom of Prussia, 1901. In 1905 they published a Marriage Medal of the Crown Prince, by Professor Geyer. By them are also: Silver Wedding of William II, 1906 (engraved by H. Weckwerth; signed: J. GODET BERLIN). — Prize medal of Ernst Günther, Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, undated; — 25th Anniversary of the Proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles, 1896 (engr. by Weckwerth), etc.

GODOIN, PIERRE (French), dit BARBASTRE. Mint-engraver at Poitiers, 1373-1375.

GÖBEL, CHRISTIAN (Germ.). Die-cutter of Nuremberg, in the service of Christopher von Leiningen, 1626-1628.

GÖDECKE, PAUL HEINRICH (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 286). The medal of Frederick Charles, Duke of Schleswig-Holstein-Plön, with R. FIDES. ET. CONSTANTIA. is signed on obv. P.H.G. (Lange, op. cit., II, 72); — Marriage of Duke Adolf Friedrich of Schleswig-Holstein-Gottorp, King of Sweden, with Princess Luise Ulrike of Prussia, 1744, etc.

GÖRLING, E. (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist. His signature occurs on a medal commemorating Kaiser William II's Reichstag Speech on 4. August 1914.

GÖSSER, W. (Austr.). Contemporary Medallist of Vienna, by whom is a realistic plaquette of 1909: Wien "Zum Ende".

GÖTTEN (GÖTTE, GOTHE, GOTTING), CHRISTIAN (Germ.). Mint-master at Stolberg 1566-87, Eisleben, 1577-82, and Ellrich, 1578-79.

GÖTTEN, HANS (Germ.). Mint-master at Eisleben 1582.

GÖTZ, JOHANNES (Vol. II, p. 286). This Sculptor residing at Berlin exhibited a Portrait plaquette at the Berlin Kunst-Ausstellung, 1907.

GÖTZ, KARL (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 286). Medal-engraver and caster, of Munich. Among his pre-war productions I have noted the following: Memorial medal of Count Helmuth von Moltke, 1890 (2 var.); — Darwin centenary, 1907; — (illustrated); — The Iron Chancellor, Prince Bismarck; — Wilhelm Bush, painter and kenthal, 1905; — 28th Anniversary of the Reign of William II., 1913 (illustrated); — Passion Play at Oberammergau, 1910; — Halley's Comet, 1910; — Dr Ehrlich, Portrait-medallion, uniface; 135 × 180 mill.; — The same, but as a medal, with R. Aesculapius; — Medals and Plaquettes commemorating the 90th Birthday of Prince Regent Luitpold of Bavaria 1911; — 40th Anniversary of the Peace of Francfort, 1911; — Visit of Count Zeppelin to Vienna, 1913; — Major August von Parseval, 1909; — Birthday Medals of Johanna, 1910, and Bertrand von Wien, 1912; — Landing of Zeppelin XVI at Lunéville, 1913 (illustrated), etc.

Landing of a Zeppelin at Lunéville, 1913.

Götz has gained notoriety by his satirical medals issued during the war. He is, says Mr. Hill, one of the more competent craftsmen among German war medallists, as is shown by his modelling in the medals of the Crown Prince, or by his design for the reverse of the medal of Mackensen. He has two styles. One of them, exemplified in the pieces just mentioned, is intended to appeal to those who are familiar with the works of the Renaissance. His medal of Admiral von Tirpitz, whether consciously or not, is artistically a lineal descendant of Joachim Deschler's medal of Hieronymus Baumgartner, a Nuremberg churchwarden of the sixteenth century — which is itself one of the richest instances of unconscious humour in the whole world of art. Götz's other style is exemplified in the Lusitania medal; it corresponds to the satirical print, and makes no attempt at composition, but simply crowds into the space available all the details that it is thought will amuse the populace.

On the obverse the Lusitania, loaded with munitions and aeroplanes, and furnished with a ram like a battleship, sinking in the Atlantic. Above are the words: "No Contraband!" and below: "The liner Lusitania sunk by a German submarine, 5th. May, 1915."

On the reverse, Death at the office of the Cunard Line selling tickets to a crowd of passengers; one of them is holding a newspaper with the words: "Submarine Danger!" but they refuse to listen to the warning of a German in a top hat. Above are the words: "Business first."

Götz's medal of the Crown Prince, Mr. Hill criticises in the following terms:

"The portrait of the Crown Prince on a large medal by Götz is said to be a good likeness; but, if that is so, the caricaturist's occupation is surely gone. The Italian medallists of the Renaissance, whom some of the German school have studied with considerable care, were ruthless in their exposure of the vicious qualities of some of their sitters; but they never failed to render at the same time that touch of distinction, of nobility, which is characteristic of the gentlemen of the Italian Renaissance. But we must doubtless make allowance for the difference of race. This medal of the Crown Prince has on its reverse a figure of the young hero Siegfried attacking with his broadsword the four-headed dragon which symbolises the Triple Entente united with Belgium. Nothing but a failure of the authorities to see the significance of the contrast between the relentless portrait on the obverse and the Wagnerian hero on the reverse can account for the omission to prosecute the artist for lèse-majesté; the more so as the dragon, in spite of the hero's theatrical efforts, is still intact in all her features."

To these medals we must add among Götz's most noteworthy productions: Mobilisation of the German army, August 1914; Æ 84 mill.; — Alliance of Austria and Germany, 1914; Æ 83 mill.;

GRANDJEAN-PERRENOUD, HENRI (Swiss). Contemporary Engraver, born on 28. April 1821 at Le Locle in the Neuchâtel Jura, died at Oakland, State of California, U. S. A., on 28. August 1887. His father was a native of La Sagne and Les Ponts. After frequenting the schools of Neuchâtel, where his parents had transferred their domicile, he served his apprenticeship as Engraver with the firm of

E. Humbert and Rey in La Chaux-de-Fonds, and left on 16. November 1839 with an excellent certificate. For some years he worked for the Brothers Klentschi in La Chaux-de-Fonds, and later started on his own account as an Engraver and Chaser, his workshop rapidly acquiring recognition.

He married in 1844 Reine-Méline Perrenoud of Le Locle, by whom he had ten children, all born in La Chaux-de-Fonds, four daughters and six sons. His wife died on 31. December 1896 at Brugg in Aargau; one daughter and three sons are still living, two of whom made brilliant careers in the United States of North America.

The participation of Henri Grandjean-Perrenoud in universal and international exhibitions made his name famous; he obtained a Bronze medal in London, 1851, New York, 1853, Paris, 1855, a Silver medal in Paris, 1867. His reproduction, on a Plaque in gold, of Leopold Robert's "les Moissonneurs", for the London Exhibition, 1851, is a master-piece.

In 1864 he became one of the principal founders and the first president of the "Société des amis des Arts" of La Chaux-de-Fonds, which preserves of him a very fine bust, life-like, signed Custor, 1872. It is the work of Custor fils, who made it at Neuchâtel; the family has recently presented it to the above named Society.

A Neuchâtel patriot of 1848 and 1856, member of the local authorities of La Chaux-de-Fonds, Municipal Council 1855, and General Council 1868-1875, he has left the reputation of a good citizen. In 1877 he left for Geneva, and in 1882 for San Francisco, with his daughter Pauline (the late wife of Mr. Hermann Hofer, a partner of the firm of Hofer & Co. of Zurich). His wife and several of his children joined him there not long after.

The National Suisse of La Chaux-de-Fonds devoted to his memory on 28. September 1887 an eulogistic obituary notice.

Henry Grandjean-Perrenoud was very clever as a Decorator. A fine Plaque by him represents a Forest scenery at hunting time. Numa Droz, who twice filled the high office of President of the Swiss Confederation, was first apprenticed to him as an engraver.

BRITISH IMPERIAL BRONZE COINAGE, 1860-1918.

PART V.

VICTORIA I. 1837-1901.

1. — FARTHING, 1860.

O. — Legend: — VICTORIA D : G : BRITT : REG : F : D :
The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the head of the monarch. Truncated bust of the Queen in profile and looking to the left. Her Majesty is wearing a wreath of laurel partly hidden by the thick wavy hair which is parted on the forehead, carried over the ear, and collected into a plaited knot behind the head. The hair at the nape of the neck is long, fine, and wavy. The wreath of fourteen leaves and three berries has its ends united at the rear of the head by ribbon, which is tied into a bow, the hanging parts being plain and flowing, and one of them touching the neck. The veins in the laurel leaves are single lines in relief. From the top of the head the laurel leaves are arranged in the following order: — 3 + 3 + 2 + 4 + 2, and the berries as follows: — 2 + 1. The Queen wears a bodice with folds, with a barbed and seeded rose, as a brooch, in front. On the bodice a mantle, with a groundwork of lines, and embroidered with roses, thistles, and shamrocks, united and a portion of The Star of the Most Noble Order of The Garter, in relief, within part of The Garter, which is inscribed: — HONI S, incuse. Part of the base of the bust is in contact with the beaded circle. The whole within a plain circle, broken at the base of the bust, and encompassed by a beaded circle, which is encircled by a plain rim.

R. — Legend: — FARTHING. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet, and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes, and she is draped in a long flowing robe, with scale armour, ornamented with four scrolls, on the breast, two on the left and two on the right, all turning outwards. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a flat oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb nearly touching the fimbriation of the cross of Saint George in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George, and the saltire of Saint Patrick, united, but not heraldically coloured. The fimbriation of the crosses is depicted by double lines, incuse. Her left arm entwines an ornamented trident which she holds with her hand. On her right foot, a sandal. In front of the figure, a three-masted battleship, fully rigged, and behind, a lighthouse, built on a rock above the sea. There are rocks, but no sea on the left of the lighthouse. The rock on which Britannia is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1860, the first numeral touching the plain circle. The whole within a plain circle, encompassed by a beaded circle, which is encircled by a plain rim.

O. — Legend: — VICTORIA D: G: BRITT: REG: F: D: The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the head of the monarch. Truncated bust of the Queen in profile and looking to the left. The portrait of Her Majesty is more matronly. The nose is more aquiline. She is wearing a wreath of laurel, partly hidden by the thin wavy hair, which is parted on the forehead, carried over the ear, and collected into a plaited knot behind the head. The hair at the nape of the neck is short, coarse, and wavy. The laurel wreath of fourteen leaves and four berries has its ends united at the rear of the head by ribbon, which is tied into a bow, the hanging parts being crimped and flowing, and one of them touching the neck. The veins in the laurel leaves are single lines in relief. From the top of the head the laurel leaves are arranged in the following order: — $3 + 3 + 2 + 4 + 2$, and the berries as follows: — $2 + 2$. The Queen wears a bodice with folds, and with part of a barbed and seeded rose, as a brooch, in front. On the bodice, a mantle, with a groundwork of lines, and embroidered with roses, thistles, and shamrocks, united, and a portion of The Star of the Most Noble Order of The Garter, within part of The Garter, which is inscribed: — HONI S, incuse. The mantle is smaller than that on earlier issues, and has less embroidery on it. The base of the bust is in contact with the plain circle. The whole within a plain circle encircled by an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — FARTHING. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet, and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. HENRY GARSIDE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

40 Egerton Gardens,

London. S.W. 3.

Dear Sir,

A very rare British Chronicle (although the translation is quite late — 1811) has the following title : "The Chronicle of the Kings of Britain translated from the Welsh copy attributed to TYSILIO; collated with several other copies, and illustrated with copious notes. . . . By the Rev. Peter Roberts A.M. . . . London . . . 1811."

In Nov. (7th) 1917, Mr. W.M. Flinders Petrie F.R.S. read a paper before the British Academy, entitled Neglected British History, in which he calls specific attention to Tysilio's Chronicle, and states that it is not mentioned by the Ency. Brit., S.R. Gardiner, C.I. Elton, J.R. Green, and many other writers, and that Dr. Hodgkin when discussing Geoffrey of Monmouth (who copied from Tysilio, and also the Breton "Brut" from which Tysilio originates), ignores Tysilio; and also that he is ignored in recent studies by Baldwin Brown, Munro Chadwick, T.W. Shore, J.W. Jendwine, E.M. Clure and Henry Sharpe. Also that both Thomas Wright and Ernest Rhys when dealing with Arthurian writings, refer back to Geoffrey without a hint that his source is Tysilio; and that a recent study by Prof. Lewis Jones, on the earliest Arthurian records, spends pages on the Chronicle of Nennius, never mentions Tysilio, although there is scarcely anything about Arthur in Geoffrey that is not taken from Tysilio.

I mention all this to bring to your attention the importance of Mr. Roberts' translation.

In that part of Tysilio which refers to Bladud, the usual legend is told of his founding of Bath (Caervaddon) and his studies of magic : "He was the first who introduced the magic art into Britain, nor did he cease in such studies until essaying to fly with a pair of wings, which he had invented, he fell down on a temple of Apollo in London, and was dashed to pieces."

Mr. Roberts in a footnote calls attention to the remarkable tenacity with which tales of wonder of this kind, and the names connected with them, are traditionally retained, and then says :

"But there is also another authority for the truth of the history, which has been noticed by Mr. Vaughan, of Hengwrt, in his essay on Welsh Triads. This is a coin, from which an engraving is given by Camden (Britannia) Tab. 1. fig. 12. (I attach photograph from the plate in the 1607 edition.)

On the obverse is a head, the figure is continued to the shoulders, and on these are wings. The legend on this side is VLATOS.

On the reverse is the figure somewhat like an unicorn, and the legend ATEVLA. [This is an error, as will be seen in the photograph. ATEVLA is on the obverse, and VLATOS on the reverse.]

That the head and the legend around it, relate to Bladud, I agree with Mr. Vaughan. The inscription on the reverse he considers as intended for Addola, or as it would in old writings appear Adola. But in this I think he is mistaken, and am of the opinion it is meant for Addef-lla, literally a gift of promise, which would have been written formerly Adefla or Aterla, and that it is an ex voto, a coin or medal, stamped so in grateful commemoration of some signal benefit received by the use of the waters, and probably by a Roman."

This coin appears in Stevenson's Dictionary under the name of Vlatos. . . . and it is attributed to the tribe of Senones (Akerman, Anc. Coins of Cities and Princes, p. 162).

This leads up to the question : Why may not the old attribution of Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Roberts, be the correct one?

Very truly yours

H.C. LEVIS.

OBITUARY

SIR HERMANN WEBER, M.D., F.R.C.P.

We regret to announce that Sir Hermann Weber, M.D., F.R.C.P., the distinguished physician, died on Monday at 10, Grosvenor-street, in his 95th year. Throughout the war his sympathies were cordially and wholly on the side of his adopted country, where he had worked for 75 years, and his one wish was to live to see the final victory which he expected. His last walk he took late last Sunday to buy an evening paper. His younger son, Lieutenant-Colonel Weber, D.S.O., R.F.A., and all his grandsons, five in number, have fought nearly throughout the whole war, and one of his grandsons lost his life at Ypres in 1914.

Hermann Weber was born on December 30, 1823, of a German father and an Italian mother (her maiden name was Ruperti). His first years were spent on the farms successively held by his father in Bavaria and Hesse-Cassel, and his love for open-air life and for animals and flowers dates from these early days. His medical studies, begun at Marburg, were continued at Bonn, where he took the M.D. degree in 1848, and began to practise as a physician. At an early age he was so much impressed with the translations of Shakespeare's plays that he determined to read the original text, and this led to an energetic study of the English language. This knowledge brought him into professional contact with a number of English residents or visitors at Bonn. Among them the most eminent was probably Sir James Simpson, who had discovered in 1847 the use of chloroform as an anæsthetic. Weber had already, in his student days at Marburg, made Carlyle's acquaintance, and always spoke with enthusiasm of the walks and talks he had with him. In these circumstances Weber was naturally attracted to England, and accepted the post of house physician at the German Hospital, Dalston. His original intention was to return to Germany after a few years' residence, but the many friends he made ultimately decided him to settle here. Having completed his appointment as house physician, he soon obtained a fair private practice, and his marriage, in 1854, with an English wife was the final step. In order to obtain an English qualification he became a student at Guy's; in 1855 he became a Member, and in 1859 a Fellow of the College of Physicians. His practice, which was at first mainly among patients of foreign origin, rapidly penetrated into English circles. He was one of the pioneers of the open-air treatment of consumption. His patients—much to the surprise of the general public and not without protest on the part of more old-fashioned practitioners—were sent in winter to the high valleys of the Engadine, and returned with new leases of life and with joyful remembrances of the snow and ice under the blue sky and sunshine. Weber himself, in the interests of his patients, devoted his yearly holiday to extended travels in the Swiss, Tirolese, and Italian Alps, and was soon infected by the passion for climbing. He became an enthusiastic member of the Alpine Club, and a friend of Leslie Stephen, Clinton Dent, and other distinguished members of that select body. He travelled a good deal with pioneer guides, such as Peter Michel and Hans Grass, and took them out of their own district to localities unknown to them. Very early ascents of the Gross Viescherhorn, Aletschhorn, and Gabelhorn fell to his share, but he did not confine himself to any particular district, and knew the Alps thoroughly from end to end. In his 68th year he climbed the Wetterhorn and Jungfrau. When 73 he and Hans Grass, who had then given up his profession, still went out together, and among other expeditions crossed the Capuchin from Pontresina to Sils. In his 80th year he crossed the Diarolezza several times. Great is the number of his patients and friends who owed not only enjoyment, but health and strength, to his enthusiasm for glacier air.

Comparatively late in life Weber came under the fascination of a new hobby. He began to collect Greek coins, more particularly those of the outlying colonies, and with a special predilection for specimens embodying reference to the healing art. His collection in that respect, acquired a high reputation among numismatists, and he was frequently consulted by the experts of the British Museum and other eminent collectors. One of these was Waddington, successively French Prime Minister and French ambassador in London. Visits to Greece, Asia Minor, Sicily, Tunis, Egypt, and Palestine enriched Weber's collection, and helped to gather information for the use of patients whose winters had to be spent in warmer climates.

In the meantime, the practice of his profession brought Weber into intimate association with many prominent men and women. Lord Derby, Lord Russell, Lord Salisbury, Lord Rosebery, and Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman were among his patients, as well as many foreign diplomatists. He was also frequently consulted as to the choice of health resorts for members of the Royal Family. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, appointed him a delegate to the Berlin Congress on the Prevention of Tuberculosis in 1899. He was on terms of intimacy with Lord Lister, Sir William Jenner, Sir James Paget, Sir William Gull, Sir Henry Thompson, Sir Spencer Wells, and many others of equal eminence in his own profession, and several of them sought his advice on their own health.

Weber retired from practice at the age of 80, but continued to take a keen interest in medical science and hygiene. His book on longevity and a number of contributions to medical periodicals were written after his retirement. He also continued to take as much exercise in the open air as his strength would allow. In his 95th year he was still able to cover 50 miles on an average in a week, without regard to weather. Though an energetic advocate of moderation in food and drink, Weber was not an ascetic either in theory or practice, and he was very proud of his cellar, more especially of his old port. Many honours were bestowed upon him. He was knighted in 1899; he was on the Council of the College of Physicians, and acted as censor for several years. He was honorary consulting physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption at Ventnor, to the North London Consumption Hospital, and to the German Hospital, and a member of the consulting committee of the King Edward VII. Sanatorium. He was also honorary or corresponding member of a large number of learned societies in Great Britain and in foreign countries.

His published works include "Climatotherapy and Balneotherapy" (the later editions being the joint work of himself and of his son, Dr. F. Parkes Weber); "Notes on Climbing the Swiss Alps" (1864), and third edition, 1907; "Means for the Prolongation of Life" (3rd edition, 1908); "Treatment of Phthisis by residence in Elevated Regions" (M.C. Trans., Vol. III.); and "Hygienic and Climatic Treatment of Phthisis" (Croonian Lecture, 1885).

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

June 26th, 1918. Lieut.-Colonel H.W. Morrieson, R.A., F.S.A., President, in the Chair. Mr. Egbert Steinthal was elected a member of the Society. Mr. H. Hawkins was proposed and duly seconded for election as a member. A vote of thanks to the donors of the presentations enumerated below was carried unanimously.

Presentations.

"Provincial Token Coinage" (part xiv), by R. Dalton and S. H. Hamer.

"The Medals of British Freemasonry," by W. J. Songhurst.

Exhibitions.

By Mr. F. A. Walters : A penny of Henry VIII's second coinage (sovereign type), of the Canterbury Mint; obverse, mint-mark a catherine wheel $h^*D^*G^*ROSA^*SI^*E^SPIA^$; reverse, $\ddagger CIVI-TAS^QVINTOR^$, TD at sides of shield.

By Mr. E. H. Wheeler : (1) a penny of Henry VIII's second issue, which had been fraudulently altered to resemble a penny of Edward VI's sovereign type issue, and which had passed undetected through the Murchison, Addington, Montagu and Murdoch collections (see Murdoch Sale Catalogue Pl. VIII, No. 527). (2) A genuine sovereign type penny of Edward VI, of which only two other specimens have been recorded up to the present. (3) A sovereign type penny of Henry VIII, to illustrate the methods employed by the forger.

Paper.

Mr. H. A. Parsons, in a paper on the coinage of Harold I, contended that, notwithstanding the presence of Harold's name on the coins, certain types, hitherto attributed to this king, were issued at the Danish mint of Lund, and not, as had hitherto been supposed, at London. Harold, he affirmed, was not the only Anglo-Saxon king, lacking any jurisdiction abroad, whose name was to be found on coins of foreign type, and he supported his contention by arguments based on the designs of the pennies in question, the moneyers' names occurring on them, and the known provenance of many specimens. Eliminating mules and engravers' errors, which had been accepted as distinct types, the lecturer pointed out that the true types of the reign must be reduced to two, with one variety in the first issue and two distinct variations in the second. This reduction of the number of types was in keeping with the short duration of the reign, which did not exceed four or five years, and it might be suggested, on historical grounds, that their issue should be attributed to 1036-7 and 1037 or 1038 to 1040, respectively. Mr. Parsons illustrated his points by originals or casts of practically all the known types and important variations of the coins of Harold I, and by others of Danish or Hiberno-Danish issues, generally recognised as such, which threw light on the question of the doubtful types bearing the name of Harold.

October 23rd, 1918. Lieut.-Colonel H.W. Morrieson R.A., F.S.A., President, in the Chair. Mr. H. Hawkins was elected a member of the Society. The following gentlemen were proposed as members and duly seconded : Walter Lennox Craig, B.C.E. (Melb.), Assoc. M. Inst. C.E.; W. Batty Mapplebeck, R. Prasada, A.C.I.; Philip Thorburn, and William Greenell Wallace.

Major Carlyon-Britton announced that Mr. J. Sanford Saltus had forwarded to him a sum of $500 to be presented to the Society, and handed a cheque to the President, who, in acknowledging the gift, paid a high tribute to the generosity of the donor. A vote of hearty thanks to Mr. Sanford Saltus was carried by acclamation.

The President read the list of those proposed as officers and members of the Council for the coming year and gave notice that the ballot would take place at the ensuing meeting.

Mssrs. Beresford Smith and Edward Shepherd were appointed auditors of the Society's accounts for the year now coming to a close.

Presentations.

The following presentations were announced and a vote of thanks to the donors was passed :

"Sterling Decimal Coinage," by W. L. Craig, presented by the author.

 "Schulman's Catalogue," No. LXXI.

Exhibitions.

In illustration of the paper read :—

By Mr. L. A. Lawrence : a half noble of the second issue of Edward III, and a quarter noble of the same issue.

By Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson : a Reading penny and three pennies of the episcopal mint of Durham, 1344-51.

By Mr. Shirley-Fox and Mr. Fox : a quarter noble of the second issue of Edward III, a series of pennies of the London mint, a penny of Canterbury, several of Durham, episcopal and "sede vacante", and a penny of the archiepiscopal mint of York, all of the period 1344-51.

Other exhibits :—

By Mr. William Dale : a penny of Æthelred II, with the type of the dextera Dei; also a much clipped and worn penny of Edward I, found at Southampton.

By Mr. E. H. Wheeler : a penny of the Berwick mint, of one of the Edwards, with, on the reverse, a bear's head in one quarter, and reading VIL | LXX B | ERW | ICI.

By Mr. F. A. Walters : a penny of Henry II, of the "Tealby" issue, with a portrait of the King differing much from the usual types; the mint name on the coin is not legible, but the fabric suggests Carlisle or Newcastle.

By Mr. H. Garside : a copper-nickel two anna piece or British India, dated 1918, of a new issue, on a square flan with rounded corners.

Eighty-eight casts of the great seals of England, which have been acquired by the Society.

Paper.

Continuing "the Numismatic History of the Reigns of Edward I, II and III," by himself and his brother, Mr. Shirley-Fox, Mr. Earle Fox dealt with the coinage issued between January, 1344, and June, 1351, a period of transition during which experiments were made, none too successfully, for the establishment of a gold coinage. The florin, the first heavy noble and the second noble were described in detail and some account was given of the indentures under which they were struck and of the reasons why they proved unsatisfactory. Turning to the silver, it was shown that the pennies issued during the period in question consisted of (a) the so-called "Florin" type; (b) a type with peculiar narrow lettering, on which the royal title, for the first time since 1279, is given in full as REX. It was shown that the florin type could be divided into half-a-dozen classes, five of which were peculiar to the royal mints, while the sixth was also issued by the Abbot of Reading and the Archbishop of York, as well as by the King's Receiver at Durham during the vacancy of the see which followed the death of Bishop de Bury. Several episcopal issues of Durham were described, but the chronological arrangement of these is very difficult and, although the position of certain varieties is beyond question, the definite arrangement of the whole series must await the discovery of further information. One point which may eventually lead to its elucidation is the substitution of VILLA for QVINTVS, as the title of the city, on two sub-types, apparently issued in the early years of Bishop Hatfield, but so far all efforts to obtain an explanation of this change have been unsuccessful.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held in the Museum, Selby, on Saturday, July 27/1918 at 2-45 p.m. The President (Mr. G. L. Shackles, F.R.N.S.) occupied the chair.

Mr. W. Middleton Stewart sent for exhibition his fine collection of Aberdeen city and county Church Communion Tokens. A paper on the "General History of Church Communion Tokens" by Mr. W. M. Stewart and Mr. J. Digby Firth was read by the latter. Communion tokens are still used in some of the remoter districts in Scotland and until comparatively recent times were in use in most of the Presbyterian Churches in Scotland and elsewhere. The minister had charge of the tokens and issued them prior to the Communion Sunday to those deemed worthy of partaking of the Sacrament. They were a means of fencing the table (or keeping out those, who by eating and drinking unworthily, might eat and drink damnation to themselves, as the phrase went).

The tokens were collected before the communion service. The people regarded the token with reverence as it was church property, and the minister was responsible for their safe keeping. Some few years ago the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland passed a resolution forbidding the distribution of tokens to collectors. The tokens varied very considerably in size and shape but most were round, square, oblong or oval. They were struck or cast in pewter, lead, brass, copper &c. and were inscribed with the name of the parish or church. Most varieties are known of the established church of Scotland and next in abundance are those of the United Presbyterian Church. Very frequently the tokens bore a text such as, "This do in remembrance of Me", "Let a man examine himself", &c., &c. Many of the tokens are dated but very few are known to exist bearing dates earlier than 1700. Information was given with reference to Yorkshire and other north country examples of these interesting pieces and particulars as to the approximate number known to have been issued by the various offshoots of the parent church. Messrs. Stewart and Firth were thanked for their contribution on the motion of the President seconded by Mr. T. Pickersgill.

Mr. J. F. Musham, F.E.S., read an interesting paper on, "Coins as Media for Workmen's Marks".

Mr. Musham brought forward ample evidence to show that it had long been the practice of carpenters to make use of coins as distinctive marks on the completion of a piece of work. In demolition and repair of old buildings coins have frequently been found nailed to the roof principals or floor joists through a hole in the centre of the coin or secured by clout nails round the margins. Usually a worn coin was used on which was engraved the name or initials of workman or workmen and in some cases the date was added; in others the coin only served to give the date of the completion of the work while the names of the craftsmen were carved on the adjacent timber. Mr. Musham's paper was illustrated by 26 actual specimens salvaged from old buildings and also with drawings showing the coins in situ. Mr. Musham was thanked for his paper on the motion of Mr. T. Sheppard seconded by Mr. W. Sykes.

Exhibits : The President exhibited a seal of the Aletheia Chapter n° 183 of Great Grimsby which was constituted in 1813 but is now extinct. Also two copies of French Masonic Seals—Arras 1687 and "La Videt".

Mr. J. F. Musham showed the matrix of an unidentified seal of the 17th Century with figure of ruined abbey.

Mr. T. Sheppard, M.Sc., F.S.A. (Scot.) showed a number of pence and halfpence of Victoria, William IV and George IV. Also a lead Bulla of Innocent III which had been washed out of the cliffs at Bridlington.

Mr. E. Croft showed Chinese Knife money and a Halfpenny 17th Century token of James Metcalfe of Bedale in Yorkshire.

Mr. Wm Sykes showed a series of Roman Catholic medals dating from the 17th Century onward; also three medals relating to Stage Coaches &c. struck by Thomasson together with a number of coins of Portugal and Portuguese Colonies.

Mr. T. Pickersgill showed Till's work on English Coins being a presentation copy to the late W. Boyne, Esq. of Leeds — also a copy of Birchall's Token Coinage. Also a long series of Roman 2nd Brass Coins from Julius Caesar to Julian the Apostate including some interesting historic types.

Mr. W. J. Davis, J.P. sent for exhibition an unpublished farthing token in silver of the Spence series.

Obv. The Royal Crown with ornament under.

Legend GOD SAVE THE KING.

Rev. Paine hanging on a gibbet.

Edge. Plain.

The Hon. Secy. showed paper money of necessity of the last Boer war including a Mafeking 2/= note and a note for £ 1 of the South African Republic. Also a large bronze medal by Ottley of the Yorkshire Industrial Exhibition at York 1866 which had formerly been presented to a Sheffield firm.

At the close of the meeting Mr Musham kindly entertained the members and was thanked for his hospitality, and the provision of a meeting room, on the motion of the President seconded by Mr Councillor Harrison.

J. D. F.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The June Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, School of Arts, Pitt Street, Sydney, on Wednesday, the 26th. of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the Chair.

After the formal business had been transacted the President called upon Mr. E. R. Moser who read an appreciative essay on the Emperor Marcus Aurelius, bringing the subject into touch with his audience by the exhibition of a fine contemporary portrait on a beautiful sestertius of the great emperor.

A short discussion followed, after which Mr. John Lane Mullins read a preliminary paper "On some South Australian Portrait Medals".

The medals treated of in the paper were the Adelaide University Award Medals consisting of :

I. The "Stow" Memorial Medal in gold awarded to Law Students. Die cut by Wyon of London. Founded 1883. Obv. Head of Mr. Justice Stow.

II. The "Tennyson" Medal. (Lord Tennyson, Donor) in Gold and Silver. Founded 1900. Awarded for English Literature. Obv. Head of Lord Tennyson (Poet Laureate, father of the Donor). Die cut and medal published by A. Wyon of London.

III. The "Tate" Memorial Medal (to Professor Ralph Tate) in bronze only. Designed and published by Stokes & Son, Melbourne. Obv. Bust of Professor Ralph Tate. Founded 1902 for "Original Work in Geology". Has been only awarded thrice in 18 years.

IV. The "Joseph Fisher" Medal of Commerce. Gold only. Designed and published by Wyon of London. Obv. Bust of the donor. Founded 1903, for the winner of the Diploma of the Faculty of Commerce.

V. The "Bagot" Memorial Medal (Mrs. John Bagot of Adelaide, Donor). In bronze only, founded in 1912 for first place student in first-class, B.Sc course, Elementary Botany. Designed and published by Stokes & Son, Melbourne. Obv. bust of John Bagot.

VI. The "Lister" Memorial Medal (To Lord Lister, Donor anonymous) in bronze. Founded in 1916 for the best original thesis on some clinical medical or clinical surgical subject by graduates in Medicine. Designed and published by Stokes & Son, Melbourne. Obv. Bust of Lord Lister.

VII. The "Gosse" Memorial Medal (To Dr. Charles Gosse). Founded by public subscription for the best examinee in Ophthalmology should a high enough standard be attained. Published and designed by Stokes & Son, Melbourne. Obv. Bust of Dr. Charles Gosse.

The above 7 medals in the gift of the University of Adelaide.

VIII. The "Wesley" Jubilee Medal issued in 1866 to commemorate the Jubilee of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in South Australia. Published by A. W. Dobbie, Adelaide. Bronze tin-washed.

IX. The following Medal was brought under the notice of Mr. Lane Mullins by Miss Sedley Towler the very able and courteous curator of the Adelaide Museum Numismatic Collection.

The "John McDonald Stuart" Medal, Gold. Obv. A bust of the explorer. Issued by "W. L".

The President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, then exhibited some 18th. Century English Tokens of special interest described in detail in Mr. W. Longman's "Tokens of the Eighteenth Century connected with Booksellers and Bookmakers" and from which very able and interesting monograph he made many quotations; the Doctor's object being to indicate the numerous and interesting fields of research open to Numismatic students in that fascinating branch of English Numismatics.

The exhibits again proved of more than ordinary interest.

For Mr. Moser's paper, besides the fine first brass he exhibited, Messrs. P. Larsen and Henry E. Parkes exhibited denarii and bronze of all denominations of the Emperors and Empresses, Hadrian, Sabina, Antoninus Pius, Faustina senr., Marcus Aurelius, Faustina junr., Lucius Verus, Lucilla and Commodus, all being intimately known to Marcus Aurelius. Of special interest from the last-named collection were two second brass of Marcus Aurelius. A dupondius with reverse a trophy of arms and two captive Germans with the legend beneath DE GERMAN, and an As, with reverse Rome seated and holding a figure, Victory.

For Mr. Lane Mullins' Paper very fine photographs of the medals treated of (from casts supplied by the Adelaide Museum) were shewn.

Of the Special exhibits the following are of outstanding interest.

The August Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, School of Arts, Pitt Street, Sydney, on Wednesday, the 28th. of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott being in the Chair. After the formal business had been transacted the following gentlemen were elected as members :—

Mr. Aubrey Halloran, LL.B., Solicitor, of Sydney. Mr. Harry Austin, Controlling Appraiser for N.S.W., of Sydney.

The proceedings commenced by the President calling on Mr. Henry E. Parkes to read his paper entitled "The early bronze Coinage of Rome and its historical associations."

This, which was another of the series of papers on the Numismatics and the historical associations of the Coins of Rome, in the introduction dealt with the most recent results of research particularly those of Dr. Haeberlin.

The period from c. B.C. 335-268 during which the coins were issued is one of the most notable in the long and varied history of Rome. The times were illustrated by striking and characteristic incidents told in the words of the old Roman historians themselves, and embodying the results of modern travel and research especially the part played by Etruria in the dissemination of a civilization which has largely moulded our own. The characters of some of the great Romans whose actions to a great extent shaped the history of the time were also sketched.

After this paper which although somewhat long was very well received, the President, Dr. Abbott, gave an address on "Some interesting Coins of Sicily" the keynote of which was the art exhibited on the very beautiful series of coins struck by Hieron of Syracuse and particularly those struck in commemoration of his lovely consort, Philistis, said to be the most beautiful woman of her time and as good as she was beautiful, which one can very well believe when looking at her portrait on the Coins.

The exhibition of Coins at this Meeting proved of more than ordinary interest and beauty consisting of the very fine series of Syracusan coins shown by Dr. Abbott in illustration of his address, and the exceedingly interesting early bronze coins of Rome to illustrate the paper by Mr. Parkes and which comprised a complete series of the heavy bronze Roman Aes grave (viz:— the As, Semis, Triens, Quadrans, Sextans, and Uncia) from the cabinet of Mr. A.B. Triggs, of Yass, who came to Sydney especially for this Meeting, together with contemporary Aes grave of Sutrium and Luceria from the author's collection. Mr. Herbert Priestley also exhibited a small but very curious collection of bizarre Coins consisting of such curious currencies as the porcelain Coins of Korea, the early money of China, the silver bullet money of Siam, the strange native money of the South Sea islands, etc.

The special exhibits which also showed no falling off in interest were as follows:—

By Dr. G.H. Abbott.

I. A Tasmanian note for Threepence, issued by Thomas Stace type as No 3, p. 44. Hyman's Coins and Currency but dated 16th. May 1826 and numbered D. 280 in which he promises to pay the bearer threepence in Spanish dollars at 5/- each, a financial feat worthy of Mr. Pierpont Morgan.

II. A Mexican silver dollar salvaged from the "Emden" accompanied by guarantee. These pieces are sold at £ 1 each, the proceeds to go to the fund for the relief of distressed families of naval men. The guarantee appended would have been much more satisfactory had the coins been impressed with a countermark such as an S within a wreath.

By Dr. John Marden.

I. A very fine American gold Double Eagle or 20 dollar piece in Mint Condition dated 1910. Type. Scott, p. 16. Obv. Liberty advancing, behind her the Sun's Rays. R. Eagle flying, below the rising sun.

II. The new honour medallion of the Presbyterian Ladies College (of which he is Principal) in gold, uniface (2 only struck). One of the very finest specimens of medallion art. Designed and struck in Sydney. Issued to the recipients in bronze for Conduct, Lessons and Play. Non-competitive, but under stringent rules, only 5 % of the pupils being able to earn the distinction. Obv. Copy of a Nike (Victory) bust in the British Museum, bears the letters P.L.C. & C.L.P. and the date of issue 1916. Instituted 1916, J.A. Bennett, Wahroonga, N.S.W. Artist. Dies cut by Maunsell, of Bondi, near Sydney N.S.W.

By M. W.J. McNiell. A very fine tetradrachm and drachm of Alexander the Great. Type Ward 389.

By Mr. P. Larsen. A very fine obsidional shilling of Newark. Type Grueber 668, and a Nizam presentation rupee.

By Mr. Henry E. Parkes. Commemorative Medal of the opening of the Soldiers' Institute, Canterbury, England. Brass, Diam. : 32 mm. Weight : 8.95 grammes. Obv. Royal Arms and supporters round which SOLDIERS' INSTITUTE. CANTERBURY. R. OPENED (Curved) / NOV^R 5th / * 1858 * (Curved).

As the subject of the reverse resembles so very closely that of the coins of Perseus, King of Macedon, it is very possible that it refers to Q. Cassius Longinus, the consul of B.C. 164, who as praetor urbanus in B.C. 167 conducted that conquered monarch to Alba. The lituus and capis may suggest that he held also the office of augur B.M.C., 1, 481.

- 68353 — Æ. Obv. Head of Libertas to r.; hair collected into a knot, which is decorated with jewels, and falling down her neck; others in hair above forehead; she wears earring of single drop in shape of cross, and necklace of pendants. Behind, LIBERT; before, Q. CASSIVS. Ρ. The Temple of Vesta, circular, surmounted by figure holding sceptre and patera, and flanked by antefixes; within the temple, curule chair; on l., urn with two handles; on r., tabella inscribed, AC (Absolvo : Condemno). B., 8. V. F. » 3 6
- This type of Vesta and her temple relates to the investigation held in B.C. 113, over which L. Cassius Longinus Ravilla presided, to inquire into certain cases of incest, because the pontiffs were thought to have improperly acquitted two of the Vestal virgins while they condemned one. Longinus condemned the three and several other persons. The curule chair within the temple represents the seat of the judge. On one side is seen the urn for receiving the votes, on the other the voting tablet used at the trial. The preceding type illustrates generally the efforts of the Cassia gens for the preservation of the public liberties. B.M.C., 1, 481, 2.
- 68354 L. Cassius Longinus (B.C. 54). Æ. Obv. The fine head on obv. is that of the moneyer's grandfather who was the first member of the family to obtain high office. During his tribuneship in B.C. 107 he introduced a lex tabellaria, which ordered that in courts of justice in cases of high treason votes should be given by means of tablets.

The lectisternium refers to the office of Epulo Jovis, which was held by the moneyer's father. The Epulones were first created in B.C. 196 to attend to the Epulum Jovis, and the banquets in honour of the other gods. The ceremony of the l. comprised a sumptuous banquet offered to the gods at which their statues were brought and placed upon couches.

Venus Verticordia, the goddess who "turns the hearts of men", to whom a temple was specially dedicated at Rome after the corruption of the vestal virgins, may not only be a punning allusion to the name of the Cordia gens, but may also refer to the Julia family which claimed its descent from Venus herself. The type was probably selected in honour of Julius Caesar. B. M. C., I, 523.

B. M. C. accepts Cavedoni's view identifying portrait as that of young African Hercules, which Faustus might have placed on his coins as a record of his father's campaign in Africa. The above type is in honour of Pompey, the moneyer's father-in-law. The head of Hercules recalls his watchword at Pharsalus, Hercules Invictus. The three lower wreaths around the globe refer to the three triumphal wreaths granted to him for his victories in three continents. In the aplustre and ear of corn a reference is seen to the appointment of Pompey in B.C. 57, as Praefectus Annonae. The jewelled wreath is the golden chaplet which he was authorized to wear at public functions and which was conferred upon him by the Roman people in B.C. 63. B. M. C., I, 489.

- *From the Marsham, and Carlyon Britton Collections. This prelate was a Mercian by birth, and came to Alfred's court at the invitation of the King, who made him Archbishop of Canterbury on the death of Aethelred. According to Florence of Worcester, he was "a learned and venerable man" and faithfully ruled the church. He is also said to have assisted in the compilation of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle.

ABP. BOURCHIER ¹⁴⁵⁴/₁₄₈₆ (temp. Edward IV.)

- 68957 Canterbury Half Groat, mm. Pall, EDWARD DI GRA REX ANGL & FR. Full faced bust with open crown within double tressure, quatrefoil of pellets each side of neck, and Abp. CARDINAL WOLSEY ¹⁵²²/₁₅₃₀ (temp. Henry VIII).

- 68969 "Sovereign" penny of Henry VIII, of the Durham mint, mm. trefoil, h. D. 6. ROSA SIA (sic) SPINA full faced figure of King seated on throne. R. QIVITAS DVRRAT. Armorial shield in centre of cross fourchée, with T—W at the sides, and Cardinal's Hat below. F. » 7 6
- *In 1514 Wolsey was advanced to the see of Lincoln, and the year following to the Archbishopric of York. Insatiable in the pursuit of emolument, he obtained the administration of the See of Bath and Wells, and the temporalities of the Abbey of St. Albans; soon after which, he enjoyed in succession, the rich bishoprics of Durham and Winchester.
- 68970 "Sovereign" penny of Henry VIII of the Durham mint, legends and type as before, but with mm. Crescent. V. F. » 10 »
- *These Wolsey pieces with the Cardinal's Hat are of especial interest, on account of their being the only English coins ever struck by authority of an Archbishop bearing this symbol of rank of the church of Rome, together with his initials and for this and other practices, Wolsey was impeached because "of his pompous and presumptuous mint, he hath enterprised to join and imprint the Cardinal's Hat under your arms in your coinage of Groats made at your city of York, which like deed hath not yet been seen to have been done by any subject within your Realm before this time". There are also Durham pennies of Wolsey (as above) with this badge of rank of the Romish Church.

BISHOP TONSTALL ¹⁵³⁰/₁₅₆₀ (temp. Henry VIII).

- 68971 "Sovereign" penny of Henry VIII of the Durham mint, legends and type as before, but with mm. Star, SINE SPIA, without Cardinal's Hat, and with Q—D at sides of arms (for Cuthbert Dunelmensis). F. » 5 »

- 68977 Penny. + SCEADMYNR. R. + OTIIBYINIOME. Similar type, but the A on obv. with out the central bar. V. F. » 10 »
- 68978 Penny. + SCEADMYND RE. A and three pellets within a beaded circle. R. + GRIM MONEFECIT. Cross as before within a beaded circle (B.M. Cat., 616). R. V. F. » 10 »
- *A very large number (about 1800) of these memorial coins were found at Cuernale, so they were probably struck within the first decade of the tenth century. They are all of one general type (with A for Anglia), with varying details, and taking into consideration the number found, they must have been the chief currency of East Anglia about this period.

Archbishops of York.

- *The consecration of this prelate according to Roger of Wendover, took place in 831 A.D., but this date appears to be unaccountable. His coins are generally not uncommon, a hoard of them having been found at Hexham, and York.

WULFHRE ⁸⁵⁵/₉₀₀ (temp. Osbercht).

- 68986 Styca A. + VVLFHER (retro). Small cross in centre. R. + EDELHELM (retro). Cross of five pellets in centre. R. F. » 1 » »
- 68987 Styca A. + VVLFHERE AREP. Small cross in centre of dotted circle. R. VVLFRE+D. Circle enclosing a pellet in centre. Unpublished type. E. R. V. F. » 3 5 »
- *This prelate abandoned his see on the invasion of the Great Army, and death of Osbercht, and Aella in 867 (so that probably none of his coins were struck after that date). He was expelled from Northumbria along with King Ecgbercht in 872, and restored the following year. Wulthere is the last Archbishop whose name in full occurs on coins of the York Archiepiscopal mint.

ST. PETER OF YORK ⁹⁰⁵/₉₁₄.

- *This memorial coinage was undoubtedly struck under the direction of the successors of Wulthere in the Archiepiscopate, viz. Ethelbald ⁹²⁵/₉₂₅, Leodeward, and Wulstan. It bears the name "St. Peter", and was probably minted at York, during the Danish rule, about the middle of the tenth century.
- 68988 St. Peter of York penny, SCIIETRIICI in two lines divided by three pellets, with another pellet above legend. R. + BC:RACI. Cross pattée in centre within a beaded circle (Hks, 608 var.). R. E. F. » 2 5 »

CARDINAL CHRISTOPHER BAINBRIDGE ¹⁵⁰⁸/₁₅₁₅ (temp. Henry VIII).

- 68999 York Half Groat of Henry VIII 1st coinage. Mm. Star on both sides, h ERIC VIII DEI GRA RKX ANGL Z. Profile bust to r. with his father's portrait, wearing arched crown. R. CIVITAS EBORACI. Armorial shield on cross fourchée, with two Keys and Cardinals Hat (with pellet each side of crown) below shield. S. V. F. " 10 "
- * This piece with only the symbol of a Cardinal, without his initials, was possibly struck by Christopher Bainbridge Abp. from 1508 to 1515, on the ground that being the first Cardinal (created in 1511), he may have considered the initials unnecessary. The mm. star apparently does not occur on the York pieces of Wolsey, nor "Z" at end of obv. legend, and the Cardinal's Hat differs some what in having a pellet each side of the crown which is of lower dimensions than that on the Wolsey Hat. Thomas Wolsey also was not created Cardinal by Leo X until the death of Christopher Bainbridge in 1515.

EDWARD LEE ¹⁵³⁴/₁₅₄₁ (temp. Henry VIII).

ENGLISH HISTORICAL MEDALS.

DEFEAT OF THE SPANISH ARMADA. 1588.

- 69279 Silver. Obv. DVRVM * EST * CONTRA * STIMVLOS * CALCITRARE * In centre of beaded inner circle, Pope, Kings, Bishops and others, seated in consultation, with bandaged eyes; the floor filled with spikes, above, O. COECAS. HOMINVM. MENTES O. PECTORA. COECA. R. TV * DEVS * MAGNVS * ET * MAGNA * FACIS * TV * SOLVS * DEVS. In centre of beaded inner circle, the Spanish fleet driven against rocks, and above, VENI. VIDE. VIVE. 1588 a rose separating beginning from end of outer legend on both sides. Med. Ill., I, ¹⁴⁵/₁₁₁. Dia., 2. V. R. E. F. 7 10 »

*Bizot in his "Histoire métallique de la République de Hollande" erroneously treats, and in his illustration, depicts the ends of the bandages on the obverse of this medal, as "Asses ears" —! Disraeli mentions this in his "Curiosities of Literature".

DESTRUCTION OF SPANISH FLEET OFF CADIZ 1596.

- 69280 Silver. Obv. RVMPITVR * HAVD * FACILE. A hand from Heaven holding a cord, which connects the shields of England and France both crowned, and a heart with the arrows of the United Provinces. Mm. Rose. R. QVID * ME * PERSEQVERIS * 1596. Spanish fleet in distress, above, in radiated clouds, the name of Jehovah in Hebrew. Med. Ill., I, ¹⁴⁵/₁₁₁. Dia., 2. R. E. F. 3 » »

*In 1586, Elizabeth despatched a fleet to Cadiz, and destroyed an immense armament prepared for the second invasion of England by Philip II, who sustained damage to the amount of about 20,000,000 ducats.

BATTLE OF TURNHOUT. 1597.

- 69281 Silver. Obv. VICTORIA. TVRNOTANA. 24. IANVARII 1597. The troops of Prince Maurice pursuing those of Spain, Turnhout in the distance. R. A. DOMINO. FACTVM. EST. ISTVD. Shields of France, England, and the United Provinces connected by a cord; those of France and England crowned. Med. Ill., I, ¹⁴⁵/₁₁₁. Dia., 1. 15. V. F. » 12 6
- 69282 Copper. Another of same type, but in another metal, and of the size 1. 1. F. » 3 »

BATTLE OF NIEUPORT. 1600.

- 69283 Silver. Obv. QVOS. DIES. VIDIT. VENIENS. SVPERBOS. Shield of Zeeland crowned. R. HOS. DIES. VIDIT. FVGIENS. IACENTES 2. IVLII. 1600. Spaniards flying before the Allied infantry and cavalry, above, AD. NEO-FORTV. Med. Ill., I, ¹⁴⁵/₁₁₁. Dia., 1. 15. E. F. » 10 »
- 69284 Copper. Another of same type, but struck in another metal. V. F. » 3 »

SIR WALTER RALEIGH. 1552-1618.

- 69285 Oval plaque in papier maché, with plain reverse, but on the obverse, Sir Walter Raleigh seated at a table, smoking his pipe, to the consternation of his servant, who thinking his master was alight, is about to throw over him a jug of water to put out the flames. Unpublished. Dia., 2. by 1.65. V. R. V. F. 2 » »

SCOTTISH REBELLION. 1639.

- 69286 Silver. Medalet of Charles I. Obv. CAROLVS. D. G. MAG. BRIT. FRAN. KT. HIB. REX, legend commencing at the bottom on the left. The King crowned (³/₄ face) and in armour, to left on horseback, holding baton, and with scarf flowing behind him, under the horse, arms and armour, and in exergue, the date 1639. R. QVOS. DEVS, rose stops in legend. Hand issuing from clouds, holding a cord uniting a rose and thistle. Med. Ill., I, ²⁸⁵/₂₀₅. Dia., 1. 25. V. R. E. F. 6 » »
- 69287 Silver. Another of smaller size same legends and type, but with mm. Lis. rs (Thomas Simon) within the shoulder of cuirass on the ground, legend commencing at the top on the right, and without date in exergue. Med. Ill., I, ²⁸⁵/₂₀₅. Dia., 1. 05. R. V. F. 3 10 »

*These two pieces were struck to commemorate the collapse of the rebellion in Scotland, and are all doubtless early productions of Thomas Simon, who was a pupil of Briot. The King had assembled an army of 23,000 men, and was about to attack the rebel commanders, when they sent a petition for the appointment of a commission to negotiate a peace.

EARL OF ESSEX. General. 1642.

- 69288 Silver-gilt. Oval badge, THE SWORD OF THE LORD AND OF GYDEON, legend incuse. Bust of the Earl of Essex (full-faced) in armour, falling lace collar, and scarf, with sword in hand, and over his head, a hand issuing from clouds holding a sword. R. Legend incuse, IN. THE. MVLTVITVDE. OF. COVNCCELLORS. THERE. IS. PEACE. The two Houses of Parliament, with the King and Speaker. Med. Ill., I, ²⁸⁷/₁₇₅. Size 1.55 by 1.2, with loop, cast and chased. V. R. V. F. 8 » »

*Robert Devereux Earl of Essex, eldest son of the favourite of Q. Elizabeth, was born in 1591. He commanded in the Netherlands, and was considered a good general. When the Civil War broke out, he was appointed commander-in-chief of the Parliamentary Forces, but was displaced in 1645, and died 14 Sept' 1646.

- 69289 Silver-gilt. Oval badge, without legends. Bust of the earl nearly front face, in plain falling collar, armour, and scarf across body. R. Garnished oval shield with Essex arms, surmounted by coronet. Med. Ill., I, ²⁸⁸/₁₇₇. Size 1.05 by .85, loop and ring, cast and chased. E. F. R. 5 » »
- 69290 Silver. Oval badge, Half length figure of the Earl of Essex (³/₄ face to left) in armour, falling lace collar, and scarf round waist, with sword in hand, and above his head sx; outer legend. "Should hear both houses of Parliament for true religion and subjects freedom stand." Inner legend, "Pro Religione, lege, Rege, et Parlamento," both legends incuse. R. The two Houses of Parliament with the King and Speaker. Med. Ill., I, ²⁸⁸/₁₇₇. Size 1.4 by 1.05 (no border) cast and chased, with loop. E. R. V. F. 12 10 »

*The above three badges were probably issued as military rewards, to be given to persons of various ranks in Essex's army.

EARL OF MANCHESTER General 1643 † 1671.

- 69291 Silver-gilt. Oval badge without border, with incuse legend "Pro * Religione, lege, Rege et Parlamento". Bust of the Earl (³/₄ face to left), head with long hair, plain falling collar, armour, and scarf across the body. R. The two Houses of Parliament with the King and Speaker. Unpublished. Size 1.5 by 1.1, unfortunately with hole. E. R. F. 20 » »
- *Edward Montagu Lord Kimbolton, became second Earl of Manchester in 1642. He was attached to the Puritan cause, and had the command of a regiment at Edgehill. In 1643, he received the charge of the forces maintained by the seven associated counties of Essex &c., and contributed greatly to the success of the Parliamentary forces at Marston Moor. These medals were issued as military rewards.
- 69292 Silver-gilt. Oval badge, bust of the Earl (³/₄ face to left), head with long hair, plain falling collar, armour, and scarf across body. R. Arms of Montagu in a garnished oval shield, surmounted by coronet. No legend on either side. Med. Ill., I, ³⁰⁰/₁₉₇. Size 1.05 by .85 with loop and ring, without border. V. R. E. F. 14 » »

SIR THOMAS FAIRFAX. GENERAL. 1645-1671.

- 69293 Silver-gilt. Oval badge (military Reward) with small wreath border, bust of Sir Thomas Fairfax (³/₄ face to left), hair long, in plain falling collar, armour, and scarf across the breast. R. Armorial shield of Fairfax suspended to a chain, within a band inscribed. ST THO. FAIRFAX KN FOR KING & PARL^{mt}. Med. Ill., I, ³¹⁷/₁₉₀. Size 1.1 by .95, loop and ring. E. R. V. F. 15 » »
- *Sir Thomas Fairfax was the son of Ferdinand Lord Fairfax, and one of the most enterprising and successful of the Parliamentary Generals. He served in the first instance under his father as General of the Horse, and commanded the right wing of the cavalry at Marston Moor. On the retirement of Essex in 1645, Sir Thomas Fairfax was made in his stead General-in-chief of the Parliamentary forces, and won the battle of Naseby. In 1660, he actively exerted himself to forward the Restoration of Charles II.

CIVIL WAR 1645.

- 69294 Silver. Oval portrait badge by Rawlins, of an unknown Royalist, bust to r. with long hair, and love-lock over left shoulder, wearing a coat with plain falling collar, and on the truncation of bust R F (Rawlins fecit), with the date 1645 below. Unpublished. Size 1.1 by .85, unfortunately holed. R. E. F. 5 » »

OLIVER CROMWELL. LORD-GENERAL. 1650.

- 69295 Silver. Oval medal struck on a circular flan, by Thomas Simon, OLI. CROMWEL. MILIT. PARL. DVX. GEN. Bust of Cromwell (³/₄ to r.) in plain falling collar, armour, and fringed scarf tied in a knot on his right shoulder. R. Plain. There is a flaw in the upper part of the die. Med. Ill., I, ³²⁸/₂₁₇. Size 1.4. R. V. F. 4 10 »
- 69296 Copper. Another uniface medal by Thomas Simon, legend and type as before, but without flaw. R. E. F. 2 10 »

*The titles on the above two medals, shew they were executed before Cromwell assumed the title of "Protector"; they were probably intended as military rewards after his appointment as "Captain-General and commander-in-chief" 26 June 1650 to succeed Fairfax.

BATTLE OF DUNBAR. 1650.

- 69297 Silver. Oval medal of Oliver Cromwell by T. Simon, bust of Cromwell to left, hair long, in plain falling collar, armour, and scarf festooned upon the breast, above the head, THE LORD OF HOSTS, at the sides in small letters, WORD AT DUNBAR—SEPTEM : Y. 3. 1650, and on the truncation of bust, T. SIMON F, in background, a battle. R. Plain. Med. Ill., I, ³²⁸/₂₁₇. Size .95 by .8. R. V. F. 1 5 »

*On the 7th Sept. the Commons resolved, "that their special thanks be conveyed to the Lord-General for his eminent services at the great victory of Dunbar, and that his Excellency be desired to return their thanks also to the officers and soldiers of the army, and that a number of gold and silver medals be distributed amongst them." Thomas Simon was specially ordered by the Parliament to proceed to Scotland to take the effigies, portrait or statue of the Lord-General to be placed on the medals.

- 6298 Bronze. Oval portrait plaque of Cromwell, bust similar to that on the Dunbar medal but wanting in other details, with GV below the bust (initials of unknown artist), with plain reverse. Unpublished. Size 3.6 by 2.75. V. F. V. R. 5 » »

COLONEL DESBOROUGH. 1657.

- 6299 Silver. Oval portrait-medal, without obv. legend, bust of Desborough to r., hair long, in plain falling collar, armour, and scarf across the breast. R. Inscription, COL. DESBOROUGH 1657 in three lines across the field, with AS (for Abraham Simon) below. Cast, chased, and of coarse work not by Abraham Simon, probably a much altered copy of the last century from an original medal of the period. Med. Ill., I, $\frac{423}{69}$. Size 2.1 by 1.85. V. R. 4 » »

*John Desborough was born in Cambridgeshire, bred an attorney married Cromwell's sister, became a soldier, and was made Major-General of the Western counties in 1648. He strenuously opposed the project to make the Protector king in 1659, and on Cromwell's death, induced Richard his son to dissolve the Parliament. At the Restoration, he headed several insurrections, and in 1666 was imprisoned in the Tower.

ISLAND OF ST CHRISTOPHER. CAPTURED BY FRANCE. 1666.

- 6300 Copper. Medal of Louis XIV by J. Mauger. LVDOVICVS. XIII. REX. CHRISTIANISSIMVS. Bust of the King to r. with long hair, and love-lock over right shoulder, no drapery. R. COLONIA. FR. STABILITA, an American Indian seated upon a rock supporting the shield of France, that of England lying at his feet; in the exergue, ANGL. EX. INSVLA ST. CHRISTOPH. EXTURBAT MDCLXVI. Med. Ill., I, $\frac{517}{107}$. Size 1.6. V. F. R. 15 » »

*One of the medallic series of Louis XIV. The Island of St. Christopher had been held in common by England and France, who afterwards divided it between them. After the conclusion of the treaty between Holland, Brandenburg, and France, Louis declared war against England, and at the commencement of this war, the French party succeeded in obtaining possession of the English portion of the Island, and thus established their colony. Their conquest was surrendered at the ensuing peace.

LANDING OF WILLIAM OF ORANGE AT TORBAY. 1688.

- 6301 Silver. Medal (cast) of Prince of Orange by G. Bower. GVILELMVS III. D. G. PRIN. AVR. HOL. ET. WES. GVB. Bust of the Prince to r., hair long, in lace cravat, armour, and with scarf across the body, on the truncation of bust is the date 1688, and below, G. B. F. (George Bower). R. TERRAS. ASTRÆA. REVISIT. The Prince on horseback at the head of his army drawn up on the beach, his fleet in the background; in the foreground a warrior is raising the fainting figure of Justice; edge plain. *Med. - 6304 Copper. Another variety differing in the obverse die, in which the artist's initials are omitted. Med. Ill., II, $\frac{60}{258}$. Size 1.6. V. R. E. F. 1 5 »

*Louis XIV took for his emblem, the Sun with the well known motto "Nec pluribus impar"; it decorated the stern of Le Soleil Royal, which bore Admiral de Tourville's flag in the battle of La Hogue. He singled out Admiral Russell, and after a most severe contest, was obliged to be towed away. His ship was so much damaged, that it had to be run ashore at Cherbourg, where, with others, it was burnt to the water by Admiral Delaval. Thus perished the finest ship at that time in Europe. The legend is a retort upon Louis's motto.

- 6305 Peuter. Medal by P. H. Müller, WILHELM. III. D. G. MAG. BRIT.

BATTLE OF RAMILLIES, AND CONQUEST OF BRABANT &c. 27 May/7 June 1706.

other, a trophy of captured arms, marches to left rapidly over prostrate foes; in the exergue GALLIS. ACIE. DEVICTIS. BRABANTIA &c. Edge inscribed MARTE FEROX. ET. VINCI. NESCIVS. ARMIS VIRG. Med. III., II., 287. Size 1.45. R. V. F. 1 15 »

* This medal was struck in honour of Marlborough, who in the space of fifteen days after the battle of Ramillies, secured for the Archduke Charles, Brabant, Flanders, and the city of Antwerp, the siege of which last place he had calculated would delay him a month. The edge anticipates the remark made at the close of this great General's career, "that he never besieged a fortress which he did not take, nor fought a battle which he did not gain".

The quotation is not from Virgil, but from Ovid (Epist. II, ix-45).

SUCCESES OF THE ALLIES IN SPAIN AND BRABANT. 1706.

- 69318 Silver. Medal by Martin Smeltzing. SIC. OBSCVRATVR GLORIA MAGNI REGIS. A segment of the globe marked EVROPÆ, above, clouds obscuring sun; in the exergue, the date MDCCVI. R. DOMINVMQVE IN REGNA TVLERE. Arranged around a medallion of Charles III of Spain, CAROL. III. HISP. REX, are three laurel circles, one with a naval and mural crown containing a view of Barcelona bombarded, the two others murally crowned, with views of the battle of Ramillies, and the entry into Madrid respectively, at the sides, all the flags of the Allies; in the exergue, an arabesque. Med. III., II., 284. Size 1.75. V. R. V. F. 4 10 »

* The reverse records the various successes of the campaign which contributed to bring the Archduke Charles to his Kingdom; the last mentioned being the entry into Madrid of the Earl of Galway, who commanded the Allied forces of Portugal, and who advancing into Spain, captured Alcantara, Ciudad Rodrigo, and Salamanca, entering Madrid in triumph, ¹/₂₀ June, where he proclaimed Charles King.

Edge inscribed, MENS VNA SAPIENS PLVRIVM &c. Med. III., II., 285. Size 1.7. E. R. V. F. 6 6 »

* On the ¹/₃₀ Dec^r, Count de la Mothe the Governor of Ghent sent word to Marlborough, desiring that some officers of the garrison might have leave to attend him in order to arrange the terms for the surrender of the city. Marlborough returned a blank passport, and the next day the capitulation was signed. The garrison marched out with the "Honours of war", and was conducted to Tournay.

- 69320 Silver. Medal of Anne, by John Croker. 1708. ANNA. D. G. MAG. BR. FR. ET. HIB. REG. Bust of Queen crowned to left, hair entwined with pearls, lovelock over right shoulder, in embroidered gown; with Collar, George, and Star of the Garter, and a bow of pearls on left shoulder, below the bust, I. C. R. INSVLÆ. CAPTÆ MDCCVIII. III., II., 286.* Size 1.75. R. V. F. 3 3 »

* When the city of Lille capitulated, Boufflers with the remainder of his garrison retired into the citadel, against which the trenches were opened ¹/₁₀ Oct., but which was not compelled to surrender before 28 Nov./9 Dec. Thus ended this most arduous and most difficult siege. The besieged lost within the walls, above 10,000 men, and the Allies during the siege, and the operations connected with it, not much less than 14,000 men. On account of Bouffler's admirable and valiant defence, the terms of capitulation accorded by the Allies were highly honourable, and he and his faithful soldiers were allowed to march out with all the honours of war.

ATTEMPTED FRENCH INVASION OF SCOTLAND ¹/₂₁ Mar. 1708.

- 69321 Silver. Medal of Anne by Georg Hautsch. 1708. ANNA. D. G. MAG. BR. FR. ET. HIB. REGINA. Bust of Queen to left, hair bound with fillet, lovelock over right shoulder, and wearing gown fastened with brooch in front; below the bust H. * As soon as the French commander perceived the English fleet approaching the Firth of Forth, he cut his cables and bore away with the utmost expedition. The old naturalists were of opinion, that an ass was fond of thistles, but discomposed at the smell of a rose.

BATTLE OF MALPLAQUET 31 Aug./11 Sept. 1709.

69325 Silver. Medal of Anne by John Croker. ANNA. D. G. MAG. BRI. FR. ET. HIB. REG. Bust of Queen crowned to left, hair entwined with pearls, love-lock over right shoulder, and wearing an embroidered gown with shoulder-straps, collar, George, and star of the Garter &c. and below the bust I. C. (Croker). R. CONCORDIA ET VIRTUTE. Attack on French entrenchments in a wood; above, a Victory flying, and holding two laurel wreaths; in the exergue, GALLIS. AD. TAISIENRE DEVICTIS AVG. XXXI MDCCIX. Med. Ill., II, $\frac{259}{197}$. Size 1.9. R. E. F. 3 3 *

* The Allies having resolved to attack Mons were compelled to pass the strong lines which Villars had formed from that city to the Sambre. Marlborough with his usual skilful manœuvring and rapid marches, deceived Villars, passed the lines and invested the place. Villars resolved to risk a battle for its protection, and to penetrate through the woods of Taisnières and Lanieres, but was surprised to see Marlborough drawn up on the other side, and ready to oppose him. Whilst Marlborough was waiting for reinforcements, Villars strongly entrenched himself, but after a very sanguinary battle, in which he was himself wounded, his army retreated in a very masterly manner under the direction of Boufflers. The right of the French where the attack commenced, was drawn up on the palm of Malplaquet, from which the battle usually takes its name.

BATTLE OF SARAGOSSA $\frac{9}{20}$ August 1710.

69324 Silver. Medal of Anne by John Croker, 1710. ANNA. AVGVSTA. 69325 Copper. Another, same legends and type, but in a different metal. R. V. F. 1 *

* After the encounter at Almenara, Philip retired from Lerida to Saragossa, and having been reinforced, resolved to make a stand, on $\frac{9}{20}$ August, the Allies made the attack, and the valour of the troops, the skilful dispositions of the generals, and the gallant intrepidity of Stanhope secured a complete victory. The Spaniards lost 5000 killed, 4000 prisoners, with all their artillery, and a great number of colours and standards. At eleven on the night of the battle, Colonel Harrison was despatched to England with the captured standards and the news of the battle.

BATTLE OF ALMENARA $\frac{16}{27}$ July 1710.

69326 Copper. Medal of Anne, by John Croker, 1710. Obv. Legend and type as before. R. PVGEA EQVESTRIS. * In 1710 the two rival pretenders to the Spanish crown, were present with their respective armies, and the Allies having been reinforced, pursued Philip who had been compelled to retire from want of provisions, and overtook him near Almenara. General Stanhope at the head of the cavalry, made an impetuous charge upon the whole body of Spanish cavalry, and routed them; the British general killing the Spanish general in single combat, which exploit of warfare of earlier ages, is represented on this medal.

 69827 Charles II, Silver medal, Naval Reward PRO T. Mayo Vol. I, P. 39. E. F.
 69828 Battle of Culloden, 1746. Tancred, p. 41. Mayo Vol. 93. E. F.

Gold medal to General Thomas Gage (1721-1787) who was the second son of Thomas Gage, first viscount Gage, in the peerage of Ireland, by his first wife Benedicta (or Beata Marie Theresa) only daughter and heiress of Benedict Hall, of High Medow, Gloucestershire, and was born 1721.

On the 30th Jany. 1741 he received his first Commission as a Lieut in Colonel Cholmondeley's newly raised regiment (afterwards 48th Foot, now the 1st Northampton). His name occurs in the Irish lists (Quarters of the Army in Ireland) in 1745 as a Captain in Batterean's Foot, the Old 62nd an Irish Corps of two battalions which fought at Culloden and was disbanded in 1748, and in 1748 as Major in what then was the 55th Foot. He appears to have been aide-de-camp to Lord Albemarle in Flanders 1747-48 (MacLachlan, Orders of William, Duke of Cumberland). At the reductions of 1748 the 55th Foot, of which Sir Peter Halket was Colonel, was renumbered as the 44th Foot, now 1st Essex. Gage became Lieut-Colonel of the Regiment 2 March 1752 and went with it to America under General Braddock in 1745. He commanded the advance column in the march from Monaghela to Fort Duquesne 9th July 1755, where he was distinguished by his gallantry, and was wounded.

Subsequently he was appointed to raise a provincial regiment for special service in America, under a warrant dated 5th May 1758. This was the old 80th "Light-armed" Foot of 1758-64 and consisted of five companies of extra strength, the men of which had a lighter equipment than usual and had the barrels of their firelocks cut short carbines and browned. Later in the same year he commanded the light infantry in Abercromby's expedition against Ticonderoga. After the fall of Niagara in July 1759 Brig-General Gage was detached from Crown Point to supersede Sir William Johnson, a provincial officer by whom the command had been held after the death of Colonel Prideaux. He was directed to act against La Gallette, a French post on Lake Ontario, which he reported to be impracticable. He commanded the rear-guard of the force under Amherst which united with Murray's forces from Quebec before Montreal 6th Sept. 1760, and completed the conquest of Canada.

The Hon. Thos. Gage was then appointed Governor of Montreal where his mild rule contrasted with the severity of Murray at Quebec. He became a Major General in 1761, and in 1763 was appointed to act as Commander-in-Chief in North America with his head-quarters at New York, during the absence of Amherst, who returned home. He was confirmed in the appointment the year after and retained it until 1772, when he returned to England. His conduct received the approval of the home government.

After his regiment, the 80th Foot, was disbanded Gage held the colonelcy of the 60th Royal Americans for two months and when Amherst was reinstated therein, was transferred to the colonelcy of the 22nd Foot. He became a Lieut-General in 1770 before leaving America. In 1774 Gage was appointed Governor-in-Chief & Captain-general of the province of Massachusetts Bay, in succession to Hutchinson; and in May that year pursuant to Orders from home, took up his quarters in Boston, where he was well received, despite the unpopularity of the enactment closing the port against trading vessels, which had been put in force before his arrival. He had been employed there in 1768.

Gage, a brave soldier, had six regiments with him at Boston, but his efforts to bring the colonists into a more submissive attitude towards the ministry at home proved as unavailing as thankless.

He proclaimed The Solemn League & Covenant as a traitorous assemblage, and bade the magistrates arrest all persons aiding and abetting it.

He closed the new council for the province and forbade the holding of town meetings without special license. He also seized the provincial magazines at Cambridge, and elsewhere, which resulted in some rioting. A once loyal province had been alienated to the verge of rebellion through ministerial blundering at home, and an accident sufficed to kindle the smouldering flame.

On the 18th April 1775 hearing that the colonists were collecting stores at Concord Town, twenty miles from Boston, he sent a detachment of 800 under Col. Smith 10th Foot, to destroy them. The service was effected, but a collision with the Militia occurred on the return march, at Lexington, with which the War of Independence may be said to have commenced.

Gage's report of the affair is printed in facsimile in the Memorial History of Boston.

By a resolution of the provincial Congress, the Colonists refused longer to obey Gage as Governor. Gage remained at Boston, where at the end of March he was reinforced by additional regiments from home.

On 12th June Gage proclaimed martial law and offered a free pardon to all who would avail themselves of it, excepts Samuel Adams and John Harvey. On the 16th the Americans took up a position on what was properly Breed's Hill or Charleston Heights, opposite Boston, where the next day (17th June 1775) was fought a battle known as Bunker's Hill. Howe with part of Gage's command was sent to dislodge the American forces. Twice the position was assailed without success. The third time the slope was carried, and the Americans driven from their entrenchment. They merely retired from Breeds Hill to Bunker's Hill, whither the British did not follow them. Gage shut himself up in Boston where great scarcity prevailed, and where he was blockaded from the land side by Washington.

In an undated letter to Lord Suffolk about this time, Germain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, laments that "General Gage with all his good qualities, finds himself in a position of too great importance for his talents. In spite of Germain's misgivings Gage was appointed Commander-in-Chief in North America in August 1775, but soon after resigned. He embarked at Boston for England 10th Octr 1775, leaving the command to Howe; he was transferred from the colonelcy of the 22nd Foot to that of the 17th Dragoons, and after of the 11th Dragoons. He became a full General in April 1782, Died 2 April 1787.

Gage married, 8th Dec. 1758 at Mount Kembal, North America, Margaret, daughter of Peter Kembal, president of the Council of New Jersey, by whom he had six sons and five daughters. His eldest surviving son, Major General Henry Gage, succeeded his uncle, William Hall Gage, second Viscount, as third Viscount and died leaving issue in 1808.

69834 Waterloo. 1815. Captain Mercer's Medal of the Royal Horse Artillery.

* Captain Alexander Cavall Mercer came of a military race. The second son of General Mercer R. E. was born in 1783. Served in South America 1807-8. Captain Mercer's troop came in for the hottest part of the battle on Waterloo day and suffered considerably in loss of men and horses.

Sir George Wood R. A. paid a visit to the battery on that memorable afternoon and was surprised to find so many cannon balls whizzing round his ears "D—n it Mercer" he exclaimed, "you seem to be having a hot time of it here". Hot it was for all parties concerned, but the gallant way in which the gunners worked their guns kept the French cavalry from reaching the infantry squares behind Mercer's guns. He died at Cowley Cottage, Exeter 9th Novr 1868.

His Journal of the Waterloo Campaign is in every respect a delightful book.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF MEDALLISTS

Coin, Gem, and Seal Engravers, Ancient and Modern,
with References to their Works.

Most of the previous articles have been revised and republished in the "Biographical Dictionary of Medallists". The references to that work in these supplementary articles will be indicated by the letters "B.D.M." together with the number of the volume and its page.

GRECO, IL Surname of ALESSANDRO CESATI q. v.

GREEF, P. DE (Belg.). Contemporary engraver of Brussels; author of a medal of the Confraternity of St. Bonifacius, at Ixelles.

GREENDUCK CO, CHICAGO, THE (Amer.). The name of this firm occurs on a medal of the Hope Rubber Co. Providence, R.I.

GREENE, CHARLES (Brit.). Assistant-engraver at the Royal Mint, London, appointed in 1620 in succession to John Dycher. On the death of William Holle, Edward and John Gilbert were jointly elected to fill the vacancy. In the early part of Charles I's reign, John Gilbert and Edward Greene held the joint office of Chief-engravers, with Charles Greene as their assistant. He died in 1633.

GREENE, EDWARD (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 313). Chief-engraver at the Royal Mint, London, first in conjunction with John Gilbert, from the death of William Holle, 1624 to 1628, when Gilbert retired with a pension of £ 50, then alone until his death shortly before Christmas, 1644.

"In the twelve months ending March 31, 1626, "states

Mr. Symonds, "Edward Greene received £ 220 for making patterns for six kinds of gold and seven kinds of silver coins, and for his pains during eight months. These probably represent the first issue of money by the new king. On April 16, 1625, a warrant directs Edward Greene to make and engrave the great seals of England and Ireland and other smaller seals; a second order authorizes him to take up four men for the more speedy despatch of the work. A strange contradiction of these two warrants arises on September 4, 1626, when the king instructs Briot to make the seal of England, an incident quite typical of the cross currents which developed at the Tower." (Cf. Hy. Symonds, Engravers of the Tudor and Stuart Periods, Num. Chron., 1913, pp. 362, 365.)

Miss Farquhar, in a paper read before the Royal Numismatic Society, May 20, 1908, suggested that as the Laurels, Half-Laurels, and Quarter-Laurels issued during the reign of James I. are of inferior work to the Rose-royal, Spur-royal, and Angel, they were executed not by Holle, but by John Gilbert and Edward Greene, who worked on into the reign of Charles I. This would account for the similarity of the fabric of the latest coins of James I. and the earliest of Charles I.

This Engraver received from Lord Strafford £ 10 for a seal of Ireland.

GREENE, LIEUT. COL. G. T. (Brit.). Officiating Mint-master at Calcutta, appointed 6. December 1847 and in office until 1849, when he was succeeded by Major M. N. Smyth.

GREENWOOD AND BATLEY, LIMITED (Brit.). A firm in Leeds who manufacture machines for making coins and medals.

GRÉGOIRE, RENÉ (French). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist; born in Saumur, department of the Maine and Loire, France. Studied at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts at Paris, where he was a pupil of Thomas and of H. Dubois. From 1893 until 1900 he exhibited at the Salon du Champ de Mars. (Société Nationale.) Since that time he has exhibited in the Salon of the Société des Artistes Français. In 1899 he won the Grand Prix de Rome, then a third and second medal at the Salon, this latter being obtained in 1908. At the Exposition of Milan he was awarded a gold medal. Among his best known works may be mentioned the medal of the Exposition of Marseilles.

He exhibited the following works at the New York International Medallion Exhibition, in March 1910: — "Le baiser" (large model); — Le printemps; — Paul Desaeby; — Antoine Garnier; — La Peinture; — La Pitié; — Le Temps Consolateur; — Plaque d'inauguration de l'Institut Océanographique de Monaco; — L'Amitié; — Maternité; — L'Agriculture; — L'Industrie; — Le baiser (small model).

To commemorate King Edward VII's visit to Paris in 1903 and subsequent improved relations between France and England, this artist executed a very pretty plaque, Entente cordiale, which is reproduced in the Magazine of Art for March 1904.

Grégoire has been a constant exhibitor at the Paris Salon since 1904. Among his recent exhibits are: 1912. Hélène; — Eros; — Percement du tunnel du Lötschberg; — 1913. A frame of Medals; — 1914. A frame of Plaquettes and Medals, including a Plaque of the Ghent Exhibition; — Exposition of Hygiene, Rio de Janeiro, 1909 (obv. R. G. in monogram; rev. R. GRÉGOIRE), etc.

GREIER, E. (Germ.). Contemporary Medallist; his signature occurs on a medal commemorating the Storming of Mount Lovcen, 11 Jan. 1916.

GREINER, DR DANIEL (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born at Worms in 1872, and residing at Darmstadt. Has worked for the Schrobenshausen Medallion Mint of Carl Poellath.

Among his best known productions are: Portrait-plaquette of Philip the Magnanimous, on his fourth centenary, 1904; — A widow; — J. S. Bach; — Third Centenary of Rembrandt, 1906; 80 mill.; edited by Ad. E. Cahn of Frankfurt a/M. (illustrated); — Goethe; — Dr Gustav Warwick; — A young Lady; — An old Woman; — The artist's father; — The artist's mother; — Plaquette of the Historical Society of the Grand Duchy of Hesse; — The Widow; a plaque, etc.

Rembrandt.

GREVE, THOMAS DE (Flem.). Mint-master at Antwerp, 1510-1513.

GREW (Brit.). Gem-engraver of the third quarter of the eighteenth century whose signature I have noticed on a finely carved cameo of Apollo, facing head; also on a beautiful intaglio representing a helmeted head of Perseus in profile (illustrated), and the following works: The Marine Venus, carnelian (signed: GREW F.);

Head of Perseus.

— Cupid; — Bust of an Angel; — Bust of Dr Johnson; — Dog couchant; — Head of Ariadne; — Venus asleep, carnelian; — Bust of Achilles, carnelian, etc.

GRIELENS, ED. (Belg.). Contemporary Die-sinker of Antwerp, whose signature I have noticed on a commemorative medal of the Universal Exhibition at Antwerp; also: Linnaeus Society of Borgehout, Belgium.

GRIFFO, SILVESTRO (Ital.). Nephew of Pietro di Pasquale, and his assistant as Engraver at the Venice mint, under Leonardo Loredano, in the early years of the sixteenth century.

GRIEN or GRYN (Germ.). Mint-master at Heidelberg, 1374, Oppenheim, 1379-1384, and Miltenberg, 1389.

GRIGGS, WILLIAM (Brit.). Sculptor; exhibited a medallion portrait in 1832, and in the following year again (posthumous of General the Hon. Charles Fitzroy).

GRILLAUD, JEAN AMBROISE (French). Mint-engraver at Poitiers, 1724-1744; he was born in 1693.

GRILLAUD or GRELLAUX, JEAN (French). Mint-engraver at Poitiers, circ. 1699-1720.

GRILLET (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 316). This Engraver's signature occurs also on a medal of Duke George William of Brunswick and Lüneburg on the conclusion of the pourparlers with Brandenburg, 1699 (several varieties; some cut in conjunction with E. Hannibal).

GRILLICHES, ABRAHAM (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 315). This Engraver was employed at the Petrograd Mint as Medallist during the seventies and eighties of the nineteenth century. GRUNER, JAKOB FRIEDRICH (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 321). Engraved in 1828, when only 25 years old, for the Soleure Mint-master Anton Pfluger (1779-1858) part of the dies, commissioned to the latter by the State of Basle for Concordat coins of 5, 1 and $\frac{1}{2}$ Batzen with the retrospective date of 1826, some of which were also executed by Ch. Bel-Bussièrès of Lausanne and J. Aberli of Winterthur. Gruner was in 1828 an assistant of Mint-master Fueter at Berne. (Alb. Ruegg-Karlen, Staats-Archiv. Basel, Münzacten CI: Letter from Mint-master Fueter at Soleure to the Basle monetary com-mission, 26. Nov. 1828.)

GRUNDLER, MARKUS (Germ.). Mint-engraver at Augsburg, after 1617.

GRYP, CLAUS (Germ.). Mint-master at Rostock, 1540.

GSELL, LEONHARD (Swiss). Mint-master at Basle, appointed in 1469 as Mint-master at Soleure for a term of four years. Cf. Carl Roth, in Schw. Kstler-Lex., Suppl. 187.

GS. These initials occur on the reverse of a Basle Christmas Medal representing the Adoration of the three Kings (Ewig 868).

GSELL (or GESELL), LUDWIG (Swiss). Goldsmith and Mint-master; a native of Basle, appointed Mint-master at Zurich in 1500, in conjunction with the goldsmith Ulrich Trinkler; 1494-96 Mint-master at Bern.

A. Ruegg-Karlen, Basler Münzmeister, Stempelschneider und Medailleure, 1915, gives the following additional information: Mint-master and Hostel-keeper "Zum Storchen" at Basle. The city renewed with him on 24. March 1477 a contract for an issue of Vierer. On 8. November 1480 Gsell was appointed general Mint-master to the four towns of the 'Rappenmünzbund', Basle, Freiburg in B., Colmar and Breisach, with Balthasar Hütschin as Warden of the Mint. For the purpose of a coinage of Dick-Plapparts, Plapparts and Heller he was called upon to go to Berne, where he directed the issue of 1494-1496 (including probably Dicken or 1492 and undated Thalers).

GTBMMICOLM. Vide GEORGE THOMAS BAUR. Mint-master in Colmar.

GUAINIER, DAVID I (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 323). Born at Geneva on 30. November 1601, died 2. April 1669. His son David II, was born on 17. January 1663, and died on 23. December 1733, Warden of the Mint at Geneva.

GUARA, A. F. (Port.). Engraver of the first half of the nineteenth century. By him are Portrait-medallions of D. Miguel and others.

GUAY, JACQUES (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 324). At the Sale of Baroness de Civry's collection in Paris (April 1904) a snuff box in gold, with sardonyx cameo, representing the bust of Marie-Antoinette, by this artist, realized 22,500 francs. A sardonyx intaglio, with head of Mercury, in possession of Messrs Spink & Son L^d in 1905, was signed J.G.

Guay, "says Dalton", must be counted among the greatest of the eighteenth century Engravers; though the influence of his master, Boucher, is apparent in his work, which is less remarkable for strength than grace, his style has a spontaneity and freshness which seldom fail to charm. In 1742 he went for the purposes of his art to Florence, afterwards visiting Rome, where he remained studying the antique. On his return to Paris, he produced several intaglios with symbolic or mythologic subjects after designs by Bouchardon. The interest taken in his work by M^{me} de Pompadour made his fortune.

Cf. O.M. Dalton, Catalogue of the Engraved Gems of the Post-classical Periods in the British Museum, 1915.

GUAZZALOTTI, ANDREA (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 330). Fabriczy does not agree with the attribution hitherto given to this artist of the Medal of Alfonso of Aragon, with bust in profile (p. 331, n° 8), commemorating the Victory over the Florentines at Poggio Imperiale in 1499. He is inclined to give it to Bertoldo di Giovanni, with whose style it much more corresponds; on the ground of the softer modelling and the character of the lettering. As far as the R goes, this seems to hold, but on the obv. the letter A is given as

A, a peculiarity which does not occur in Bertoldo's work, but is present in Guazzalotti's medal of Pius II. Since we know that Bertoldo di Giovanni cast medals for Guazzalotti, the most likely hypothesis would seem to be that the obv. is by Guazzalotti and the R by Bertoldo.

We must further take away from Guazzalotti the medals of Bishop Girolamo Santucci and Constanza Bentivoglio, which probably belong to Spinelli; also that of Pope Innocent VIII. with the three allegorical figures on R.

Prof. Bode says: "To Andrea Guazzalotti, an ecclesiastical amateur with some superficial skill in portraiture, but entirely without initiative, who borrowed the figures for the reverse of his medals from those of other artists, some of these very medals have been attributed."

GUBE, HEINRICH (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 333). To this Engraver are also ascribed the following medals: Silver Wedding of J.A. Waitz, 1835; — Johannis, cardinal Haller, archbishop of Salzburg; — Frederick William III. of Prussia, First Convention of German Naturalists and Physicians at Berlin, 1828 (signed: G. LOOS DIR. H. GUBE).

GUBE, MAX (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 335). Medallist, Engraver to the Bavarian Court and to Prince Alphons of Bavaria; a nephew of Heinrich Gube; born at Ratibor in Silesia on 20. May 1849, died in Munich on 15. June 1904. He studied at the Academies of Berlin and Vienna; settled in 1875 at Geneva, where he distinguished himself as an Engraver of cameos and seals, but in the same year we find him in Munich, where he spent the remaining thirty years of his life.

The following list of the artist's medallic productions is fairly complete: — 1869. Heinrich Rose, chemist; iron casting, 120 mill. RR.; — 1887. HALSE, EMMELINE (Brit.). Contemporary Modeller, residing in London, who at the Royal Academy of 1905 exhibited two Portrait-medallions in wax of Mrs. Randall, and Miss Walters.

HALTER, HEINRICH FRIEDRICH (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 390). There are also medals by this Engraver on the Marriage of Duchess Sophia Dorothea of Brunswick and Lüneburg, 1706 (2 var.); — Ducats and Half Ducats of same date, etc.

HALTMAYER, JAKOB (Germ.). Mint-master at Langenargen (Montfort), 1678.

HAMAR, FERNAND (French). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born at Vendôme; pupil of Barrias, Cavelier, and Choppin. At the Paris Salon 1913 he exhibited a Souvenir Plaquette of his parents' golden wedding.

HAMEL ET LECOMTE (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 392). Not Lecompte. The medals of the First and Second Class of the Comité central de Vaccine du Département du Nord, with bust of Jenner, are thus signed.

A medal of the Comité de Vaccine de la Seine-Inférieure, signed on obv. BARRE has on rev., at sides below: HAMEL G.—A. ROUEN.

HAMEL, LOUIS DU (French). Mint-engraver at Saint-Lô, 1570-1584.

HAMEL, JACQUES ERNEST (French). Contemporary Sculptor and Ivory-carver, born at Arnex (Switzerland); pupil of Brisoin. At the Salon of 1892 he exhibited a Portrait-medallion in ivory of a Lady and by him is also a Medal of the Conseil central d'Hygiène et de Salubrité, 1855; Département de la Seine-Inférieure.

HAMER, I. H. (Germ.). Chaser of the 18th century. His signature occurs on a snuff box with Portrait-medallions of Frederick the Great and King George III.

HAMERANI, GIOACCHIMO (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 398). This artist engraved also: Scudi (2 var. of type) of the Roman Occupation by Ferdinand IV. of Sicily, 1800.

SUGGESTED SOLUTION OF A NUMISMATIC PUZZLE.

Major Carlyon-Britton, F.S.A. recently read a paper before the British Numismatic Society on the coins inscribed PERERIC, or PERERICM: the attribution of which has proved to be one of the greatest puzzles in the British series. Rejecting absolutely the former attributions to the Earl of Warwick and to Earl Ferrers, as also the suggestion that the name on the obverse was intended to suggest HENRIC, the lecturer, before advancing a new explanation of his own, mentioned two points on which he found himself in agreement with previous investigators — Mr. W. J. Andrew is right in thinking that the coins were issued by some person or authority claiming power through England, but wrong in concluding that the inscription on the obverse signifies IMPERATRIS, that is to say, "(money) of the Empress"; Mr. G. C. Brooke's opinion that the inscription is intentionally obscure is right, but his view that it is without meaning is wrong. The coins are of the same style, design, workmanship and lettering as Stephen's first type (Hawkins 270), and it may therefore safely be inferred that they were struck from dies, constructed with official irons, made by the proper officials in the usual place — namely, the Tower of London — and in this they differ from all coins issued in the name of Matilda. It is therefore necessary to ascertain a period during the currency of Stephen's first type, when it was considered impolitic, unsafe, or undesirable to place his name and royal title on the coins. Such a period is to be found between the date of the battle of Lincoln (February 2nd, 1141), soon after which Stephen was cast into prison at Bristol, and November 1st, 1141, when he was set free in exchange for Robert Earl of Gloucester. The mint officials were doubtless both cautious and conservative, and they adopted a sort of saving compromise. It is certain that the learned faction of either party would not be content with a meaningless inscription, and that to have used a form definitely committing them to either party would have been fatal to the mint officials in the event of the success of the other. Mr. Carlyon-Britton therefore suggested that the mysterious legend was intended to be read as follows:—

LA MÉDAILLE COMMÉMORATIVE DU BUREAU DE SECOURS DES PRISONNIERS DE GUERRE A BERNE.

Le 20 novembre 1918, la Légation britannique en Suisse organisait une cérémonie à l'occasion de la fermeture du Bureau de secours chargé du ravitaillement des prisonniers de guerre en Allemagne. Le Bureau de Berne occupait 40 boulangeries, travaillant avec la farine reçue spécialement pour cette destination. Au cours de cette réunion, une médaille fut remise par les soins du général Ewart, à toutes les personnes qui s'occupèrent de ce bureau.

Description. — Au premier plan parmi les gerbes et les épis, une jeune fille portant l'insigne de la Croix-Rouge, envoie le geste d'espérance; on voit au loin le camp des prisonniers se perdre dans les plaines de la Germanie. Au delà des fils barbelés, la Dent-du-Midi se profile avec le château de Chillon et les rives du Léman, chantées par Byron où débarquèrent les premiers convois de grands blessés rentrant de captivité; dominant tout le sujet, la croix helvétique, dont le rayonnement traversant les nuages, arrive jusqu'au camp.

Au revers, la glorieuse effigie de saint Georges terrassant le dragon surmontée de l'éloquente inscription:

"AUSPICIO MELIORIS AEVI"

Lady Rumbold, présidente et Miss Sawyer, Hon. Secr. de la Section anglaise du Bureau de secours avec la collaboration du général Hanbury Williams préparèrent les données relatives à la composition; c'est à un fabricant de la Chaux-de-Fonds, bien connu par ses nombreuses adaptations des œuvres de la glyptique contemporaine à l'ornementation des montres, M. Paul Ditisheim, Holder of the Kew Record, que le comité britannique confia l'exécution de la médaille. M. Ditisheim remit à M. Jean David Hirschy, ancien élève de l'École des Beaux-Arts de Paris, collaborateur artistique de sa maison, le soin d'établir les maquettes; la frappe fut exécutée par les Frères Huguenin au Locle. La Victoire a fourni le bronze de la belle médaille dont nous venons de parler, tirée à soixante-quinze exemplaires.

Après lecture d'une dépêche de M. Balfour, Sir Horace Rumbold exprima dans son allocution, ses vifs remerciements à ceux qui ont mérité le droit de porter cet éloquent insigne. Pendant cette longue guerre, dit-il, leur action fut constamment inspirée par le noble sentiment du devoir envers les défenseurs de la Patrie et la grande loi d'humanité qui dirige la Croix-Rouge; le Ministre sut associer à son témoignage de gratitude diverses personnalités, ainsi que les autorités et les administrations suisses, qui voulurent bien assurer sans frais l'acheminement et l'expédition régulière des envois.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN PROVINCIAL PAPER MONEY IN THE WAR ZONE

By JAMES FAIRWEATHER MILNE.

The scarcity of ordinary legal tender in France and Belgium, as a result of the war, has induced numerous local bodies, both in the territory under our occupation and in that formerly occupied by the Germans, as well as elsewhere, to issue paper money, chiefly of small denomination. I append herewith a list I have compiled of varieties met with in the war zone during the past year, believing that it may prove useful to those who take up the collection and study of this form of currency. I have not attempted any detailed description of the notes, but merely give the facts necessary to the identification of varieties. As formerly pointed out in these pages by a numismatist out here, these local notes are generally met with in a very soiled and tattered condition, resulting from their constant use as small change.

This provincial war money (I concern myself only with paper money) is divisible into several classes, which, however, do not appear to be always sharply separated. One can distinguish, I think, notes issued by municipal and communal authorities of particular places, notes issued by syndicates comprising an amalgamation of such authorities, and notes issued by Chambers of Commerce and by private companies. In the list given I have attempted to show this distinction. Sometimes the responsibility for issue is divided, as in the case of the Arras 1 Franc note. "Bons garantis par la Ville (2/3) et par la Chambre de Commerce (1/3). This particular note bears the date of issue, 29th Aug., 1914 — a day or two before the German entry into the town — and like most others, bears the statement: "Remboursable dans un délai de 6 mois après la cessation des hostilités." The date of issue is not always given. In my list I have given the date of issue when possible, or if not, the date of the authorization of issue, which indeed more generally appears. The notes are sometimes officially franked by an impressed stamp (e.g. "Ville de Lille-Contrôle") or by a similar embossed arrangement. The design and colours of the notes are a matter for detailed treatment.

Naturally, the appended list is very fragmentary. When a complete list is compiled I am sure it will show thousands of varieties. In the list French and Belgian notes have been shown together. The Belgians have a large quantity of German paper money (Darlehens-kassenschein) for 1, 2, 5, 20, and 50 marks with perhaps other denominations, and there are also the notes of the Société générale de la Belgique. The rate of exchange imposed by the Germans was 1.25 Francs to 1 mark.

COINS OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

AUSTRALIA.

GEORGE V. 1910.

SOVEREIGN, 1911.

O. — Legend: — GEORGIUS V D.G. BRITT: OMN: REX
F.D. IND: IMP: Head and truncated neck of the King and Emperor in profile and looking to the left. On the truncation of the neck:

— B.M. (Bertram Mackennal). The hair on the head is parted. The whole within an ornamented rim.

VICTORIA I. 1837-1901.

The writer much regrets that the obverse of the Canadian silver Ten Cents bearing the effigy of Queen Victoria was incorrectly described in the "Numismatic Circular", Volume 25, Column 362. The correct description is as follows : —

TEN CENTS, 1858.

O. — Upper legend : — VICTORIA DEI GRATIA REGINA. Lower legend : — CANADA. Head and truncated neck of the Queen in profile, and looking to the left. Her Majesty is wearing a wreath of laurel partly hidden by the thick wavy hair, which is parted on the forehead, a portion being plaited, carried below the ear, and over the lower part of the wreath, and collected into a knot, with a curl hanging, behind the head. The hair at the nape of the neck is long, fine, and wavy. The laurel wreath has twelve leaves and eight berries. The veins in the laurel leaves are single lines in relief. From the top of the head the laurel leaves are arranged in the following order : — 1 + 1 + 3 + 2 + 3 + 2, and the berries as follows : — 2 + 2 + 2 + 2. The whole within an ornamented rim.

NOTES.

1. — Many whimsical verses have been written on Saint George, as the slayer of

A dragon great and grimme,
Full of fyre and eke venymine !

Aubrey the chronicler was a witty sceptic when he wrote : —

To save a mayd Saint George the dragon slew,
A pretty tale, if all is told be true;
Some say there are no dragons, and 'tis sayd
There was no Saint; pray God there was a mayd !

Another quaint rhyme (of which the Liquor Control Board, London, would approve) is on the signboard of the George and Dragon, in Great Budworth, Cheshire : —

As Saint George in armed array,
Doth the fiery dragon slay,
So may'st thou, with might no less,
Slay that dragon — drunkenness !

2. — The pitcher plant is one of the freaks of plant life. It grows in swampy lands. The flowers, touched with beautiful, delicate tints, are prized for decorative purposes. But the wonder of the pitcher plant is its leaves. They are green, water-holding pitchers beautifully veined with red and purple, with considerable variation in form. During rainfalls they are filled with water. This largely evaporates, leaving the receptacle half full. Externally these cups are smooth, while internally they are lined with fine bristles pointing downward. There is also a sticky, sugary sort of semi-fluid substance to be found around the inner margin of the bowl or pitcher. This arrangement not only attracts a large number of tiny insects, but they are so eager to feed on the sugary substance that not a few tumble into the water below and die there. "They cannot fly out, for the lines of flight would be practically vertical", says Dr. R. W. Shufeldt "while hundreds of little bristles confronting them prevent escape over the surface by walking out. Many believe that the plant, through its leaves, absorbs the digestive parts of these insects, and that they thus contribute to its nutrition; in other words, that the pitcher plant to this extent is one of the carnivores of the vegetable kingdom".

HENRY GARSIDE.

THE N. F. COINAGE.

The following article makes no pretension to solve the problem presented by the N. F. coinage of the Constantine period, but is written solely in the hope of calling forth fresh light upon the many obscurities involved.

The coins comprising the N. F. coinage are four in number and may be described as follows : —

1. Helena. Obv. HELENA N. F. Bust of woman of mature years to r. wearing her hair brought back, from possibly a central parting, and tied in a simple knot behind the head.

R. A star within a broad laurel wreath; sometimes with the mint mark of Thessalonica beneath the wreath but more often with no mint mark. Æ³.

2. Fausta. Obv. FAVSTA N. F. Head of young woman to r. with hair dressed in similar fashion to the last, but deeply waved.

R. As last. Æ³.

3. Fausta. Obv. FAVSTAE NOBILISSIMAE FEMINAE. Bust of youngish woman to l. with hair dressed similarly to last.

R. VENVS FELIX. Venus seated to l. holding globe and palm branch. Struck at Treves. R. quin.

4. Constantia. Obv. CONSTANTIA N. F. Bust of woman to r. with hair brought up in coil at back of head.

R. SOROR CONSTANTINI AVG around wreath in which is PIETAS PVBLICA in three lines. In ex. CONS B.

The wreath is similar to that on Nos 1 and 2 but not quite so broad. Æ³.

Although some of the leading numismatists have directed their attention to this coinage, the attribution of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 is still a matter of controversy and considerable uncertainty involves the date and circumstances under which the whole of the coins were issued.

The Helena coins have been given in turn to Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great; to Helena, the wife of his son Crispus; and to Helena, the wife of Julian the Apostate; while those of Fausta have been assigned to the wife of Constantine the Great, to the first wife of Constantius II, and to a supposed sister of Julian, who would, however, appear to be the same person as the first wife of Constantius II. Cohen attributes the N. F. Helena coins to the mother of Constantine, and those of Fausta to his empress and is followed in this country by Mr. Percy Webb in both of these attributions, and in France by M. Maurice in the latter only. The Rev. A. W. Hands, who has also written in this country, differs from all these authorities and assigns the Helena coins to the wife of Julian, and the Fausta to the sister of that emperor.

All numismatists would appear to be agreed in assigning, at any rate the first three coins, to the Constantine period, but some doubt seems to exist as to whether the fourth was not struck at a considerably later date. The coin, as far as I can discover, is known by the single example in the French Cabinet and from the illustration given in Cohen would not appear to be in a very fine state of preservation. M. Maurice goes so far as to fix the date of the issue of the Helena and Fausta coins between the years 323 and 324 A. D. but is he not a little too precise in his calculation?

For our present purpose it will suffice to accept the Constantine period as the period of issue without aspiring to greater precision.

The point which first presents itself for consideration is the title Nobilissima Femina and here we meet with a difficulty at the outset.

What is the exact value of the title and to whom was it reserved? We have no definite information on either of these points. The natural conjecture would be that the title Nobilissima Femina was the female equivalent of Nobilissimus Caesar and probably assumed by the wife of a Nobilissimus Caesar, but doubt is thrown upon this presumption by the existence of the coins and the apparent bestowal of the title upon ladies of Augustan rank gathered from references in the literature of the period. It may be that in this latter case the words are used merely as a courteous way of referring to a great personage, "the most noble lady," but on the coins I think we must take it as indicating the specific title of the Lady in whose honour they are struck, unless, and this may prove the solution of the problem, the coins are dedicatory and were struck at a later date. In this case it is conceivable that the title may have been used as in the literature and may simply mean that the coins were struck in memory of "the most noble lady Helena—or Fausta".

Mr. Webb thinks that the title Nobilissima Femina may have been granted to the mother and wife of Constantine prior to their elevation to the higher rank of Augusta, but the only evidence which can be adduced in support of this theory is that of the coins themselves, and as the attribution of these very coins is the point at issue the contention seems to me to beg the whole question.

The story of St. Helena is too well known to need repetition here. All that is necessary for us is to recall the fact that she was living in retirement as the repudiated mistress of his father when Constantine, having become master of his own destinies, recalled her from her seclusion and installed her at his court with the rank of Augusta, at the same time, as Theophanes tells us, according her the honour of having monies struck in her name. Both Mr Webb and M. Maurice lay stress upon the portraiture displayed on the coins, but with the greatest possible deference I venture to think that no reliance whatsoever can be placed on the features displayed on the coins of the Constantine period. True there is a sort of general resemblance to an accepted type — the Constantine the Great type we may call it — but the art of the period is quite inadequate to enable us to establish identities. Take for instance many of the coins of the two Constantines. In the absence of the legend it would be quite impossible to distinguish between father and son. The fact that in the Augustan series the portrait of Helena, an old lady of between 70 and 80 years of age, appears as a comparatively young woman seems to me to be sufficient to discredit any conclusion based on portraiture. But while there is nothing to be gained from the features, the manner in which the hair is dressed is of the greatest moment. On the N.F. coins of Helena we see a woman with her hair brought back from possibly a central parting and tied in a simple knot at the back of the head. On the Augustan coins, however, a far more elaborate mode is shown: the front is dressed in a succession of waves and on some examples the hair is carried back to the top of the head in a plait. The two methods are about as dissimilar as it is possible to conceive.

Turning now to the historic side of the question Helena was, as we have seen, raised to the rank of Augusta at the time that coins were ordered to be struck in her honour. There is no evidence that she was first accorded the title of Nobilissima Femina, nor does there appear any reason why she should have been. If, as Mr. Webb thinks, the title and the coins were a preliminary step towards the elevation to the higher rank and were of very short duration, we must assume that this old lady of seventy, with her notoriously Christian proclivities, suddenly abandoned her simplicity and adopted the elaborate fashions of the day and the plaiting of the hair which was anathema to the early Church. The evidence, so far as it goes, seems to me to be entirely against the attribution of the Helena N.F. coins to any issue struck during her life.

In the case of Fausta the difficulty is somewhat accentuated by the fact that the portrait on both the N.F. and Augustan coins is that of a young woman wearing her hair dressed in identical fashion. But the difficulty is more apparent than real. What could be more natural than that a Nobilissima Femina of the name of Fausta should adopt the fashion set by the young and beautiful empress of the same name?

Fausta Augusta was the daughter of the Emperor Maximian Hercules from whom Constantine received her hand with the title of Augustus. Is it likely under the circumstances that he should have issued coins in her honour bearing the inferior title Nobilissima Femina? As well might our own William III have issued a medal describing the wife through whom he acquired the throne as Princess of Wales!

If then, for the moment, we rule out the two Augustæ, to whom are we to assign the Helena and Fausta N.F. coins? The identity of the reverse type of Nos. 1 and 2 is so remarkable that we are forced to conclude that the two coins form a concurrent issue.

In pursuance of the next step in our investigation three conditions may be laid down. We want two imperial ladies of the Constantine period who:

1. Bore, or might conceivably have borne, the names Helena and Fausta.

2. Were living at the same time.

3. Might reasonably have been expected to have borne the title Nobilissima Femina.

Now to be as brief as possible there are no less than five ladies who fulfil some of these conditions, but no two of whom, so far as I can find, so comply with them all and other subsidiary requirements as to make their selection probable. First there is Helena, the wife of Crispus, then there are the two wives of Constantine II, neither of whose names has come down to us, then there is the first wife of Constantius II, whom we find named Fausta by some writers, though upon what authority I have been unable to discover, and finally there is Helena, the daughter of Constantine the Great and wife of Julian the Apostate.

M. Maurice, for reasons which space forbids me to enter into here, sees in the wife of Crispus the Helena of the N.F. coinage. He makes a strong point of the fact that the coins were issued at Thessalonica alone and pertinently asks why, if the coins were struck by Constantine in honour of his mother, he should have selected Thessalonica for the place of mintage? He then proceeds to show that there was a reason why Thessalonica should have been chosen if the coins were struck in honour of the wife of Crispus. Did the coin of Helena stand alone M. Maurice's case would be very strong, but unfortunately for his theory the sister coin of Fausta neutralizes his deductions.

Let us look at the dates. Crispus was born about 300 A.D. He was made Caesar on the 1st March 317 and was put to death in 326. Having regard to the circumstances attending his end there is little likelihood of a coin having been struck in honour of his wife after his death. Putting his marriage at the earliest at sixteen any coin issued in the name of his wife must have been issued between 316 and 326. In the absence of all knowledge of his wife, and having regard to what I have said about the unreliability of the portraiture of the period, it may be unwise to speculate as to the age of Helena, but the portrait on the coin would lead us to think that, if M. Maurice's attribution is correct, she must have been from fifteen to twenty years older than her husband which, considering his youth and position, was extremely unlikely.

But Helena, the wife of Crispus, complies with our conditions 1 and 3 and we have now to seek a Fausta who might have been a Nobilissima Femina living between 316 and 326. We have already disposed of the claims of the Augusta and the only possible candidate is a wife of Constantine II. But Constantine II was only born in 316 and by no stretch of imagination can we picture the lady shewn on the N.F. coins to have been his wife. To prove his theory M. Maurice has to tacitly admit the attribution of the Fausta coin to the Empress Fausta.

The next possibility which presents itself is a wife of Constantine II and the first wife of Constantius II. Constantine II was born, as we have seen, in 316 and was created Caesar the next year. He became Augustus in 337. Assuming, for the sake of argument, that he too married at the age of 16 we have the possibility of a Nobilissima Femina named Helena or Fausta between the years 332 and 337. We need not enter into the age of Constantius for we know that he married a sister of Gallus somewhere about the year 335 and that she was dead before the year 350. On the above hypothesis we have then, a period of about two years during which there may have been in existence two ladies who may have complied with our three conditions, namely a wife of Constantine II, whom we will call Helena, and the first wife of Constantius II, whom we have seen there would appear to be some ground for thinking was named Fausta. Against the attribution of the N.F. coins to these two princesses must be set the uncertainty regarding their names and the lack of reason for their issue at Thessalonica or Treves. Between the years 335 and 337 Constantine II was administering Gaul, Britain and Spain and Constantius II was in charge of Asia, Syria and Egypt. What could have occasioned the issue of coins in honour of their wives at Thessalonica and Treves?

There remains the possibility of the first wife of Constantius II between the years 335 and 337 and the Princess Helena, daughter of Constantine the Great and sister of Constantius. In this case it is necessary to assume that the title Nobilissima Femina was accorded to Helena by her father during her spinsterhood and the only support which the theory receives is the remarkable likeness to Constantine which the portrait on the Helena N.F. coinage presents. That she cannot have borne the title concurrently with the first wife of Constantius in right of her marriage to Julian is evident, for this event did not take place until 355, when the first wife of Constantius had been dead for at least five years.

Turning now to the reverse type of the coins, and leaving out of consideration nos. 3 and 4, concerning which the mystery is even more impenetrable than is that regarding nos. 1 and 2, we find that the star within the wreath in the form in which we see it on the N.F. coinage does not make its appearance in the imperial series until the time of Gallus and Julian. True we have stars and we have wreaths on the coins of Constantine the Great, but they differ materially from those on the N.F. coinage. The earliest example of the star within the wreath, as Mr. Forrer points out to me, is that of the little bronze coins of the POP. ROMANVS type, which were struck after the death of Constantine. Even here, however, the star differs entirely in character from that of the N.F. coins and the mint mark is contained within the wreath.

The wreath itself, too, deserves attention. It is apparently the subject of a gradual evolution from the narrow, tightly-knit wreath on the coins of Constantine. The earliest resemblance to the broad, loose wreath of the N.F. coins which I have yet discovered is on a silver medallion of Constans. Taking these facts into consideration, I think we are justified in questioning the accuracy of M. Maurice's date for the issue of the coins.

I am aware that in the above article I have laid myself open to the charge of being destructive without being constructive, but before closing I would venture to put forward the possibility of a solution being found in the N.F. coins having been dedicatory and struck late in the reign of Constantius II, when Christianity had gained the ascendancy in the state, to the memory of two noble ladies, the mother and the grand-mother of the Emperor? The star on the reverse and the absence of diadem on the obverse, coupled with the inscription NOBILISSIMAE FEMINAE, as we find it on the small silver coin, seem to me suggestive of such a theory.

SIR ARTHUR EVANS' GIFT TO THE BRITISH MUSEUM OF HIS FATHER'S FAMOUS COLLECTION OF EARLY BRITISH AND CELTIC COINS.

The Trustees of the British Museum have received from Sir Arthur Evans, P. S. A., F. R. S., F. B. A., the gift of the magnificent collection of ancient British and other Celtic coins which was made by his father, the late Sir John Evans, K. C. B. The collection, which numbers some 1,700 pieces, has long been famous and is undoubtedly the most complete of its kind in any cabinet, public or private, and it places the Museum collection, already strong, far in advance of any other in this department of national history and art. The donor's motives for his munificent gift are explained in the following letter to Mr. G. F. Hill, Keeper of the Department of Coins:—

"After these lean years, during which the British Museum has suffered from Government parsimony more than any national institution of the kind either among friends or foes, it is right that individuals should do what lies in their power to make up for these deprivations. As a personal contribution towards this end I am handing over to you, unconditionally, my father's unique collection of ancient British coins. To them I have added his Gaulish and Iberian series.

"I may say that, as regards the ultimate disposal of his ancient British collection, my father, realizing the claims that might weigh with me on another side, had left me absolute discretion. I feel, however, that in presenting the collection to your Department I am fulfilling his most intimate wishes. It is, moreover, a fitting tribute to his memory that it should be permanently connected with the Museum, to the welfare of which, as Trustee, he had so long and so actively devoted himself.

"My own researches, indeed, in the past, had partly covered the phase of our early history that this collection represents, and I have been able to add to it some specimens illustrating Celtic expansion in Eastern Europe. But, apart from preoccupations and interruptions caused by the war, my own work has been drawn into still earlier channels by my Cretan investigations. I cannot therefore any longer hesitate to transfer the collection to a place where it will be more readily available for other students. I am the more encouraged to hand it over to your own keeping from the high sense of the services which—true to the traditions of the Department of Coins and Medals—you have rendered to numismatic science, a branch of research that derives such special value from the precision that it imports into the study of history and art, but which has been strangely neglected in some of our seats of learning.

"I have felt too, that our National Museum had the highest claim to the possession of what, in fact, is an unique illustration of an interesting chapter of our 'island story'—the first satisfactory record of which, largely based on this collection, was indeed supplied by my father's work on 'The Coinage of the Ancient Britons'. How few realize that a century and a half before the Roman Conquest the early Belgic invaders had not only brought Britain within the range of classical influences, but had actually introduced a graduated coinage derived from that of Philip of Macedon. No one, certainly, who has not studied the numismatic evidence can have any idea of the extent to which, with 'the felt approach' of Imperial Rome, these influences had developed before the days of the Claudian Conquest. I do not expect that many of those acquainted with Shakespeare's Cymbeline realize that such a Prince actually existed in ancient Britain under not very different conditions of palace life and foreign relations, still less that he and his colleagues in the British predecessors of Colchester, St. Albans, and other towns were striking coins with finely-executed Greco-Roman types and Latin inscriptions. At the present time, indeed, these first advertisements of a British claim to enter the circle of civilized nations may have a certain interest even for those who are not archæologists. In the early Belgic issues on British soil, too, they may find a seasonable reminder of the permanence of the geographical ties that bind us to our Continental neighbours, which are still of such vital consequence to us after the lapse of over two millennia".

REVIEWS.

Sur une collection d'amulettes chinoises, par Raphaël Blanchard, Professeur à la Faculté de Médecine de Paris et Bui Van Quy, Médecin colonial de l'Université de Paris. Dessins de M^{lle} Gilberte Zaborowska.

Extrait de la Revue Anthropologique. Librairie Félix Alcan, 1918. Prof. Blanchard has had the kindness of sending us a copy of his most interesting and valuable monograph on Chinese amulets. It is really the description of a small collection of 53 specimens presenting 46 different types, divided into five groups. These charms, which circulate in China in the same way as coins, bear inscriptions expressing good wishes, magic devices or artistic compositions of a symbolical character.

Students will find much information in Prof. Blanchard's paper, which we warmly recommend to all interested in the subject.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

November 30th 1918. Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, R. A., F. S. A., President, in the Chair. Messrs. W. L. Craig, W. Batty Mapplebeck, R. Prasada, Philip Thorburn and William Greenell Wallace were elected Members of the Society.

The President reported applications for membership from Messrs. Ernest Charles Kocq and A. B. Triggs.

The Honorary Secretary, Mr. Earle Fox, read the Council's report, as follows:—

THE COUNCIL'S REPORT.

November 30th, 1918.

The Council has the honour to present its Fifteenth Annual Report to the Members.

It is of happy augury that our Annual Meeting should follow almost immediately on the victory of Great Britain and her Allies in the terrible war which has been waged for the last four and a half years. Air raids, darkened streets, and restrictions of traffic have adversely affected the attendance at our meetings during the past twelve months, but the Society has, nevertheless, successfully carried on its work, and, with the return of peace, may look forward to an era of increased prosperity.

The year which has elapsed has left our lists of Royal and honorary Members unchanged, but the Council has to report, with deep regret, the deaths of the following ordinary Members:

Frederick Henry Appleby.	Brownlow D. Knox.
Philip Berney-Ficklin.	W. Machado Maish.
Joseph Burton.	Arthur S. Napier.
Henry Champ.	Thurstan Collins Peter.
Nathan Heywood.

The number of resignations received during the year is 5. Eight new Members have been elected, namely:

W. L. Craig.	R. Prasada.
H. Hawkins.	Egbert Steinthal.
W. Batty Mapplebeck.	Philip Thorburn.
A. W. Poyser.	William Greenell Wallace.

Our roll therefore now stands as follows—

SUMMARY.

	Royal.	Honorary.	Ordinary.	Total.
November 30th, 1917..	17	9	381	407
Since elected.....	—	—	8	8
Deceased.....	17	9	389	415
Resigned.....	—	—	9	9
	—	—	5	5
	17	9	375	401

In spite, therefore, of the heavy death roll, the losses caused by the war, and the depressing effect of the trials which our country has undergone, there is a total falling off of but six members.

Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson, our President, has kept up his record by taking the chair at every one of our meetings, and, in spite of the limitations caused by war conditions, most interesting papers have been read and discussed, and important exhibits made in illustration of them. In this respect it is, perhaps, permissible to recall specially the wonderful collection of Naval Medals shown to us by the Marquess of Milford Haven, whose interesting paper will be printed in our next volume.

Volume XII of the Journal is at last in the hands of Members, and though necessarily reduced somewhat in size, contains much valuable matter. Miss Farquhar has again graciously contributed a coloured plate, which adorns her article on touchpieces. We have reason to hope that the requirements of the Government, which have so greatly checked the progress of our printers, will now be at an end, and, though owing to the greatly enhanced price of paper — to say nothing of the difficulty of obtaining supplies of the proper quality — the next volume will of necessity be a comparatively small one, we hope soon to return to our former dimensions and to make up the arrears, due to circumstances over which we have no control. Further, we shall now be able to re-enlist the services of highly valued contributors whose activities have been diverted from peaceful numismatic pursuits to the service of their country.

It is a matter of great regret to the Council that Mr. W. J. Andrew, who not only took a prominent part in the foundation of the Society, but has done so much, both as author and editor, to enhance the value of the Journal, should have found it necessary to resign his position at the beginning of the present year. The Council trust, however, that, with the return of peace, he will again be able to devote himself to numismatic work, and that a continuation of his masterly study of the coinage of Stephen will once more adorn the pages of our publication. On Mr. Andrew's resignation the post of honorary Secretary and Editor was offered to Mr. Earle Fox, who hopes to keep up the high standard which has characterised the Society's Journal from its commencement.

Last summer, when a proposal was made that the British Museum should be used as public offices, the Council prepared to join with other learned Societies in opposing the scheme, which, however, was fortunately abandoned by the authorities before any action had been taken. Since then it has decided to support representations in favour of a special coinage to commemorate a successful peace.

Our library has received a number of useful additions during the year, and we would call special attention to the rich series of casts of the great seals of England which has recently been purchased.

Our Vice-President, Mr. Sanford Saltus, to whose past generosity the Society owes so much, presented further sums, amounting to £150, to be devoted to the promotion of its objects, and we are confident that all numismatists will join us in expressing our thanks to one so devoted to their favourite science.

It cannot but be a matter of gratification to Mr. Saltus that Mr. L. A. Lawrence, to whom the gold medal given by him was this year awarded by the vote of the Society, should have, in the same year, been the recipient of the medal of the Royal Numismatic Society, and, by earning at once both these highly esteemed distinctions, should have brought honour not only upon himself, but also upon the two learned bodies of which he is so distinguished an ornament.

Mr. Hutchins, F.C.A., the Honorary Treasurer, will present his accounts, which, the Council thinks, will give great satisfaction to the Society, whose finances he has managed so ably through a time of great difficulty.

The thanks of the Society are due to Messrs. Beresford Smith and Edward Shepherd, for acting as Auditors, and to Messrs. L. L. Fletcher and Edward Shepherd for accepting the office of Scrutators of the ballots to be held to-night.

Lastly all will join in expressing their hearty thanks to Major Carlyon-Britton—whom we rejoice to see amongst us again—and to Mr. Lumb, for their kindness in continuing to place the rooms at 43, Bedford Square, at the free use of the Society.

On the motion of Mr. Dale, seconded by Miss Farquhar, the report was unanimously adopted, and a vote of thanks to Major Carlyon-Britton and Mr. Lumb was carried by acclamation.

Printed copies of the audited Balance Sheet having been distributed, Mr. A. C. Hutchins, as Honorary Treasurer, made his annual report, which was adopted, and a cordial vote of thanks to him for his great services to the Society was proposed by Major Carlyon-Britton, seconded by Mr. Parsons, and carried unanimously.

THE BALLOTS.

Messrs. L. L. Fletcher and William Shepherd having been appointed Scrutators, the ballot was taken, and they announced the results as follows:—

That the Members nominated by the Council had been elected, namely:—

OFFICERS AND COUNCIL—SESSION 1919.

Edgar Rogers, M.A.; Edward Shepherd; J. S. Shirley-Fox; W. Beresford Smith; H. W. Taffs; W. B. Thorpe; Fleet-Surgeon A. E. Weightman, R.N., O.B.E., F.S.A.

Paper.

Mr. W. Longman read a paper on seventeenth century tokens of Hertfordshire. Basing his arguments mainly on Parochial Registers, Hearth Tax Returns and Sessions Rolls, Mr. Longman gave reasons for reconsidering the allocation of certain tokens connected with that county. Among tokens hitherto attributed to Hertfordshire he assigned Williamson Nos. 88 and 89 to Hatfield Broad Oak, Essex; No. 180 to Sabs Key, London; and No. 184 to Shenley, Buckinghamshire. On the other hand, he claimed for Hertfordshire, Essex No. 296, Somerset Nos. 291 and 312 and Suffolk No. 300.

Certain tokens, which appear under more than one county in Williamson, were located as follows:—Herts No. 76 (= London 624), Herts Nos. 140 and 141 (= London 1876, 1877, 1878) were all claimed for Hertfordshire; Herts No. 201 (= Essex 326) was transferred to Leicestershire, and, of the tokens of Pirton or Purton, Nos. 147 and 148 (= Wiltshire 156, 157) appeared to belong to Hertfordshire and No. 150 to Wiltshire. The existence of Herts Nos. 146 and 149 appeared open to some doubt.

The following pieces were probably rightly attributed to Hertfordshire, but, as no evidence had been secured, some might belong to other counties: Herts No. 145 (= Middlesex 158, 159); Herts No. 169 (= Wilts 163); and Herts Nos. 19, 133, 170, 189.

Exhibitions.

Of seventeenth-century tokens: —

By Mr. William Dale. — Tokens of Andover, Bishops Waltham, Romsey, Southampton, and Winchester.

By Mr. Lionel L. Fletcher. — Twelve Irish tokens, including the following unpublished pieces: Kinsale farthing, of 1659; Milltown Pass, of George Dowdall; Shrule, of Patrick Lynch, the only County Mayo token known.

By Mr. L. A. Lawrence. — Farthing of William Rigby, of Corby, dated 1658, and halfpenny of William, IN WH[IT]EHALL, dated 1666, both unpublished.

By Mr. W. Longman. — In illustration of his paper, tokens of Barley, Kimpton, Market Street, Shenley and Stevenage.

By Mr. H. W. Taffs. — A selection of tokens of unusual shapes, or in exceptionally fine condition.

Other exhibits: —

By Mr. F. A. Walters. — A penny of the Empress Matilda, from the Nottingham find, formerly in the Roth collection, reading, on the reverse, SAEMARCA, and attributable to the mint of Calne, in Wiltshire.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Society was held in the Municipal Museum, Doncaster on October 19th 1918 at 3 p.m., the President (Mr. G. L. Shackles, F.R.N.S.) in the chair. Mr. Alderman Spence, on behalf of the corporation, gave a hearty welcome to the Society on its first visit to the town of Doncaster.

Dr H. H. Corbett described a large number of interesting coins from the Museum Cabinets. These included the remains of three local hoards of late Roman 3rd brass from Campsmount Park, Nr. Askern, a hoard of Denarii from near Cadeby besides a number of 1st brass and Denarii which had been recently presented to the Museum; also a number of Doncaster & Pontefract 17th Century tokens and others of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Mr. W. Sykes read a paper on "Wood's Irish Copper Coins". William Wood, English Ironmaster, was born at Wolverhampton in 1671. He owned iron and copper mines in the West of England and is said to have held mining rights in 39 counties in England and Wales. In 1722 Irish industry was hampered by a scarcity of small copper currency and it was to Wood that a patent was granted on payment of £ 10,000 to coin copper halfpence and farthings for Ireland. Though Wood's coins were infinitely better than the counterfeit "raps" which were in common circulation in Ireland at the time, they were much poorer in quality than the corresponding English coins. The copper money to be coined was equal in nominal value to £ 108,000, each pound of copper of a bullion value of one shilling was to be coined into halfpence and farthings of the face value of half-a-crown. Furthermore the amount to be issued was far in excess of the country's requirements seeing that the whole circulating medium of Ireland at the time was only £ 400,000. In these circumstances the utmost amount of copper money required would be £ 15,000. It was not however the financial but the political aspect of the scheme which aroused popular indignation. In 1724 Dean Swift resolved to come forward on the popular side — assuming the character of M. B., a Dublin draper or "Drapier", he attacked the scheme in a series of virulent pamphlets — the famous "Drapier's Letters". These brought down the storm which the Irish Parliament had invoked and the patent had to be surrendered (1725), Wood receiving a pension of £ 3,000 for eight years in compensation.

Mr. Sykes fully acknowledged his indebtedness to the valuable works of Nelson and Moriarty in the preparation of his paper. Mr. Sykes showed an interesting collection of Wood's coins (which was augmented by others from the cabinets of Messrs. Pickersgill & Brigg) in illustration of his paper.

The Hon. Sec. read a paper on "Coins as an aid to the teaching of history in the lower forms, together with remarks on School Museums".

Mr. T. Sheppard, M.Sc., F.S.A. (Scot.) exhibited 21 out of the 23 known tokens of Doncaster issued between 1660 & 1670, some of which are exceedingly rare. Examples of the two other pieces were shown by Dr Corbett and Mr. W. T. Freemantle.

This is probably the first occasion on which all the Doncaster 17th century tokens have been shown together.

Mr. Sheppard also showed a token of Robert Malbie of Bawtry (1664).

In addition to a fine series of Doncaster 17th century tokens, Mr. Freemantle exhibited a complete series of 19th century silver tokens of Doncaster together with two silver tickets inscribed, "New Betting Rooms, Doncaster, established 1800."

Mr. W. Sykes also showed a series of the Doncaster silver tokens and gave a full account of the Otho de Tilli cross (a Doncaster landmark) which is figured on the obverse of Birkinshaw's shilling Doncaster token. He also exhibited Birkinshaw's Penny token of 1812 and an exceedingly rare uniface ticket of the Yorkshire Miners' Association, Aldwarke No. 1.

Mr. T. Pickersgill showed English halfpence & farthings of George I including the "dump" varieties of both values; also a medal issued to commemorate the Bombardment of Ostend and Zeebrugge.

Mr. M. A. Brigg sent for exhibition two 17th century tokens of Stamford, Lincs.

Mr. W. Denison Roebuck, M.Sc., F.L.S. sent for exhibition a book printed in Amsterdam (1685) being an account of the Religion, camp construction, Military Discipline and Baths of the Romans profusely illustrated by engravings taken from coins and inscribed stones.

Messrs. Pickersgill and Firth described a collection of coins and tokens issued as money of necessity during the present war also the new silver and nickel money of Egypt as a British Protectorate.

Cordial votes of thanks were given to Alderman Spence and the Doncaster Art Gallery & Museum committee for their kindness in entertaining the members and to Dr Corbett for his kindness in making the local arrangements.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The September Meeting of the above Society was held on Wednesday, the 25th of the month in the Society's new room, Education Buildings, Bridge and Loftus Streets, Sydney, kindly granted for the holding of the monthly meetings by the Hon. A. G. F. James, Minister of Education. The chair was taken by the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott.

After the formal business and correspondence (chiefly relating to the granting of the new meeting room) the President called upon Mr. W. G. Rendall to read his paper entitled "Notes on the currency of Japan" which was well received giving rise to a very animated discussion in which Messrs. B. R. Moser and Herbert Priestley recounted some pertinent experiences and observations made while travelling in the East.

The consensus of opinion seemed to be that although the intellectual cleavage between East and West is absolute and definite yet that if Japan is to gain and hold her place as a modern first rate power she will have to sink her language at least and adopt a Western one which is bound to be English, all indications pointing to that language being the future universal tongue, for it is the only language that can assimilate new words and phrases from other languages found necessary to express foreign concepts and researches without detriment to its own structural character and force.

A very representative exhibit of Coins of Japan was furnished from the cabinets of Dr. Abbott and Mr. Priestley and a visitor, Mr. Miyata, Tutor in Japanese to the Boys' High School, North Probably struck in the East, though rather of Greek than Asiatic work. The rev. subject may have been chosen by Caesar to show the early connection of his family with the East. His watchword at Pharsalus, as well as at Munda in Spain, was Venus Victrix. B.M.C., II, 469.

 70015 — (Circ. B.C. 45). Æ. Obv. Bust of Venus r., diad. and with necklace of pendants; behind her neck, Cupid. ℞. Trophy of Gaulish and Spanish arms; composed of helmet and cuirass, two oval shields, two spears, two trumpets; at l. Hispania seated in attitude of grief; at r., a Gaul seated, his hands tied behind him; in exergue, CAESAR. B., 11. V. F. » 4 »
 Probably struck in Spain, perhaps at Corduba, which surrendered to Caesar soon after the battle of Munda. B.M.C., II, 369.
 70016 — (Circ. B.C. 46). Æ. Obv. Head of Ceres to r. wearing corn-wreath; before, DICT. ITER: behind, COS. TERT. B., 26. F. D. C. » 7 6
 70020 — Æ. Similar. V. F. » 5 »
 Struck at Rome soon after Caesar's arrival after the flight of Pompey; issued in gold and silver for special distribution to the army, the record of nine years' struggle in Gaul. The number 52 probably indicates Caesar's age. B.M.C., I, 507.

JUNIA.

- 70021 M. Junius Silanus (B.C. 174). Obv. Head of Roma r. wearing winged helmet; behind, ass's head; before, x. ℞. The Dioscuri galloping r.; below horses, M IVNI; exergue, ROMA. B., 8. V. F. » 5 »
 70022 — Æ. Similar. V. F. » 4 »
 70023 D. Junius Silanus L. f. (B.C. 89). Æ. Obv. Bust of Roma to r.; behind, c. ℞. [D]. SILANVS L. F.—ROMA. Victory in biga galloping r., above, XVIII. B., 15. V. F. » 3 6

 70027 — Æ. Similar; letter on obv., A; number on rev., VIII. F. » 2 »
 70028 — Æ. Obv. Mask of Silenus crowned with pine-branches to r.; below, plough; the whole within an ornamented torque. ℞. Victory in biga galloping r. holding whip and palm-branch; below horses, carnyx; exergue, [D] SILANVS [L F]. B., 19. V. F. » 5 »
 70029 D. Postumius Albinus Bruti f. (B.C. 43). Æ. Obv. Head of Pietas to r., with earring in shape of cross, and necklace; hair collected into knot behind, one lock falling down her neck; behind, PIETAS. ℞. Two right hands joined holding winged caduceus; below, ALBINVS BRVTI F. B., 25. V. F. » 3 »
 The head of Pietas and the clasped hands denote the good feeling which existed between Caesar and the citizens of Rome, and in the caduceus may be seen a reference to the special distributions of corn which took place in B.C. 49, as Caesar had practically to feed the population of the capital since all the revenues of the East were in the hands of Pompey. It was probably to meet this special outlay that these coins were struck. B.M.C., I, 508.
 70030 Q. Caepio Brutus († B.C. 42). Æ. Obv. BRVTVS. Head to r.

- bearded, of L. Junius Brutus, the Ancient. ℞. AHALA. Head to r., bearded, of Servilius Ahala. B., 30. E. F. » 10 »
 70031 — Æ. Similar. V. F. » 7 6
 70033 — Æ. Similar. V. F. » 5 »
 The type traces the descent of Brutus from the consul of B.C. 509 and points also to his connection through his mother with the Servilia gens, which claimed as an ancestor, C. Servilius Ahala, who in B.C. 439, when master of the horse, slew Spurius Maclius on the ground that he was plotting against the state; an act quoted as an example of ancient heroism. B.M.C., 480.
 70034 — Æ. Obv. LIBERTAS. Diad. bust of Liberty to r. ℞. BRVTVS. L. Junius Brutus, the Elder, advancing to l., between two lictors, and preceded by a herald or accensus. B., 31. F. D. C. » 7 6
 70035 — Æ. Another, similar. V. F. » 5 »
 The type is intended to recall the expulsion of the Tarquins from Rome by Lucius Junius Brutus, who was consul in B.C. 509, and who was first to bear the cognomen Brutus. B.M.C., I, 480.
 70036 — Æ. Quinarius. Obv. Diademed head of Libertas to r.; before, LEIBERTAS. ℞. Anchor and stem of prow in saltire. B., 33. R. V. F. » 10 »
 70037 — Æ. Obv. Head of Libertas r.; before [LEI]BERTAS. ℞. A lyre between a plectrum and a laurel-branch tied with fillet around, CAE[PIO BRVTVS] PRO COS. B., 34. R. V. F. » 10 »
 Broken edge.

LICINIA.

- 70038 C. Licinius L. f. Macer (B.C. 82). Æ. Obv. Youthful bust of Vejovis, diad., turned to l. and seen from the back, hurling a sheaf of arrows (? thunderbolt). ℞. C. LICINIVS L. F. MACER. Pallas in quadriga galloping r., holding a shield and a spear. B., 16. E. F. » 7 6

THE LATE FIELD-MARSHAL EARL KITCHENER K.G.
BRONZE BUST BY R. BELT, Sc.

This work was executed by Mr. Richard Belt, and presented by him to the National Memorial Fund. Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra, President, has taken the greatest interest in it. The cannon which was used for the casting was presented by the Army Council. The Bust was exhibited in the Royal Academy in 1917. Placed on the Dais at the Royal Albert Hall at the commemoration of those who fell in the first seven Divisions — also placed by the side of the Prime Minister at the Queen's Hall when speaking at the great inaugural meeting of the Anniversary of the declaration of War, 1917. The work now stands on the Grand staircase at the War Office. At the unveiling Mr. Belt said that he did the work that future generations should know the features of the great soldier, at whose call the free men of the Empire left these shores to fight and die for the oppressed, humanity, and for justice.

Sir Reginald Brade warmly congratulated the Sculptor on the excellency of the likeness and stated there was no more fitting site for it than the Office in which Lord Kitchener performed his crowning work.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF MEDALLISTS

Coin, Gem, and Seal Engravers, Ancient and Modern,
with References to their Works.

Most of the previous articles have been revised and republished in the "Biographical Dictionary of Medallists". The references to that work in these supplementary articles will be indicated by the letters "B.D.M." together with the number of the volume and its page.

HAMERANI, OTTO (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 404). By this Engraver are also: Clement XIII., Medal of the Academy of St. Luke at Rome (reproduced in Num. Chron., Pl. XI, 1904); — Pope Benedict XIV, 1755, to commemorate the Concordat between Charles of Bourbon, king of the Two-Sicilies and the Holy See; — 1730. Clement XII.; ℞. RECTIS CORDE LAETITIA, Æ 32 mill., etc.

HAMERLITZ, M. D. (Germ.). Two medals of Jacob Maximilian, Count Thun, bishop of Gurk (1709-1741) are signed by this Engraver, and dated 1729.

HAMILTON, CECIL (Brit.). Contemporary Gem-engraver. Exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1916, a shell cameo, with portrait of Maie, daughter of — de Beer, Esq.

HAMILTON, LILIAN. V. (Mrs. VEREKER HAMILTON) (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 409). Born in Surrey, 1865. Entered the Slade School, University College, London, in 1881, and studied there for five years under Professor Alphonse Legros. Exhibited medals first about 1888, was an Associate of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers, and exhibited etchings at the annual exhibitions for some years. Articles on Mrs. Vereker Hamilton's work have appeared in the Magazine of Art, July 1901; the Ladies' Field, November 21, 1903; Spink's Numismatic Circular, June 1903; Spielman, "British Sculptors of To-day". She is represented in the Musée du Luxembourg and Le Petit Palais, Paris; the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, and in the Western Australia Museum and Art Gallery in Perth.

Mrs. Vereker Hamilton designed and made the gold medal in memory of Sir Henry Norman that is now given at Sandhurst twice a year and known as the "Norman Medal"; — the "Roberts Trophy" shield given by Field-Marshal Earl Roberts in 1908, and "Roberts Trophy" medals; — the "Solano Trophy" shield, given by Mr. E. Solano, in 1910; — the medal given by Her Majesty Queen Alexandra to the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs, and also the Jubilee Medal for the Ladies' College, Cheltenham, struck in silver and bronze in 1904.

She exhibited the following works at the New York International Medallion Exhibition, in March 1910: — The Rajah of Kapurthala. Obverse and reverse; — The Viscount Gort. Obverse and reverse; — John C. Davis, Lieut. R. N.; — Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood; — Miss Beale, principal of Ladies' College, Cheltenham; — M. E. Huth; — The Hon. Walter James; — Lady Hamilton; — Ian Hamilton; — Marjorie Hamilton; — Betty Hamilton; — Portrait medallion of a young girl; — Portrait medallion of a child; — Design for the Queen's Cup gold medal (Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs); — Trotting Camels; — Castle Midmar; — A Breton Peasant; — Fatma, a Bishareen Arab (Catalogue of the N. Y. Medallion Exhibition).

At the Salon of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts 1912, I saw a bronze medal by her.

By Mrs. Hamilton are further: The late Queen Isabel of Spain, 1904; — Field Marshal Lord Kitchener; — Lieut. John C. Davis, 1909.

This artist has exhibited at the Royal Academy from 1889, and among her medallion productions described in the R. A. Catalogue: 1889. Design for the reverse of the medal to be executed in bronze for the Slade School, University College; — 1890. H. H. the Rajah of Kapurthala; medal, bronze; — 1892. Colonel Ian Hamilton and John Dennistoun, Esq.; medals, bronze; — 1896. Case of medals; — 1897. Fatma; relief, bronze; — Three portrait medallions, bronze; — 1898. Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, V.C., G.C.B.; medallion, bronze; — 1899. Field Marshal Sir Donald Stewart, Bart., G.C.B.; medallion; — 1903. Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, G.C.B., etc.; medallion, bronze; — 1904. Miss Beale and Hon. Walter James; medallion, bronze.

HAMILTON, WILLIAM (Brit.). Mint-master at Edinburgh, 1545.

HAMMER, MICHAEL (Germ.). Mint-engraver at Munich, 1764.

HAN, HANS (Germ.). An advertising medal, dated 1577, with Royal shield of England on obv. and Tudor Rose on R. bears the Maker's name HANS HAN FORMENSNIER. Sir John Evans is of opinion that Han was probably a Dutch Engraver. I prefer to consider him as a Nuremberg artist. A Hieronymus or Andrew Formschneider was Modeller and Mint-engraver at Nuremberg, 1535-1542, and died in 1556.

HANKAMMER, HANS HEINRICH (Germ.). Mint-master to Count George August of Nassau-Idstein, 1692.

HANCOCK, JOHN GREGORY (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 410). There is in Messrs. Spink's Collection (1915) a Pattern Guinea in bronze uniface, head of George III., laureate, type of the Spade Guinea; signed: HANCOCK (probably unique). By him are further: — inscription four lines in wreath JUDICIOUS BRAVE AND GALLANT. Æ 40.

1797. John Jervis, Earl of St. Vincent, Admiral of the White. Reverse by Peter Kempson, Æ 48; — 1798. Sir I. Borlase Warren, Admiral of the Blue, Æ 48; — 1798. John Philip Kemble, English actor, Æ 52; — 1799. Joseph Sheppard Munden, English Comedian Æ 52; — 1799. William Pitt, Reverse inscription HE SERVES A PROSPEROUS NATION etc., etc. 1799 AGED 40, Æ 52. The same medal was used to commemorate his death, the inscription being changed to read HE SERVED A PROSPEROUS NATION etc., etc. DIED JANUARY 23, 1806; — Augustus Keppel, bust facing right. Rev.

HANDMANN, JOHANN JAKOB I. (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 415). Mint-engraver, Medallist, and Seal-engraver, died in 1786, and was buried on 13. June of that year. In 1748 he had been elected a member of the Gross Rath. By him are a large number of coins and medals, which show chiefly a view of Basle from the Rhine, the Basilea, and other allegorical figures. Cf. Brun, Schweizer. Künstler-Lexikon.

The following coins are signed H., or IH., IHM., or also HM: Ducat 1743 (Ewig 104 and 105); Double Thaler of 1740 (E. p. 116 a), 1741 (E. 132) and 1762 (E. p. 116 b); Thaler of 1741, 1756 (2 var.), 1765 (2 var.) and 1785 (E. 202, 203, 204, 205 and 206, 207); Half Thaler of 1741 (4 var.), 1757 (2 var.), 1765 (2 var.), 1785, 1786 (E. 286 to 289, 290 and 291, 292 and 293, 296, 297); Third-Thaler 1766 (E. 359 to 361); Quarter Thaler 1740 (E. 363 and 364), most of which coins including strikes in gold are found in the Historical Museum of Basle. The Presentation medals of 1769 with a cube on R. (E. 757 to 760), are signed HANDM., as also those of 1770 with Mercury and Minerva on R. (E. 761 and 765), Cf. M. A. Ruegg-Karlen, Basler Münzmeister, Stempelschneider und Medailleure, Rev. suisse de num., 1915.

HASEGAWA, J. (Jap.). Director of the Mint at Osaka, appointed in 1893, and still in office in 1909.

HASEROTH, MAX (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 438). This artist has also cut gems: 1882. Diane enchanteresse, carnelian intaglio; — 1883. La Source, after Guay, intaglio in natural carnelian; — 1884. Portrait of M. M, cameo; — 80th Anniversary of the Duke of Saxe-Altenburg "Herzog Ernst Medaille", 1904.

The following works were exhibited by him at the New York International Medallic Exhibition, March 1910: Brooch in rock-crystal set in diamonds; — Seal with head cut in amethyst; — Seal with portrait-head cut in beryl; — Portrait of our boys (design for watch case).

HASSE, GOTTFRIED (Germ.). Die-cutter at Wernigerode 1674.

HASTIVEAU, RAOULIN (French). Mint-engraver at Bourges, 1421-1429.

HATFIELD, H. C. (Brit.). This Sculptor exhibited at the Society of Arts' competition, 1867, a panel, in bronze, chased, representing a group of the Virgin and Child (after Donatello), which is now in the Victoria and Albert Museum.

HATTEM, JEAN VAN (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 439). Appointed Engraver (graveur particulier) at the Brussels Mint, in succession to Pierre Meulemans, 8. March 1672. Three months later, on 29. May, he was named Engraver-general of H.M.'s coins in place of Michel van Thielt, who had just died, but he did not enter into his new office before 14. January 1673. M. de Witte, from whom these details are culled (Jean van Hattem, graveur bruxellois de Monnaies et de Jetons, Revue belge de numismatique, 1914) remarks that, although previously but one Engraver-general existed for the Spanish Netherlands, the government did not wait for the decease of Van Hattem to appoint, on 3. August 1686, Philip Roettiers as First Engraver-general. Van Hattem left the Mint on 21. September 1691. Between 1672 and 1691 the following denominations were coined at Brussels, the dies for which were prepared by this Engraver: A. Double Sovereigns, Sovereigns; — AR. Ducatoons, Half Ducatoons, Patagons, Half Patagons, and Sols; Æ. Liards and Gigots. These coins form a veritable iconographic series of Charles II of Spain.

Beside the fine jeton already mentioned with the arms of Jacques Pipenpoy, and dated 1672, M. A. de Witte describes the following: Jeton of the same, 1675; signed: H. F.; — Jeton of the Franc of Bruges, 1686; similarly signed: — 1674. Jeton of Jacques Pipenpoy; — 1675. Jeton of Philippe-Godefroy Van de Wouwere; — 1676. Jeton of J. L. Madoets; — 1677. Jeton of Jean Lools; — 1678. Jeton of Jean Heymans; — 1679. Jeton of Philippe-Godefroid Van de Wouwere; — 1680. Jeton of Jean Heymans; — 1681. The same; — 1682. Jeton of Georges-Ignace van Eesbeke, dit vander Haegen; — 1683. Jeton of Theodore d'Elshout, dit van Heusden; — 1684. Jeton of Jean Heymans; — 1685. The same; 1686. Jeton of Guillaume van Hamme; — 1687. Jeton of Jacques Madoets.

It is not certain whether Jean van Hattem ever engraved any medals. A certain Gabriel Grupello was paid on 1. January 1684 48 livres for a Portrait-medal of Charles II. As Grupello was a sculptor incapable of die-sinking and Van Hattem was his friend, it is surmised that the latter engraved the steel dies from a probable model by Grupello. It is however known that the artist executed a number of Pilgrims' badges.

M. de Witte has devoted to Jean Van Hattem a very full monograph, accompanied by numerous contemporary Mint Records.

HAUBINGER (Germ.). Gem-engraver, who was working at Rome, circa 1790. His signature occurs on an onyx intaglio, representing a Roman head.

H. C. (Brit.). The copper farthings struck for circulation in Antigua and dated 1836 bear these letters on the obverse. They are the initials of Hannay and Colart, merchants, who issued them.

H. C. BR. (Germ.). These initials occur on a medal of the Reichstag at Ratisbon, 1641, with bust of Ferdinand III.

HEATON, RALPH (THE MINT BIRMINGHAM LIM^o) (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 446). This firm produced also: South African and International Exhibition at Kimberley, 1892; — New Bronze Coinage of George V. 1912 (part of the issue was struck at Birmingham, and bears the distinctive mark H in exergue).

HEBENSTREIT, STEFAN ANTON (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 446). Born at Kremnitz; Mint-engraver at Nagybanja, died in 1773.

HÉBERT, LOUIS PHILIPPE (Canad.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist; son of Théophile Hébert, and Julia Bourgeois, born at

Ste. Sophie d'Halifax, Megantic County, Que., in 1850. He studied modelling with Napoléon Bourassa of Montreal, and also in Paris. In 1883 he was elected a member of the Royal Canadian Academy, having designed and executed the Maisonneuve Monument, besides others in Montreal and throughout the Province. His first attempt in the medal line was that struck in 1900 for J. Israel Tarte, which while somewhat crude, especially in the design of the reverse, shows flashes of the art by which he produced the masterpiece described below, the Lieutenant Governor Leblanc Medal, 1915 :

Obv. P E LEBLANC LIEUTENANT GOUVERNEUR DU QUÉBEC. Bust of the Lieutenant Governor to the right; behind the bust, 1915. On the truncation, P. HEBERT.

Rv. A wreath of maple leaves to the right and laurel to the left. Size 50 mill.

"Hébert's second effort was the medal of Dr. W. Aeland Oronhyatekha, Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters (signed : P. HEBERT 1900). Hébert having made the delineation of the physical types of the aboriginal races of Canada his chief study, is most happy in his portrayal of Dr. Oronhyatekha, a full blood Mohawk Indian, born in the Reserve at Desronto, Ont."

HECKER (Germ.). Several gems of the middle of the eighteenth century are signed Hecker, but King suggests it is merely a misspelling of the name of PHILIPP CHRISTOPH BECKER (q. v.).

HEDLEY, PERCIVAL, M. F. (Brit.). Mr. Hedley is the grandson of the late Joseph H. Hedley, a former British Vice-Consul in Cairo, himself a landscape painter of no mean order, and whose brother, William, is mainly known for his construction of "Puffing Billy", the first locomotive ever built in England. His father, Professor Florance H. Hedley, of the Consular Academy in Vienna, distinguished himself likewise in the arts of painting and modelling, while his relatives on his mother's side were all noted sculptors, painters and architects. Small wonder, then, that the artistic element soon became manifest in young Percival, who, in fact, began modelling at the early age of four. He was apprenticed to the famous sculptor, Joseph Beyer, in whose studio he worked for four years. During the last year he entered the Academy of Fine Arts in Vienna, and passed the three years' course in one year under Prof. Hellmer for sculpture, and Prof. Niemann for architecture, and also attended the lectures on anatomy by Profs. Toldt and Dalla Rosa at the University, and lectures on pathology and demonstrations in surgery at the Hospital by the famous Prof. Billroth, the intimate friend of Johannes Brahms. Comparative zootomy under Bruehl and archæology under Bendorff formed likewise part of his studies at the University, and last, not least, the theory of music under Anton Bruckner, and musical history under Prof. Hanslick.

While still with his master he assisted in the sculpture of groups and statues for the new House of Parliament, the Town Hall, the Burgtheatre, the Art Galleries, the Natural History Museums, in short, almost all the monumental buildings which have sprung up in the Austrian Capital during the past three decades, and which give Vienna that distinctly artistic and modern appearance for which she is known and admired.

At the comparatively early age of eighteen he set up his own studio, and one of his first patrons was the Archduchess Marie Therese, sister-in-law of the Emperor Francis Joseph. He made a hit with the life-size bust of that Princess, which brought him many commissions from the Imperial house and members of the aristocracy.

About 1890 Mr. Hedley started on a prolonged journey through Italy, and on his return to Vienna was commissioned to create a number of busts of composers for the International Music Exhibition, and it was then and there that he first commenced his "Famous Musicians", a task to which he has ever since devoted most of his attention. It is an interesting fact that — if we dispense with those hideous German china busts which are a disgrace and an insult to refined taste — there is, with one or two notable exceptions, scarcely a plastic representation of any of our foremost composers and musicians.

At Vienna, and in the course of his travels, Mr. Hedley made the personal acquaintance of almost every contemporary musician of note, and most of them were added "in effigy" to his gallery. Many of these acquaintances ripened into warm friendships. For twelve years, in fact, up to the master's sad end, he remained in close touch with Brahms, and the portraits he did during this time are justly considered the best likenesses of the great composer.

In 1893 we find the artist again in Italy, this time as a painter. After his return, he took up his abode in Vienna, where, with the exception of a short sojourn in Munich, he remained until 1897, when he left that city — to start on a tramp through Europe for the purpose of painting a large number of landscapes, commissioned by a Fine Art Company in Austria. This pilgrimage was extended over a period of about two years, and ended, after another stay in his beloved Rome, in his settling for a time in England, to devote his time and energy to his country.

Since his return to England he has contributed to the Royal Academy, and most of the Provincial Art Galleries. His splendid bronze bust of Sir Edward Elgar was shown at the Royal Academy, and his plaque in silver of M^{me} Clara Butt — the very first specimen executed in this new style — has been acquired by the late King. His remarkably clever plaquette of Paderewski was purchased by the Belgian Government, and in connection with the present exhibition he has gained distinction through his charming design of the official Exhibition medal and stamp.

The plaques in oxidized silver constitute the latest achievement of the artist. He depicts his subject thoroughly after his own heart and his plaques show a variety of attitudes hitherto rarely seen in plastic art. There is no stiffness, no constraint, no posing. Although entirely free from conventionalism Hedley can hardly be styled a modern artist as "modernity" is understood nowadays, and though his portraits are essentially impressions, he is not an Impressionist; in fact, he belongs to no special creed; he is an artist, free and natural, with a characteristic style which is all his own.

It is interesting to note that all his latest creations, as for instance some of the Elgar portraits, the plaques of Dr. Richter, M^{me} Clara Butt, Arthur Nikisch, Miss Lily Elsie, Lewis Waller, Pélissier, etc., etc. were impressions fixed upon the mind and entirely reproduced from internal reflection. He very rarely requires "sittings", and even if he does ask his subjects to his studio he seldom works in their presence, merely contenting himself with a chat over a cup of tea, in order to study their character and peculiarities.

Portrait-medal of Dr Elgar, by Hedley.

It is this power of observation, and the unusual faculty of retaining the characteristics and details of the features, combined with the complete mastery over all technical difficulties, which lies at the bottom of his extraordinary success.

To repeat a recent remark of a well-known sculptor, "Hedley's plaques are veritable paintings", and indeed they give more the impression of pictures than sculptures.

The artist is now residing at les Avants-sur-Montreux (Switzerland).

THE N.F. COINAGE.

Mr. Hugh Goodacre's most interesting article on this subject in the Circular of March-April 1919, asks for and deserves comment. I venture to think that much of the obscurity which he points out arises from the fertile brains of the Antiquaries of the past, who, carried away by the desire of glorifying their possessions, indulged in obscure and doubtful attributions, and that, if we approach the subject by the road of actual fact, the mists will disperse as we advance.

Before considering those facts let me join issue with the statement that "no reliance whatsoever can be placed on the features displayed on the coins of the Constantine period". I do not find any mint in which the features of Constantine the Great are not easily distinguishable from those of his sons, if coins in fine condition only be compared. There was great family likeness between father and sons, and between the sons themselves, but the face of no son has the strong character or the well marked features of the father, and, in most cases, the difference in age is also discernible. There are occasional instances of moneyers' mistakes and of coins struck in outlying mints before an authentic portrait became available, but, in the immense majority of cases, the portraits of all the rulers of the Flavian House remain distinguishable at least until the introduction of the new style of treatment of the portraits which was introduced after the partition of the Empire.

Now let us see what historical and numismatic facts are available. The only Imperial lady bearing the name of Fausta mentioned in history is Flavia Maxima Fausta, the wife of Constantine the Great, who was put to death in A.D. 326 and of whom Julian writes that "her personal beauty and nobility of character were such that it would be hard to find her match among women". It is common ground among all parties to our controversy that the coins bearing her name, with the title of Augusta and the portrait of a beautiful woman, were issued by her husband, during her lifetime. The portrait on the coins inscribed FAVSTA N.F. is so exactly similar to that on the Augustan series that I obtained my first specimen in a miscellaneous lot of "3d brass" purchased at auction for a trifle, it having been overlooked by the other bidders. These coins are certainly of contemporary work, quite similar in fabric and style, and marked by the same exceptional method of hairdressing as those inscribed FLAV MAX FAVSTA AVG and I submit that it is in the highest degree improbable that any other imperial lady would have dared, or been permitted exactly to imitate the portrait of the Empress. There is no instance in the whole Imperial series of such an imitation, and we have the further difficulty of the incomparable beauty of the Empress. It seems, therefore as certain as anything can be of which we have no actual written evidence that the N.F. and Augustan series of Fausta were both issued in honour of the same lady, and within a very short space of time. We have no right to fly in the face of these facts to imagine another Fausta, of whose existence there is not a tittle of evidence.

Mr. Goodacre admits that he can find no authority for the allegation that the first wife of Constantius II was so named, and there is no such authority, except in the imagination of those of the earlier numismatists, who, having been pleased to attribute those coins to her, had to invent her existence.

I will deal with the selection of the particular title, N.F. below, and the only remaining question on this part of the subject is which of the two series was first issued. As to this we must consider the probabilities, having no historical record. Whatever was the value of the title N.F. it was certainly not higher than that of Augusta, and one would not therefore expect to find a lady who had once been distinguished on coins by the latter title afterwards bearing the former. But the reverse order of alteration is very probable, and, as we shall see later, it may have been likely to occur in the circumstances of this case.

We have historical record of three Imperial ladies named Helena, viz., Saint Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great, Helena, daughter of the Empress Fausta and wife of Julian the Philosopher, (of both of whom there is ample evidence) and Helena the wife of Crispus, whose existence we should not have guessed, but for the fact that the name of Helena is coupled with that of Crispus in the Theo-dosian Code, in a manner that leads to the conclusion that she was his wife. We are probably correct, therefore, in accepting her existence, subject to the qualification that she was a lady of so little public importance that she received no mention in the voluminous historical records of the period. Had her coins existed this could hardly have been so. At any rate she never attained to the rank of Augusta.

There is no possibility of attributing any coins bearing the title of Augusta to the wife of Julian, for she died while he was yet Caesar. His marriage was a political one, and took place in 355, when Julian was 24 years of age and his bride a good many years his senior. That Julian did not hold her in such special remembrance as would have induced him to issue a posthumous series of coins in her honour is apparent from the fact that his numerous writings which remain to us do not contain a single reference to her. Also the coins bear no indication that they were dedicated to a deceased person. The claims of the wife of Julian may therefore be dismissed on the merits, and they would in any case have been inadmissible, for the Augustan series of Helena and Fausta are certainly contemporary and closely connected. This is clear from the similarity of the workmanship of the two issues, and the point is clinched by the fact that specimens may be found on which the portrait of Helena Augusta was combined in error with the inscription of Fausta. There remains Saint Helena the mother of Constantine the Great, who was divorced by his father Chlorus, in order that he might make a political marriage with Theodora, and who continued in obscurity till, as Theophanes informs us, her son crowned her in the year 325, and accorded her the honour of having monies struck in her name. We are therefore on firm ground, with historical support, in attributing the Augustan series to her, an attribution which no modern numismatist denies, notwithstanding that most of the portraits in this series are those of a woman much less advanced in life than St. Helena then was. It is very satisfactory to find some coins, notably of the mint of Rome, which do shew her to be a lady of considerable age. We may take it that no lady has ever been depicted on her coins as in advance of her true age, but we know that many have been shewn as more youthful.

The attribution of the Augustan series of Helena to the mother of Constantine is therefore certain, and it may be noted that it is clear from the relative commonness of the pieces as compared to those of Fausta Augusta that it remained in issue after the death of Fausta, exactly as one would expect.

There remains only the series HELENA N.F. As we have seen that the Augustan series of the two empresses are most intimately connected, and, certainly in part, contemporary, so we find the like connection between the two N.F. series. They are alike in style and fabric; the reverse dies are absolutely identical, and, if we accept what has been said of the series of Fausta, then, Helena N.F. cannot have been any one but St. Helena. In this attribution the coins themselves come strongly to our aid for they shew the portrait of a lady much older than Helena the wife of Crispus could have been. Crispus was only 26 when he was put to death and his wife was, as Mr. Goodacre admits, probably younger. The lady depicted on some, at least, of the coins of Helena N.F. is fully twice his age. I venture to think therefore that the case for the attribution of the N.F. series to the Empresses Helena and Fausta is completely supported by the known facts.

I would wish to end my statement here, but Mr. Goodacre has endeavoured to put his views so fairly, and has so courteously invited criticism, that I feel I must go a little further. He urges against me the improbability that an "old lady of 70, with her notoriously Christian proclivities, suddenly abandoned her simplicity, and adopted the elaborate fashions of the day, and the plaiting of the hair, which was anathema to the early church". He has overlooked the fact that, as he himself tells us, the coins shew exactly the reverse. Those of HELENA N.F. depict a lady wearing her hair dressed with extreme plainness, almost unmatched on any Roman coin. It is brushed smoothly back, and wound into a ball at the nape of the neck, with a simplicity which could only be surpassed by allowing it to hang loose on the shoulders, and that, for numismatic purposes, would not have suggested simplicity at all. It is only on the Augustan series that decorative hairdressing is introduced, and no one can contend that Helena Augusta was not the Mother of Constantine. This argument therefore goes to support my case.

He makes another point with reference to the reverse type, a star within a wreath. He finds this type on a silver medallion of Constantine issued between 337-350, and on later pieces, and suggests that the N.F. series may have copied it, and should therefore be dated after its issue. But why should not Constantine and his successors have copied Helena? The reverse type on the N.F. coins was no doubt carefully designed and well executed, but so were their obverses, and they are of a style superior to the portraiture of the period after 337.

In fact it appears from a number of coins now before me that the wreath owed its precise character to the artistic treatment of the individual engraver rather than to any question of date. For instance the coins of Julian bear wreaths both narrow and tightly knit and broad and loose. Mr. Goodacre seems to infer that the type was specially Christian, and if so, what could be more likely than that it should be designed in honour of that most Christian lady, St. Helena, but in that case why did Julian use it so freely? The N.F. series, were special and exceptional, both in matter and manner, and, at whatever date you place them you have to explain the extraordinary divergence of the inscription from the ordinary practice of the Empire; but the earlier you can place these coins in the 4th century the more likely you are to be correct from the artistic point of view.

Also what event more easily carries the historical probability of such an issue than the elevation to honour of a lady, who, though the mother of an Emperor, had never before held greater rank than that of the wife (afterwards divorced) of a general? Mr. Goodacre considers that I "beg the whole question" by explaining why the selection of the title N.F. for the wife and mother of the Emperor was not unlikely, but, if I have made good the connection of the two series, then it is surely right that I should also remove what is after all but a superficial objection to my conclusion. He actually puts my contention more effectively than I did when he says that "the apparent bestowal of the title (N.F.) upon ladies of Augustan rank" may be "gathered from reference in the literature of the period". Surely we may conclude that the Emperor, wishing to issue a series of coins under exceptional circumstances, and to find a title which might be used both for his mother (not then Augusta) and his wife, selected the one title which, as Mr. Goodacre shews, was applicable and complimentary to both ladies, and could be used in accordance with the custom of the time.

It should not be forgotten that my view exactly accords with the chronology of M. Maurice, whose work is not haphazard but based on a most painstaking and judicious examination of the coinage and history, and has now been unquestioned for a good many years.

In reply to Mr. Goodacre's argument that it is unlikely that Constantine cast a slur on his wife by issuing coins in her honour bearing the inferior title N.F., I would point out first, that he allowed her to remain on the throne for some years without issuing any coin in her honour, and secondly, that he does appear to have treated her with somewhat less honour than his mother, in that her effigy on coins never bears the diadem, while that of Helena Augusta does.

The title N.F. is not officially used in Numismatics or history except on these coins, and there is no reason to conclude that it was derogatory even to an empress. The ground was all the clearer for an exceptional issue in that for 50 years the practice of issuing coins in honour of the ladies of the reigning house had fallen almost into desuetude.

It seems possible and almost probable that Constantine at first adopted the expedient of the N.F. inscription in the unusual circumstances of the case, but that it failed to satisfy the Imperial ladies or himself, and he very shortly abandoned it for the Augustan series, which continued down to the death of Fausta, and, as to Helena, still later. At least this is a reasonable surmise on a point on which history fails us.

To summarise: we find therefore that we have:

1. An Imperial lady, Helena, to whom the Augustan coins are certainly attributable.
2. The like fact as to Fausta.

3. No other ladies of either name known to have been numismatically honoured, or even, in the case of Fausta, to have existed.

4. Such intimate connection between the coins of the Augustan series as shews that they formed one issue.

5. The like connection between the coins inscribed N.F.

6. Identical portraits in the case of the two series of Fausta and some similarity between those of Helena.

7. A recorded historical event which certainly included the issue of one of the two series, and may well have led to the other.

8. A style of art and fabric consistent with the date so fixed.

9. Mr. Goodacre's admission that the title N.F. was not inapplicable to a lady of Augustan rank.

I submit therefore that we may safely leave Helena the wife of Julian, Helena, the probable wife of Crispus, and the other imaginary Helenae and Faustae in numismatic peace and obscurity and rest assured that we have correctly attributed the N.F. coins in accordance with the facts.

PERCY H. WEBB.

LA JUSTICE ET LA PAIX REVENUES SUR LA TERRE.

On parle étonnamment, en ce moment, de la Justice et de la Paix. Et l'on a bien raison. Rarement les hommes ont eu si belle occasion de promouvoir le culte de ces divinités bienfaisantes. Comme l'a dit récemment l'un de ceux qui gravitent autour du Congrès de la Paix, en une formule antithétique qu'aurait aimée Victor Hugo, l'amplitude de l'embrassement de ces sœurs divines est en raison directe de celle de l'embrasement dont nous avons eu le spectacle inouï et, qu'après cinq années d'horreur, nous espérons voir enfin s'apaiser et s'éteindre.

Les moyens de l'Humanité ont grandi, pour le Bien comme pour le Mal, pour la Concorde comme pour la Guerre. Si jamais on n'avait vu un luxe aussi « colossal » de moyens mis en œuvre pour la destruction, un tel appel aux ressources de la Science, de toutes les Sciences, pour s'entretenir, jamais non plus, l'Univers n'avait eu le spectacle d'une Ligue aussi formidable de puissances réparties sur toute la face de la Terre pour lutter contre le fléau et s'en rendre maître, jamais une telle aspiration aussi universelle vers une organisation protectrice, Ligue ou Société des Nations, vers un tel respect des besoins et des aspirations des Peuples; jamais ces nobles idées, ces conceptions généreuses n'avaient été prônées et mises en œuvre par des artisans aussi qualifiés pour les faire passer de la théorie dans la pratique. Ce ne sont plus de doux rêveurs désarmés, ou des utopistes, des abbés de Saint-Pierre ou des Cabet, qui les professent, mais des hommes d'action, des Souverains, des Chefs d'État, au premier rang desquels le chef étonnant de la grande et jeune République Américaine, Wilson « le Juste », dont la manière étonne et déconcerte tant de gens dans l'ancien monde, et même dans le nouveau, mais auquel on ne peut dénier, du moins, la largeur dans les vues, la suite dans les idées et une inlassable énergie dépensée pour assurer leur triomphe.

Est-ce à dire que la Justice et la Paix, revenues sur la Terre, y régneront désormais toujours? Peut-être conviendrait-il d'être plus modestes en nos espérances, si légitimes qu'elles puissent être, et de ne pas trop nous bercer d'illusions. Travaillons pour qu'elles y règnent très longtemps, le plus longtemps possible... et laissons faire aux dieux. Si nous en croyons les leçons du passé ce n'est pas la première fois qu'une immense espérance a traversé la terre, que l'orage dissipé, la tempête ayant pris fin, les hommes ont salué le retour des beaux jours, les croyant pour toujours installés, alors que, comme tout ici-bas, ils n'étaient encore que passagers.

Il est donc prudent de demeurer averti, prêt à tout événement et de répéter quelquefois le Caveant Consules.

Mais, d'autre part, l'illusion qui remplit les cœurs est féconde autant qu'elle est douce. Il ne serait pas bon de trop la combattre ou de l'affaiblir dans les âmes. C'est par la foi et l'espérance que se font les grandes choses et que, peu à peu, l'humanité s'approche d'un idéal que sa grandeur même est de toujours poursuivre au risque de ne jamais l'atteindre et le fixer.

Combien de fois déjà la pauvre Humanité
N'a-t-elle pas, sortant du cauchemar horrible,
Espéré qu'à jamais, pour la Postérité
Un semblable fléau ne serait plus possible !

L'âge d'or de la Paix, temps de félicité,
De concorde sacrée et de joie indicible
Lui semblait revenu pour une éternité
Installant à jamais la Justice paisible.

L'homme pécheur, absous sacramentellement,
Pense que, pour toujours, blanche sera son âme,
Puis, bientôt, il retourne à son vomissement.

Goutons notre bonheur sans éblouissement,
Heureux que, pour un temps, aient dominé la flamme,
La Justice et la Paix en leur embrassement.

Le but de cette courte étude est de fournir un groupement, que nous n'avons pas eu la prétention de faire complet, mais qui donne déjà un tableau suffisant des documents métalliques commémorant le retour parmi les hommes du règne de la Justice et mettant celle-ci en présence de sa sœur la Paix. Comme la plupart de ces pièces sont bien connues et que notre modeste travail ne peut valoir que par leur réunion nous nous bornerons à une énumération avec description sommaire.

On raconte (Encyclopediana, p. 3) que M. de Beauvrou, se trouvant un jour en présence d'une sculpture — vraisemblablement une médaille — représentant la Justice et la Paix s'embrassant (on a pu voir combien fréquemment et, à toute époque, cette scène touchante a été traitée), s'écria : « Voyez, comme elles s'embrassent, elles se baisent, elles se disent adieu pour ne se revoir jamais. » Le trait d'esprit n'était pas sans finesse, ni sans vérité dans le passé. Nous ne pouvons, en terminant, que souhaiter qu'à l'avenir soit, sinon éternelle, du moins très durable, la réconciliation qui, une fois de plus, s'accomplit sous nos yeux, WILSONE JUVANTE.

COINS OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

AUSTRALIA.

VICTORIA I. 1837-1901.

ADELAIDE INGOT.

The earliest authorised gold currency of Australia consisted of pieces of sheet-gold, stamped with official distinguishing marks, in the Government Assay Office, Adelaide, South Australia, in the year 1852. They were called "Adelaide Ingots" and made legally current by an Act passed by the Members of the Legislative Council of the Colony, and assented to by the Lieutenant Governor, Sir Henry Edward Fox Young, on the twenty eighth day of January, 1852.

The ingots were impressed on the face with a plain circle containing an inscription, in seven lines, the first being curved and the rest nearly horizontal and equidistant.

The specimen described was formerly in the possession of Messrs. Spink and Son, Limited, London, and is inscribed as follows : —

WEIGHT OF INGOT
OZ • DWT • GR
EQUIV^t WEIGHT
OZ • DWT • GR

Below the foregoing inscription a plain shield bearing the letters S.A (South Australia) surmounted by the Royal Crown. On the right of the shield 23 CARATS.

I have seen, similar ingots, but stamped with different particulars of weight.

Mr. Joshua Payne engraved the stamp. The numerals were movable so that the stamp could be used for impressing ingots differing in weight. Mr. Payne was appointed Die Sinker and Stamper on March 18th, 1852.

Similar coins but with the mint mark H (Heaton), omitted, are dated 1913 and 1914.

The Seal of Solomon also known as "The Interlaced Triangle" is according to "The Book of Talismans" by Mrs. Thomas and Kate Pavitt "another ancient talisman that has been universally used in every religion; but though it is said to have been the symbol by which the wise King ruled the Genii, it could not have originated with him, as its use dates back much further than the Jewish dispensation.

"As a talisman it was considered all-powerful, being the perfect sign of the Absolute, and was worn for protection against all casualties, dangers, and mischief, and to preserve its wearer from all evil.

"In its composition the triangle, with its apex upwards, symbolises good, and inverted, evil, the triangle with its apex up being typical of the Trinity that exists in all religions. In India, China, and Japan its three angles represent Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva, the Creator, Preserver, and Destroyer or Regenerator. In Egypt it represented Osiris, Isis, and Horus; and in the Christian Church the Holy Trinity. As a whole it stood for the elements of fire and spirit, composed of the three virtues, Love, Truth, and Wisdom. The triangle, with its apex downwards, represented the element of water, and typified the material world, or the three enemies of the soul—the World, the Flesh, and the Devil, and the Cardinal sins—Envy, Hatred and Malice.

"Therefore, the meaning of the two triangles interlaced is the triumph of spirit over matter, and at the commencement of our present civilisation was considered an all-powerful talisman, particularly when used with either a cross, the Hebrew 'Yod', or the "Crux ansata" in the centre."

These may be regarded as obsidional coins or siege pieces, as they were cast in Tabora, German East Africa, when the German authorities were unable to obtain supplies of the customary money from Germany. They represent a fictitious value and were to have been redeemed by the Government if the Germans had succeeded in winning the great war of 1914-1918.

I have been informed by several friends who took part in the campaign in German East Africa that the copper coins were manufactured from utensils commandeered from the natives and that the brass coins were made from cartridge cases.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The October Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 24th on the month, Mr. W. A. Gullick, Vice-President being in the chair.

The Society received a further donation from Mr. P. Larsen of four more coin trays for use at the meetings, a vote of thanks for which was recorded in the minutes.

After the general business Mr. W. A. Gullick read a paper entitled "The Knights of Malta" which was illustrated by coins of the Order of characteristic types and denominations, the copper coins from the collection of Mr. Henry E. Parkes. A silver 15 tari piece of Emmanuel Pinto (Mr. W. A. Gullick), also shewn. The paper proved most interesting and an instructive discussion followed.

Résumé of Mr. Gullick's paper.

The early history of the Order was traced from its first foundation at Jerusalem, as a hospital for poor and sick Latin pilgrims between 1014 A.D. and 1023 A.D. At the time of the capture of Jerusalem, in 1099 A.D. a hospital for either sex and two additional churches formed the establishment, the governing head being styled "Rector". Godfrey de Bouillon who was elected "Defender and Advocate of the Holy Sepulchre" after this, the tenth siege, of the city endowed the hospital with his Manor of Montboise in Brabant and this example caused such emulation that in the beginning of the 13th Century the hospitals were endowed with 19,000 manors. But Raymond du Puy was the real founder of this celebrated Order for he added a further vow "to bear arms in defence of religion" and the brethren thus developed into the famous "Knights of St. John". The purely Military Order of the Knights Templars, founded to protect the pilgrims to Jerusalem, by their growing jealousy and hostility to the Knights of St. John which terminated in a pitched battle in 1259 A.D. although terminating in favour of the latter, so weakened the Orders that they were forced to withdraw from the East to Europe. The Knights Hospitallers first retired to Cyprus from whence they removed to Rhodes in 1311 A.D. which they purchased and fortified and held until 1525 A.D. when it was taken by the Sultan Solyman and the Knights expelled. Then the wanderings of the Knights commenced, first to Candia, thence to Messina, to Civita Vecchia and finally to their last and most celebrated home at Malta from whence they derive their best-known name. One circumstance alone will prove their stern resistless valour for they were the only military power feared by the fierce and pitiless Moslem pirates of North Africa who carried torture and slavery, fire and sword to all the northern coasts of the Mediterranean. The author dwelt upon the history of the English "langue" to its revival and confirmation thereof in 1834. The medical activities of the Order were very fully treated of.

The Coinage so characteristic in its type, was then described special reference being made to the Copper pieces struck by La Valette and carrying a fictitious value which he issued to pay the artificers then building his new city of Valetta; and although he faithfully redeemed these numismatic IOU's yet the example was not lost on other grand masters who followed in his footsteps as regards the issuing of such pieces but consistently forgot to redeem them, thereby causing a loss to Britain of £16,000 when she took over the Island and reformed the currency. The works of Porter, Furse and Hazlitt were drawn upon many relevant extracts being given.

A specially fine photographic plate of coins illustrating the paper from the collections of Messrs. Henry E. Parkes and P. Larsen was exhibited by the author done by a special process, the coins themselves being also shewn thus adding additional interest to the paper.

Following the paper by Mr. Gullick was a monograph by Mr. A. W. Green on "the Iredale tokens", a useful contribution to Australian Numismatics.

Mr. Green's paper.

This paper, the first of a series of monographs on New South

Wales tokens was devoted to a consideration of those issued by Messrs. Iredale & Co. of Sydney.

The author gave a detailed history of this firm which had great influence on the economic life of the Colony chiefly due to the energy of the junior partner, Mr. Fredk. Lassetter. The firm is now known as F. Lassetter & Co. Ltd. and holds a first rank position among the Merchant Companies of Australia.

"When there was a shortage of Coin in the Colony in the early fifties Mr. Lassetter met the condition by the issue of copper tokens which had a large general circulation and were known as 'Lassetter pennies'. These were manufactured in England and imported in great numbers for the use of the Colonists. One shipment was lost in the wreck of the 'Dunbar' at Sydney Heads in August, 1857. The tokens were issued up to the time of prohibition of the use of private tokens in 1869 when they were redeemed by the firm and paid for in coin of the realm".

A detailed description of all known varieties was given.

An historically interesting exhibit of European coins dating from 1810-1815 followed, particularly noticeable among which were fine French and Italian Napoleonic coins (silver and copper) by Mr. H. E. Parkes; gold of the Napoleonic Kingdom of Italy by Mr. W. J. McNiell; fine specimens of English Bank tokens for 3/- and 1/6 and Irish Bank tokens for 10 d. and 5 d. of varying dates from the collections of Mr. Larsen and Mr. H. Priestley, and of the same period the very instructive silver and copper tokens of Britain, among the most interesting being from Mr. H. Priestley's collection. Flint penny (1813). Obv. View of Flint lead works; a Newark penny (1811). Obv. View of the Castle and a particularly interesting Bradford Workhouse penny. This was a Birmingham Union Copper Company's penny of 1812, countermarked BRADFORD/WORKHOUSE in two deeply-sunken curved ribands, and from Mr. H. E. Parkes' collection, The Sheffield penny (1813). Obv. View of Phoenix Ironworks (exterior). Stockton on Tees penny (1813). View of Bridge. Sheffield penny (1813). Obv. View of Poor-house, issued by "THE OVERSEERS OF THE POOR". Cornish penny (1811). Obv. Winding and pumping engine. Rev. Tin ingots and fish. Glasgow penny (1813). View of Phoenix ironworks (exterior). Bristol farthing. Obv. Full-rigged ship. Leeds shilling. Obv. Arms. Rev. Commerce (silver) and Cheltenham shilling (silver). Obv. Avenue of trees and church.

Mr. Larsen also exhibited in extremely fine condition silver coins of Madras comprising Half and Quarter Pagodas and five two and one fanam pieces.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Lieut.-Colonel H. W. MORRIESON F.S.A.,
President, in the Chair.

The following gentlemen were proposed as members of the Society, and duly seconded: Samuel Norwood Grant Bailey, B.A., LL.B.; Henry Platt Hall, F.R.N.S.; John Martin, G. Hamilton-Smith.

Presentations.

The following presentations were announced, and a vote of thanks to the donors was passed:—

Medal commemorating the crossing of the Channel in an aeroplane by the King and Queen of the Belgians, by Mr. J. Sanford Saltus.

Répertoire d'Art et d'Archéologie, by the Bibliothèque d'Art et d'Archéologie, Paris.

"An Historical Roll of those Women of the British Empire to whom the Military Medal has been awarded", by Lieut.-Colonel J. H. Leslie.

The Numismatist, January, 1919.

Paper.

Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson read a paper on the coins of Charles I, on the "Declaration" type, which bear the letters BR in monogram. These were formerly attributed to the Oxford mint, but subsequently to Bristol. Later on the discovery of a statement, made in 1684, by a Mr. Baskerville, that the monogram represented the initials of Dr. Bailey, President of St. John's College, the attribution to Oxford again found favour. In spite, however, of the absence of any documentary evidence to the existence of a mint at Bristol, the lecturer was able to show that the coins in question must have been issued in that city.

Two or three days after the arrival of the mint at Oxford, in January, 1642-3, the King invited the various colleges to lend him their plate to be made into money, promising to repay "as soon as God shall enable us". The colleges promptly responded, but St. John's put in a proviso that £300 should be returned to them to pay for some new buildings. The value of the plate surrendered by this college was approximately £688, which, at the rate at which the mint authorities could work, would not have taken more than a few days to coin, yet the BR pieces bear the dates 1643 and 1644, and correspond, in general detail, with those bearing the letters OX and the dates 1643 and 1644. These same dates, moreover, occur on the coins, bearing the name of the mint, which were issued at Chester, Exeter, and Weymouth.

Bristol was captured by the Cavaliers in July, 1643, and held by them until September, 1645, a period which covers all the dates of the BR coins. It was the second city in England in those days, and was a more convenient centre for Bushell than Oxford, since he could have direct communication with Aberystwith by sea. In his petition to Charles II for a committee to examine his claims, he states that he had clothed the troops which came from Ireland, but that all his vouchers were lost when his house at Bristol was burnt. Sir William Parkhurst, his brother warden of the mint at Oxford, writing in support of Bushell's claims, stated that after Bushell's departure for Bristol with his fine silver, he (Sir William) experienced great difficulty in maintaining the standard of the coinage. Everything, therefore, points to Bristol as the place of origin of these coins. There were many troops in the neighbourhood to be paid, and so important did the city become that latterly it had its own royal Treasurer. The attribution to Oxford must therefore be abandoned, especially as several colleges surrendered more plate than St. John's, without making any stipulation that the money coined from it should bear any particular mark.

Exhibitions in illustration of the Paper read.

By Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson: a series of half-crowns and shillings of the Oxford mint, dated 1642, 1643 and 1644, and of the Bristol mint, dated 1643 and 1644.

Other Exhibitions.

By Mr. H. A. Parsons: a penny of Edward the Confessor, type C-B 2, of the Berkeley mint, reading, on the reverse, ✠ EDGAR ON BERKELE.

By Mr. Grant R. Francis: a series of coins of scarce varieties, and in unusually fine condition, struck at the Exeter mint of Charles I; also half-crowns of the same sovereign, minted at Chester and Weymouth.

By Mr. Henry Garside: pieces of twenty, ten, five and two piastres of the late Hussein Kamil, first Sultan of Egypt, issued in the year 1917.

ROMAN REPUBLICAN COINS.

- 71481 C. Mamilius Limetanus (B.C. 84). Æ. Bust of Mercury to r., wearing winged cap and holding caduceus; in field to l. L. R. C. MAMIL-LIMETAN. Ulysses dressed as sailor, wearing pileus, advancing to r., leaning on knotted staff and extending right hand to dog. Argos, who comes towards him. B., 6. Serrated edge. V. F. " 4 6
- The Mamilia gens claimed descent from Mamilia, the daughter of Telegonus, who was the reputed son of Ulysses and Circe. Mercury or Hermes was the ancestor of Ulysses. Hence the obv. type. The rev. type shows the hero returning in mean and humble dress to the island of Ithaca, where he was at once recognized by his old dog, Argos; who died of joy at seeing its former master. B.M.C.*, 1, 343.

MANLIA.

- 71482 L. Manlius (B.C. 81). Æ. Obv. Head of Roma, in high relief, with winged helmet; before, L. MANLI; behind, PRO. Q. R. Sulla, togate, in triumphal quadriga, horses walking; he holds laurel branch in r. hand, reins in l.; above, Victory flying l., and bearing wreath; ex., L. SVLLA. IM. B., 4. E. F. " 4 6
- 71483 — Æ. Similar. V. F. " 3 6
- 71484 — Æ. Variety; IMP instead of IM. B., 5. E. F. " 4 6
- The work is more characteristic of a Greek engraver's art, than of a Roman, and it might be suggested that these coins were struck in Greece, probably at Athens, where L. Manlius may have acted as proquaestor to a portion of the Roman army after the departure of Sulla for Italy. B.M.C.*, 11, 461.
- 71485 — Æ. Obv. Similar, but more widespread, and (= 50) after MANLI. R. Similar, but details larger; exergue, L. SVLLA IM. B., 7 (5 frs). V. F. " 5 6
- As the letter [after MANLI] occurs only on some of the denarii it is probably the initial of Torquatus, the engraver of the die in making this addition to the name of the proquaestor having placed the letter sideways instead of upright. A blunder such as this could well have been made by a Greek artist who was not acquainted with the language of the Romans. It was suggested by Mommsen that the letter indicated that Sulla had arrived at the age of 50 in which case the coin would have been struck in B.C. 87. B.M.C.*, 11, 462.

- The symbol on the obv. and type of the rev. refer to the circumstance that Manius Marcius, the moneyer's father, during his aedileship B.C. 154, was the first to distribute corn to the people at one as per modius. B.M.C., I, 149.*
- 71489 L. Marcius Philippus (B.C. 112). R. Obv. ΛΑ [ROMA in monogram]. Male head to r. (Philip V of Macedon) wearing the royal Macedonian helmet of skin ornamented with goat's horns, diadem, and cheek-pieces; under chin, Φ. R. L. PHILIPPVS on base of equestrian statue to r., horse prancing, rider holding branch over shoulder; beneath horse, twig; in ex., X. B., 12. V. F. " 3 "
- The monogram connects this issue with that of T. Deidius. The obv. type is supposed to relate to the mission of L. Marcius Q. f. Philippus who concluded with Philip V. a treaty of friendship. The rev. type records the erection of a statue or monument to a member of the Marcia gens; perhaps that of Q. Marcius Tremulus which was erected in the Forum after his victory over the Hernici in B.C. 306; or that erected to Q. Marcius Philippus, the conqueror of Perseus. B.M.C., II, 277.*
- 71491 — R. Similar. V. F. " 3 6
- The type refers to the musical contest between Apollo and Marsyas. The statue of the latter with one hand raised was often placed in the fora of ancient cities. Perhaps, standing in the place where justice was administered, it was intended to demonstrate the punishment of arrogant presumption. B.M.C., I, 338.*

- The head of Quirinus (Romulus) refers to the ancient origin of the Memmia gens which claimed to be descended through Romulus from the Trojan Monestheus. The head of Ceres and the seated figure of that divinity relate to the institution at Rome of the Ludi Cereales. As the date of their inauguration is uncertain it is not possible to identify the member of the Memmia gens who as aedile superintended their first celebration. B.M.C., I, 196.*

MINUCIA.

- The name Cloacina (from cluere to wash, purify) was that given to Venus Expiatrix. Pliny relates that after their combat the Romans and Sabines purified themselves with branches of myrtle on the spot where later were erected the statues of Venus Cloacina. Babelon suggests that the two figures standing on the platform (which he describes as a vessel) are Romulus and Tatius, king of the Sabines. Possibly an ancestor of the moneyer was traditionally connected with the erection of those statues, or the family claimed Sabine origin. The platform still exists in the forum and there are indications on it where the statues were placed. The head of Concordia in connection with this rev. records the close union and friendship which was established between the Romans and the Sabines who settled on the Quirinal and built there a temple to the god Sol whose cult they specially honoured. To this circumstance may perhaps be attributed the association of the head of Sol with Venus Cloacina. B.M.C., I, 574.*

- The rev. type is in honour of Sextus Nonius possibly the moneyer's father, who, as praetor urbanus, inaugurated in B.C. 81 the Ludi Victoriae Sullanae in honour of Sulla's victory at the Colline Gate. The small conical object behind the head of Saturn is uncertain. It may be a vase for money or a cap. We would suggest that it represents the conical stone (baetylus) which Rhea gave Cronos (Saturn) to swallow in place of the infant Zeus. B.M.C., I, 470.*

NORBANA.

- 71523 C. Norbanus (B.C. 82). R. Obv. C. NORBANVS below head of Venus to r., diademed and wearing earring and necklace; behind, number CXXXV. R. Fasces between ear of corn on l. and caduceus on r. B., 2. V. F. " 5 "

- The rev. type is usually considered to be an allusion to the life of the moneyer's father and the part which he played in Sicily during the Social War, when he raised troops, organized a fleet, and provisioned the town of Rhegium, by means of which it was able to resist the attacks of the insurgents. B.M.C., 1, 348.*

- There is a remarkable similarity between the denarii of L. Postumius Albinus, L. Opeimius, M. Opeimius, and Sextus Julius Caesar and each of these moneyers places a symbol behind the head of Roma. Probably some of them were colleagues at the Mint.*

- Feronia, a goddess of renown in Latium and Central Italy, originally belonged to the Sabines who introduced her worship to the Romans. Her attributes seem to be those of a deity of fertility and plenty. The rev. type relates to the restoration of the standards by the Parthians in B.C. 20. B.M.C., 11, 61.*

PLAETORIA.

- The moneyer's colleague was M. Aemilius Scaurus; one of the most noted men of the time. It was after repressing the incursions of the Nabathean Arabians and compelling Aretas to submit and pay a fine of 300 talents to Pompey that, returning to Rome in B.C. 58, Scaurus was elected curule aedile and had Hypsaenus as colleague. In their year of office the public games were celebrated with a splendour never previously witnessed in the capital. It was to meet the expenses of this celebration that the Senate granted to Scaurus and his colleague permission to strike coins in their own names. B.M.C., 183.*
- 71563 — ℞. Obv. P. YPSAE[S.C.]. Diad. head of Leuconoe to r., behind [dolphin]. ℞. C. YPSAE. COS. PRIV CEPIT. Jupiter in quadriga galloping l. B., 12. E. F. » 8 6
- B.M.C. place this issue earlier than the above and suggests that his term of office as quaestor had not expired when he returned to Rome in B.C. 91 with Pompey who in that year received a triumph. The Hypsaeni traced their descent from Neptune and his daughter Leuconoe. The rev. type commemorates the capture of Privernum by an ancestor of the moneyer. C. Plautius Decianus Hypsaenus B.C. 329, for which on his return to Rome he received a triumph. The scorpion is the Zodiacal sign of the city of Comma-gene and may suggest that Hypsaenus held some command in the army of Pompey when he invaded that district. The symbol seems to confirm the supposition that these coins were struck on the occasion of Pompey's triumph. B.M.C., 1, 477.*

These may be regarded as obsidional coins or siege pieces, as they were cast in Tabora, German East Africa, when the German authorities were unable to obtain supplies of the customary money from Germany. They represent a fictitious value and were to have been redeemed by the Government if the Germans had succeeded in winning the great war of 1914-1918.

I have been informed by several friends who took part in the campaign in German East Africa that the copper coins were manufactured from utensils commandeered from the natives and that the brass coins were made from cartridge cases.

Nous sommes en mesure de compléter ici l'article que nous avons publié dans notre n° de janvier-février, sur cet artiste, en reproduisant, d'après une photographie, le beau buste que le sculpteur Custor fils avait exécuté en 1872 et dont la ressemblance avec l'original, que notre photographie d'Henri Grandjean Perrenoud, a donnée à la colonne 12 de la susdite livraison, montre d'une façon saisissante. Le buste est aujourd'hui la propriété de la Société des « Amis des Arts » de La Chaux-de-Fonds.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The October Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 24th on the month, Mr. W.A. Gullick, Vice-President being in the chair.

The Society received a further donation from Mr. P. Larsen of four more coin trays for use at the meetings, a vote of thanks for which was recorded in the minutes.

After the general business Mr. W. A. Gullick read a paper entitled "The Knights of Malta" which was illustrated by coins of the Order of characteristic types and denominations, the copper coins from the collection of Mr. Henry E. Parkes. A silver 15 tari piece of Emmanuel Pinto (Mr. W. A. Gullick), also shewn. The paper proved most interesting and an instructive discussion followed.

Résumé of Mr. Gullick's paper.

The early history of the Order was traced from its first foundation at Jerusalem, as a hospital for poor and sick Latin pilgrims between 1014 A.D. and 1023 A.D. At the time of the capture of Jerusalem, in 1099 A.D. a hospital for either sex and two additional churches formed the establishment, the governing head being styled "Rector". Godfrey de Bouillon who was elected "Defender and Advocate of the Holy Sepulchre" after this, the tenth siege, of the city endowed the hospital with his Manor of Montboise in Brabant and this example caused such emulation that in the beginning of the 13th Century the hospitals were endowed with 19,000 manors. But Raymond du Puy was the real founder of this celebrated Order for he added a further vow "to bear arms in defence of religion" and the brethren thus developed into the famous "Knights of St. John". The purely Military Order of the Knights Templars, founded to protect the pilgrims to Jerusalem, by their growing jealousy and hostility to the Knights of St. John which terminated in a pitched battle in 1259 A.D. although terminating in favour of the latter, so weakened the Orders that they were forced to withdraw from the East to Europe. The Knights Hospitallers first retired to Cyprus from whence they removed to Rhodes in 1311 A.D. which they purchased and fortified and held until 1525 A.D. when it was taken by the Sultan Solymán and the Knights expelled. Then the wanderings of the Knights commenced, first to Candia, thence to Messina, to Civita Vecchia and finally to their last and most celebrated home at Malta from whence they derive their best-known name. One circumstance alone will prove their stern resistless valour for they were the only military power feared by the fierce and pitiless Moslem pirates of North Africa who carried torture and slavery, fire and sword to all the northern coasts of the Mediterranean. The author dwelt upon the history of the English "langue" to its revival and confirmation thereof in 1834. The medical activities of the Order were very fully treated of

The Coinage so characteristic in its type, was then described special reference being made to the Copper pieces struck by La Valette and carrying a fictitious value which he issued to pay the artificers then building his new city of Valetta; and although he faithfully redeemed these numismatic IOU's yet the example was not lost on other grand masters who followed in his footsteps as regards the issuing of such pieces but consistently forgot to redeem them, thereby causing a loss to Britain of £ 16.000 when she took over the Island and reformed the currency. The works of Mr. Furse and Hazlitt were drawn upon many relevant extracts given.

A specially fine photographic plate of coins illustrating from the collections of Messrs. Henry E. Parkes and P. exhibited by the author done by a special process, the coins themselves being also shewn thus adding additional

Following the paper by Mr. Gullick, W. Green on "the Iredale tokens", Australian Numismatics.

Mr. Green

This paper, the first of a series

Wales tokens was devoted to a consideration of those issued by Messrs. Iredale & Co. of Sydney.

The author gave a detailed history of this firm which had great influence on the economic life of the Colony chiefly due to the energy of the junior partner, Mr. Fredk. Lassetter. The firm is now known as F. Lassetter & Co. Ltd. and holds a first rank position among the Merchant Companies of Australia.

"When there was a shortage of Coin in the Colony in the early fifties Mr. Lassetter met the condition by the issue of copper tokens which had a large general circulation and were known as 'Lassetter pennies'. These were manufactured in England and imported in great numbers for the use of the Colonists. One shipment was lost in the wreck of the 'Dunbar' at Sydney Heads in August, 1857. The tokens were issued up to the time of prohibition of the use of private tokens in 1869 when they were redeemed by the firm and paid for in coin of the realm".

A detailed description of all known varieties was given.

An historically interesting exhibit of European coins dating from 1810-1815 followed, particularly noticeable among which were fine French and Italian Napoleonic coins (silver and copper) by Mr. H. E. Parkes; gold of the Napoleonic Kingdom of Italy by Mr. W. J. McNiell; fine specimens of English Bank tokens for 3/- and 1/6 and Irish Bank tokens for 10 d. and 5 d. of varying dates from the collections of Mr. Larsen and Mr. H. Priestley, and of the same period the very instructive silver and copper tokens of Britain, among the most interesting being from Mr. H. Priestley's collection. Flint penny (1813). Obv. View of Flint lead works; a Newark penny (1811). Obv. View of the Castle and a particularly interesting Bradford Workhouse penny. This was a Birmingham Union Copper Company's penny of 1812, countermarked BRADFORD/WORKHOUSE in two deeply-sunken curved ribands, and from Mr. H. E. Parkes' collection, The Sheffield penny (1813). Obv. View of Phoenix Ironworks (exterior). Stockton on Tees penny (1813). View of Bridge. Sheffield penny (1813). Obv. View of Poor-house, issued by "THE OVERSEERS OF THE POOR". Cornish penny (1811). Obv. Winding and pumping engine. Rev. Tin ingots and fish. Glasgow penny (1813). View of Phoenix ironworks (exterior). Bristol farthing. Obv. Full-rigged ship. Leeds shilling. Obv. Arms. Rev. Commerce (silver) and Cheltenham shilling (silver). Obv. Avenue of trees and church.

Mr. Larsen also exhibited in extremely fine condition silver coins of Madras comprising Half and Quarter Pagodas and five two and one fanam pieces.

Paper.

and a paper on the coins of Charles I, which bear the letters BR in monogram, attributed to the Oxford mint, but subsequently to Bristol. Later on the discovery of a statement, made in 1684, by a Mr. Baskerville, that the monogram represented the initials of Dr. Bailey, President of St. John's College, the attribution to Oxford again found favour. In spite, however, of the absence of any documentary evidence to the existence of a mint at Bristol, the lecturer was able to show that the coins in question must have been issued in that city.

Two or three days after the arrival of the mint at Oxford, in January, 1642-3, the King invited the various colleges to lend him their plate to be made into money, promising to repay "as soon as God shall enable us". The colleges promptly responded, but St. John's put in a proviso that £300 should be returned to them to pay for some new buildings. The value of the plate surrendered by this college was approximately £688, which, at the rate at which the mint authorities could work, would not have taken more than a few days to coin, yet the BR pieces bear the dates 1643 and 1644, and correspond, in general detail, with those bearing the letters OX and the dates 1643 and 1644. These same dates, moreover, occur on the coins, bearing the name of the mint, which were issued at Chester, Exeter, and Weymouth.

Bristol was captured by the Cavaliers in July, 1643, and held by them until September, 1645, a period which covers all the dates of the BR coins. It was the second city in England in those days, and was a more convenient centre for Bushell than Oxford, since he could have direct communication with Aberystwith by sea. In his petition to Charles II for a committee to examine his claims, he states that he had clothed the troops which came from Ireland, but that all his vouchers were lost when his house at Bristol was burnt. Sir William Parkhurst, his brother warden of the mint at Oxford, writing in support of Bushell's claims, stated that after Bushell's departure for Bristol with his fine silver, he (Sir William) experienced great difficulty in maintaining the standard of the coinage. Everything, therefore, points to Bristol as the place of origin of these coins. There were many troops in the neighbourhood to be paid, and so important did the city become that latterly it had its own royal Treasurer. The attribution to Oxford must therefore be abandoned, especially as several colleges surrendered more plate than St. John's, without making any stipulation that the money coined from it should bear any particular mark.

Exhibitions in illustration of the Paper read.

By Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson: a series of half-crowns and shillings of the Oxford mint, dated 1642, 1643 and 1644, and of the Bristol mint, dated 1643 and 1644.

Other Exhibitions.

By Mr. H. A. Parsons: a penny of Edward the Confessor, type C-B 2, of the Berkeley mint, reading, on the reverse, ✠ EDGAR ON BERKELE.

By Mr. Grant R. Francis: a series of coins of scarce varieties, and in unusually fine condition, struck at the Exeter mint of Charles I; also half-crowns of the same sovereign, minted at Chester and Weymouth.

By Mr. Henry Garside: pieces of twenty, ten, five and two piastres of the late Hussein Kamil, first Sultan of Egypt, issued in the year 1917.

ROMAN REPUBLICAN COINS.

- 71481 C. Mamilius Limetanus (B.C. 84). Æ. Bust of Mercury to r., wearing winged cap and holding caduceus; in field to l. L. R. C. MAMIL-LIMETAN. Ulysses dressed as sailor, wearing pileus, advancing to r., leaning on knotted staff and extending right hand to dog. Argos, who comes towards him. B., 6. Serrated edge. V. F. " 4 6
- The Mamilia gens claimed descent from Mamilia, the daughter of Telegonus, who was the reputed son of Ulysses and Circe. Mercury or Hermes was the ancestor of Ulysses. Hence the obv. type. The rev. type shows the hero returning in mean and humble dress to the island of Ithaca, where he was at once recognized by his old dog, Argos, who died of joy at seeing its former master. B.M.C., 1, 343.

MANLIA.

- 71482 L. Manlius (B.C. 81). Æ. Obv. Head of Roma, in high relief, with winged helmet; before, L. MANLI; behind, PRO. Q. R. Sulla, togate, in triumphal quadriga. horses walking; he holds laurel branch in r. hand, reins in l.; above, Victory flying l., and bearing wreath; ex., L. SVLLA. IM. B., 4. E. F. " 4 6
- 71483 — Æ. Similar. V. F. " 3 6
- 71484 — Æ. Variety; IMP instead of IM. B., 5. E. F. " 4 6
- The work is more characteristic of a Greek engraver's art, than of a Roman, and it might be suggested that these coins were struck in Greece, probably at Athens, where L. Manlius may have acted as proquaestor to a portion of the Roman army after the departure of Sulla for Italy. B.M.C., II, 461.
- 71485 — Æ. Obv. Similar, but more widespread, and (= 50) after MANLI. R. Similar, but details larger; exergue, L. SVLLA. IM. B., 7 (5 frs). V. F. " 5 6
- As the letter [after MANLI] occurs only on some of the denarii it is probably the initial of Torquatus, the engraver of the die in making this addition to the name of the proquaestor having placed the letter sideways instead of upright. A blunder such as this could well have been made by a Greek artist who was not acquainted with the language of the Romans. It was suggested by Mommsen that the letter indicated that Sulla had arrived at the age of 50 in which case the coin would have been struck in B.C. 87. B.M.C., II, 462.

- The symbol on the obv. and type of the rev. refer to the circumstance that Manius Marcius, the moneyer's father, during his aedileship B.C. 154, was the first to distribute corn to the people at one as per modius. B.M.C., 1, 149.*
- 71489 L. Marcius Philippus (B.C. 112). R. Obv. ΛΑ [ROMA in monogram]. Male head to r. (Philip V of Macedon) wearing the royal Macedonian helmet of skin ornamented with goat's horns, diadem, and cheek-pieces; under chin, Φ. R. L. PHILIPPVS on base of equestrian statue to r., horse prancing, rider holding branch over shoulder; beneath horse, twig; in ex. X. B., 12. V. F. " 3 "
- The monogram connects this issue with that of T. Deidius. The obv. type is supposed to relate to the mission of L. Marcius Q. f. Philippus who concluded with Philip V. a treaty of friendship. The rev. type records the erection of a statue or monument to a member of the Marcia gens; perhaps that of Q. Marcius Tremulus which was erected in the Forum after his victory over the Hernici in B.C. 306; or that erected to Q. Marcius Philippus, the conqueror of Perseus. B.M.C., 11, 277.*

- 71491 — R. Similar. V. F. " 3 6
- The type refers to the musical contest between Apollo and Marsyas. The statue of the latter with one hand raised was often placed in the fora of ancient cities. - The head of Quirinus (Romulus) refers to the ancient origin of the Memmia gens which claimed to be descended through Romulus from the Trojan Monesibens. The head of Ceres and the seated figure of that divinity relate to the institution at Rome of the Ludi Cereales. As the date of their inauguration is uncertain it is not possible to identify the member of the Memmia gens who as aedile superintended their first celebration. B.M.C., 1, 496.*

- The name Cloacina (from cluere to wash, purify) was that given to Venus Expiatrix. Pliny relates that after their combat the Romans and Sabines purified themselves with branches of myrtle on the spot where later were erected the statues of Venus Cloacina. Babelon suggests that the two figures standing on the platform (which he describes as a vessel) are Romulus and Tatius, king of the Sabines. Possibly an ancestor of the moneyer was traditionally connected with the erection of those statues, or the family claimed Sabine origin. The platform still exists in the forum and there are indications on it where the statues were placed. The head of Concordia in connection with this rev. records the close union and friendship which was established between the Romans and the Sabines who settled on the Quirinal and built there a temple to the god Sol whose cult they specially honoured. To this circumstance may perhaps be attributed the association of the head of Sol with Venus Cloacina. B.M.C., 1, 574.*

- The rev. type is in honour of Sextus Nonius possibly the moneyer's father, who, as praetor urbanus, inaugurated in B.C. 81 the Ludi Victoriae Sullanae in honour of Sulla's victory at the Collone Gate. The small conical object behind the head of Saturn is uncertain. It may be a vase for money or a cap. We would suggest that it represents the conical stone (baetylus) which Rhea gave Cronos (Saturn) to swallow in place of the infant Zeus. B.M.C., 1, 470.*

The rev. type is usually considered to be an allusion to the life of the moneyer's father and the part which he played in Sicily during the Social War, when he raised troops, organized a fleet, and provisioned the town of Rhegium, by means of which it was able to resist the attacks of the insurgents. B.M.C., 1, 348.

The moneyer's colleague was M. Aemilius Scaurus; one of the most noted men of the time. It was after repressing the incursions of the Nabathean Arabians and compelling Aretas to submit and pay a fine of 300 talents to Pompey that, returning to Rome in B.C.58, Scaurus was elected curule aedile and had Hypsaeus as colleague. In their year of office the public games were celebrated with a splendour never previously witnessed in the capital. It was to meet the expenses of this celebration that the Senate granted to Scaurus and his colleague permission to strike coins in their own names. B.M.C., 183.

B.M.C. place this issue earlier than the above and suggests that his term of office as quaestor had not expired when he returned to Rome in B.C.91 with Pompey who in that year received a triumph. The Hypsaei traced their descent from Neptune and his daughter Leuconoe. The rev. type commemorates the capture of Privernum by an ancestor of the moneyer. C. Plautius Decianus Hypsaeus B.C.329, for which on his return to Rome he received a triumph. The scorpion is the Zodiacal sign of the city of Comma-gene and may suggest that Hypsaeus held some command in the army of Pompey when he invaded that district. The symbol seems to confirm the supposition that these coins were struck on the occasion of Pompey's triumph. B.M.C., 1, 477.

A FINE AND RARE COLLECTION OF MEDALS OF THE RIFLE BRIGADE INCLUDING THE COLLECTION OF THE LATE LORD TORPHICHEN.

GENERAL HISTORY OF THE RIFLE BRIGADE.

This famous corps was formed early in the year 1800. The men were selected from fourteen regiments, and the command was given to Colonel Cootte Maningham, who had been a boy-ensign in the 39th Foot at the famous defence of Gibraltar, but most of whose service had been spent about the Court. The lieutenant-colonel was the Hon. William Stewart, and among the junior officers were many — like Sydney Beckwith, Charles Napier, George Elder, and others — who subsequently rose to high distinction.

The Rifle Corps first saw service on 25th August, 1800, when it took part in the attack on Ferrol. In the following year a detachment, commanded by Captain Sydney Beckwith, was present on board Nelson's flagship, the Elephant, at the famous "Battle of the Baltic".

In 1802 the Corps of Riflemen, as it was called, was brought into the Line as the 95th (Rifles) Regiment of Foot, ranking fifth among the six regiments which successively have borne that number (see Record of the 2nd Battalion Sherwood Foresters). As the 95th Rifles the corps was known through the Peninsular campaigns, and until taken out of the Line, as the Rifle Brigade after Waterloo.

A single battalion corps, dressed in bottle-green jackets and tights, with powdered and clubbed hair, and black leather helmets, the 95th was trained by Sir John Moore with the other regiments of the future Peninsular Light Division at Shorncliffe in 1803-4. In 1805 it was augmented by a second battalion, and in 1809 by a third battalion.

After independent service in Hanover, at Copenhagen, in America, in Sweden, in Portugal, at Corunna and Walcheren, the two senior battalions joined Wellington's Army in the Peninsula, and were unceasingly at the front from Torres Vedras to Toulouse.

It may be noted, that, although the Rifles were successful beyond all comparison in recruiting, they were unable, owing to the absence of home battalions, to keep more than six companies of a battalion in the field at once.

The remainder of each battalion from 1810 to 1815 was an indefinite quantity, the strength and whereabouts of which were determined by the circumstances of the moment. The services of the two senior battalions at this period are told by the long roll of Peninsular and Waterloo honours now borne by the corps. All three battalions were heavily engaged in the fighting in the "Pyrenees" in 1813-14, although, curious to say, this "honour" is not worn by the Brigade.

But a word must be said respecting the old 3rd Battalion, afterwards disbanded. It was formed at Ashford, Kent, in April, 1809, of volunteers from the Militia, with which force the Rifles were so popular that over 1,100 magnificent volunteers were obtained in three days. Part of the battalion proceeded to Cadiz in 1810, and fought in the famous fight at Barrosa. This portion of the battalion afterwards joined the army under Wellington, and in company with the service companies of the two older battalions made the campaigns of 1812-14.

Another part of the battalion went to Stralsund with General Gibbs in 1813, and served in North Holland in 1813-14.

Soon after the return of the troops from the South of France five companies of the 3rd Battalion embarked for America and took part in the unsuccessful attack on New Orleans.

A wing of the battalion left behind went to Belgium, and attached to the 2nd Battalion made, with the 1st Battalion, the Waterloo campaign and marched to Paris where it was joined by the survivors from New Orleans, who had landed too late for the battle.

After the battle of Waterloo, and in recognition of its brilliant services, the 95th Rifles was taken out of the Line and constituted an independent corps, under the style of the Rifle Brigade. To this period belongs the introduction of the present pouch-belt ornament — which, alike in Cross and Crown, appears to have been suggested by the then newly-designed badge of the Hanoverian Guelphic Order — and sundry dress innovations now forgotten.

In 1819 the 3rd Battalion was disbanded, and the Rifle Brigade remained a double-battalion corps until the period of Crimean War, when two more battalions were raised.

Its services under its later designation have been no less important and even more ubiquitous than in the old Peninsular days, including besides periods of garrison duty in the Mediterranean, Portugal, Bermuda, and North America, two Kaffir Wars, the Crimean War, the Indian Mutiny, the Ashantee Expedition, the Afghan campaigns, the Nile and Soudan campaigns, in which, although no battalion of the Brigade was employed, numerous officers and men served with the mounted infantry; and lastly, the Battle of Khartoum.

No more fitting conclusion to this brief summary can be made than the words addressed to the 1st and 2nd Battalions by his late Majesty King William IV: "And what more can be said of you, Rifle men, than that wherever there has been fighting, there you have been, and wherever you have been, you have distinguished yourselves!"

VARIA

UKRAINE CURRENCY.

The Government of the Ukraine Republic has issued a series of five stamps in special designs and three of these, the te chagives in yellow brown bearing the Arms of the Republic, forty chagives in green bearing a trident, which is the Emblem of the Republic, and fifty chagives in red, with the numerals in an ornamented frame, have been printed on card for use in lieu of small coins. A chagive is said to be equal in value to half a kopec, two hundred chagives being equivalent to a rouble.

HENRY GARSIDE.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF MEDALLISTS

Coin, Gem, and Seal Engravers, Ancient and Modern,
with References to their Works.

Most of the previous articles have been revised and republished in the "Biographical Dictionary of Medallists". The references to that work in these supplementary articles will be indicated by the letters "B.D.M." together with the number of the volume and its page.

HELD, L. (Germ.). Die-cutter of the first half of the nineteenth century, who was employed at the G. Loos Medallie Mint, Berlin. He signed a medal commemorating the Marriage of Duke Alexander Charles of Anhalt-Bernburg with Princess Frederika of Schleswig-Holstein-Beck, 30. October 1834 (signed : L.H.F.).

HELFRICHT, FRIEDRICH FERDINAND (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 471). I have come across a Portrait-medal of Barthold Georg Niebuhr, 1842, by this Medallist, and also a commemorative medal of the capture of the Danish naval captain Baron von Dirkinck-Holmfeld, 1872.

HELLEMMES, JACQUES DE (Belg.). Mint-master at Namur, 24. October 1421-1423; again in conjunction with Adam Ramer, 16. July 1425-18. May 1426, and with Jean Bernart, 24. July 1426-30. November 1426; once more alone, 1. December 1426—Easter 1427.

HELLEMMES, MARC DE (Belg.). Son of Jacques de H.; Mint-master at Namur, 10. June 1428-16. May 1433; and in conjunction with Nicaise de H., 30. May 1433-10 October 1433.

HENNING, A. I. (Amer.). 1859, Washington Irving, 1783-1859, American historian, Æ 69.

HENNING, JOHN (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 477). This artist began life as a carpenter, and did not take to art as a vocation until he had reached the mature age of forty. His great work, which he achieved in twelve years, was the restoration of the Parthenon and Phygalian friezes. These he reproduced in miniature for sale.

Henning was born on 2. May 1771; his father Samuel Henning was a carpenter and cabinet-maker. In the year 1799 he made his first attempt at modelling, after seeing some wax medallions at Sir Henry Raeburn's studio at Edinburgh, where he had gone on a visit. His first Portrait-medallion was that of a comrade of his, A. Woodrow, "a strong though a coarse likeness". Acquaintances teased him to model their portraits, and soon, from his own immediate neighbourhood, sitters came to him to have their medallion-portraits in wax.

Early in 1800 he made the acquaintance of a Mr James Monteith at Glasgow, who induced him to leave the carpenter's bench and follow his artistic tastes. From that date, his fame went on increasing, and among his sitters we find such names as Lord Jeffrey; — Lord Murray; — Lord Brougham; — Francis Horner; — Mrs. Siddons, and many other celebrities.

In 1811 he came to London, where he henceforth resided. The work of reproducing the Elgin marbles was succeeded by others of almost equal value; the cartoons and the Transfiguration of Raffaello, engraved in intaglio, in the same delicate and beautiful style. In this undertaking the father was assisted by his son, who followed the profession. Other works in relief were executed by the same united hands, among which may be mentioned the friezes on Hyde Park Gate, of which John Henning Jun. furnished the designs; those on the Athenaeum Club House, and a diplomatic box engraved in steel, after Flaxman. These works, together with numberless medallions and busts, occupied the sculptor until 1846. He died in 1851, aged 80 years.

There is a commemorative medal by him of the Battle of Waterloo, 1815, and Messrs Spink have had Portrait-medallions in biscuit of Sir A. Davy, dated 1812; — Francis Lord Jeffrey (now in Baillie's Institution, Glasgow); — Princess Charlotte of Great Britain, etc.

HENRI, ÉMILE (French). Contemporary Gem-engraver, born at Cauvicourt (Calvados); pupil of M. Gallet. At the Salon of 1889 this artist exhibited a cameo in onyx representing the Virgin.

HENRIQUES, JONATHAN (Germ.). Mint-master at Tönning, 1703-1705.

HENRIONNET (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 477). By this Engraver is further: Ferdinand VII. of Spain, 1820.

HENRY, NICOLAS (French). Engraver of Jetons, circ. 1553.

HENRY, S. (Brit.). This name occurs as that of the Patentee for a coin-weight Quarter-Guinea of George I.-III.

HENSHAW, I. & R. (Brit.). Die-sinkers, Seal-engravers, and Medallists at Birmingham (Edmund St.) first half of the xix. century.

HENTSCHEL, BENEDIKT (Austr.). Goldsmith, and Die-cutter at the Mint of Joachimsthal, 1616-1624.

HENZL (Vol. II, p. 478). Goldsmith and Mint-engraver at Kutenberg, 1506-1508.

HERAEUS, CARL GUSTAV (Austr.). Born at Stockholm in 1671, died in 1727 at Vienne, where he was from 1710 Imperial Court Medallist and Inspector of Antiquities.

HÉRAIN, JEAN (Belg.). Sculptor, born at Louvain, 24. October 1853; pupil of Van der Linden, the Académie royale des Beaux-Arts of Brussels and Ecole des Beaux-Arts of Paris. He obtained in 1897 a medal of the second Class at Brussels, and the following year, a gold medal at Munich for sculpture. He has also produced medallion work.

HÉRALDE, JEAN DE (French). Mint-engraver at Bordeaux, circ. 1570.

HÉRANT-BENDER, MARIEINÉ (French). Contemporary Sculptor, born in Egypt; pupil of Thomas and Tonnelier. At the Salon of 1904 he exhibited a Portrait-medallion in bronze, and in 1905 two Prize medals of the Société d'hygiène de l'Enfance.

HERBEMONT AUGUSTE ALBERT (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 481). Further exhibits were made by this artist at the Salon de la Société des Artistes français, Paris: 1904. Portrait-medallion of M. J. H; — 1907 and 1908. Several Portrait-medals and Medallions; — 1909. Portrait-medallion of Dr Lamy; — 1910. M. Louis Lamy and nine other Portrait-medals; — 1912. Portrait-plaquette of Achille Cesbron; — Portrait-medallion of Louis Vauthier; — 1913. Portrait-plaquette of Edouard Camus; — 1914. Portrait-plaquette of Dr A. G. Bardet.

HERBERT, GWENDOLEN (Brit.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born in Ireland; pupil of M^{lle} Geneviève Granger, and M^m. Van der Stapfer and Hughes. At the Salon of 1906 he exhibited two plaquettes: Goats; — Portrait of M^{lle} Geneviève Granger; — 1907. Royal Academy: Portrait-plaquette of her teacher, M^{lle} Geneviève Granger; — Silver Medal for Physical Training College; — Bronze Plaque representing Goats at Glendalough; — Portrait-medal of Mrs. Guinness and others.

HERBERT, J. (Brit.). Engraver, by whom is a Portrait in silver, high relief, on papier maché box of Wellington.

HERCULE, BENOIT LUCIEN (French) (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 482). 1905. Exposition Internationale d'Alimentation et d'Hygiène appliquée at Paris, Æ 57.

HERING, ALOYS (Germ.). To this engraver is attributed a medal of Philip, Count Palatin (1455-1541) (Erbsten sale Cat. 167).

HERING, HENRY (Amer.). Sculptor and medallist, 4 West 33rd Street, New York City. He was born in New York City, February 15, 1874; studied at Cooper Union, at the Art Students League and at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Paris. Mr. Hering also studied with Philip Martiny and with Mercier, and later under Augustus Saint Gaudens, with whom he was associated at Cornish, N.H., for eight years.

He received the bronze medal at Ghent, Belgium in 1913, and bronze and silver medals at the San Francisco Exposition, 1915. His works have been exhibited at the American Numismatic Society

Mr. Hering's more important medallic works include:
1909. Portrait medallion of Mrs. Tracy Dows and son, Æ 144;
— 1909. Stephen Henry Olin, Æ 143 \times 160; — 1909. The Scarsdale Golf and Country Club, medal awarded in gold yearly,

Æ 34; — 1911. Portrait memorial tablet of Huntington Wolcott Jackson, Æ 155 \times 208; — 1911. Charles Albert Coffin, Æ 148 \times 198; — 1912. Evarts Tracy, Æ 145 \times 172; — 1912. Apartment House medal, awarded annually by the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, Æ 87; — 1915. Official Seal of the Panama Pacific International Exhibition, San Francisco, Æ 50.

Mr. Hering has also done excellent work in sculpture, including:
1906. Bust of John Freeman; — 1908. Bronze bust of Augustus Saint Gaudens; — 1909. Marble wall fountain for Mrs. Tracy Dows; — 1911. Bronze statuette L'Allegro; — 1911. Bronze

Exhibition, in 1910; at Ghent, 1913; at the Architectural League, New York; at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; at the Academy of Design; and by the Floating Exhibition arranged by the Sculptors' Society.

statuette Running Diana; — 1911. Bronze bust of Bishop Ethelbert Talbot of Pennsylvania; — 1912. Marble and bronze bust of Roger Platt; — 1912. Portrait memorial tablet to Brigadier General Louis Fitzgerald, at 71st Regiment Armory, New York City; — 1913. Fountain in bronze for William Mather, and 1914, one in bronze and stone for H.G. Dalton, both in Cleveland, Ohio; — 1915. Civil War memorial in marble for Yale University, at New Haven, Conn.

HERIOT, GEORGE (Brit.) 1563-1624. Jeweller to James VI., 1601, to his queen, 1597, and to James VI. on his accession as James I. of England, 1603. Founder of Heriot's Hospital, Edinburgh (opened 1597). Was granted imposition on sugar for three years, 1620. In Walter Scott's Fortunes of Nigel he appears as the 'Jingling Geordie'.

Burns, Coinage of Scotland, II, p. 382, states: "The mint (Edinburgh) instead of being worked directly on His Majesty's account, was set in tack (as before) to certain parties, among whom was the celebrated George Heriot, described in the contract as "George Hereot younger, goldsmith", for the space of one year from 1st December 1601, for the sum of £45899:9:6, of the "usuall money foirsaid of this realme".

HERKOMER, SIR HUBERT (Brit.). R.A., M.A. Painter, born in 1846 at Waal, in Bavaria; emigrated with his family, in 1851, to the United States, but settled in Southampton (England) in 1857. In 1865 he went to Munich, and in 1866 he entered the schools at South Kensington. Died in the autumn of 1912.

Prof. Herkomer's fame dates as far back as the earlier years of the seventies.

He founded and superintended an important art school at Bushey.

By him are numerous designs for medals, etc. (Vide The Connoisseur, December 1904).

He exhibited a Prize Medal of the Royal Automobile Club at the New York International Medallist Exhibition, March 1912.

HERLIN, DAVID (Germ.). Mint-warden at Nördlingen, 1567-70.

HERMAISCUS. An eighteenth century Intaglio in sard, in the British Museum (Cat. n° 582), representing Leda, nude, reclining upon a piece of drapery with the swan; behind, a tree, is inscribed: ΕΡΜΑΙΚΟΒ. Furtwängler (Jahrbuch, etc. 1889, p. 74) describes this gem as a clever imitation of the antique. The inscription purports to be that of the supposed artist, Hermaiscus (cf. Dalton, p. 83)

H. F. (Germ.). Initials of a Nuremberg Medallist, whom G. F. Gebert suggests may have been HIERONYMUS FORMSCHNEIDER (Vol. II, p. 126), whose real name was HIERONYMUS ANDRAEAE, the "Formschneider" or figure-cutter (engraver on wood). Sir John Evans (Num. Chron., 1904, p. 355) states "that in the town-books of Nuremberg, the term Formschneider first occurs in 1449, and it is found in subsequent years mentioned on the same page with Kartennaler, so that the business of a wood-engraver proper and that of the card-maker were distinct. The meaning of the word "form" or "forma" is almost precisely the same in most of the European languages, and it has been erroneously explained in its relation to wood-engraving as signifying a mould, whereas it simply means a shape or figure. In course of time, however, the word "form" declined from its primary signification as a model, and came to be used as expressive both of a model and a mould. The term "Formschneider" which was originally used to distinguish the professed engraver of figures from the mere engraver and colourer of playing cards, is still used in Germany to denote what we term a wood-engraver.

In all the Nuremberg documents Hieronymus Andraeae's name always occurs as "Hieronymus Formschneider".

The letters H.F. occur on a Portrait-medal of Hans Haiger ; 35 mill. (illustrated in Frankfurter Münzzeitung, 1914, p. 235 ; a doubtful specimen was in the Löbbecke Sale, Cat. Pl. XVIII).

Formschneider was Engraver of dies at the Nuremberg Mint from at least 1535 until 1542. He was dismissed from his office in December of that year for unwise talking, and although he applied on numerous occasions for reinstatement, we know that his post had been definitely given to Wenzel Jamnitzer, who retained it until 1559. Formschneider died on 7. May 1556.

Gebert is convinced that this Engraver was the author of the medal of Haiger in question, and probably of many other contemporary Portrait pieces, hitherto unscribed, but the medals described in the Löbbecke Catalogue under the Master H. F. do not belong together. Cf. C. F. Gebert, Der Nürnberger Meister H. F., Frankfurter Münzzeitung, 1914, pp. 235-239.

HICKS-BEACH, SIR MICHAEL EDWARD, Bart. (Brit.). Chancellor of the Exchequer and ex officio Master of the Royal Mint, London, 1885-1886 and 1895-1902. He was created Viscount St Aldwyn in 1906 and Earl St Aldwyn in January, 1915. Born in London, October 23rd, 1837. Died in London, April 30th 1916.

HIDALGO, M. (Span.). Engraver of the obv. of a Proclamation medal of Ferdinand VII. and consort, 1819 ; R. by Diaz. Cf. Ant. Vives, op. cit., n° 334.

HIDDING, HERMANN (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor, who exhibited some Plaquettes at the Berlin Kunst-Austellung, 1907.

HIGUALDO, Father MIGUEL (Mexican). The pioneer of the Mexican revolutionists. The posthumous titles of "The liberator of Mexico", "the first Governor of Mexico by the National Will," and the "Patriarch of Mexican Independence" have been bestowed upon him by a grateful people, and it was in his memory that the State of Hidalgo received its name. So far as collectors know, there was no regular issue of coins by Hidalgo, although there is no question but that he issued necessity pieces with the use of a countermark. Only a few of them have fallen into the hands of collectors and been preserved. It is probable that no great quantity was countermarked, and that most of them were destroyed by the Spanish Government there.

"Two specimens of this currency bearing the countermark have appeared in recent Sale Catalogues of a foreign dealer. One is upon a segment of a Spanish 8-Real piece of 1794 ; the other is upon a silver-gilt religious medal. The countermarking of medals to make them pass as currency is an unusual proceeding. The countermark reads : 4 R. MON. PROV. DI HIDALO. MO.

"In offering this countermarked medal the cataloguer said (translation) : "This piece is extremely rare and most interesting, for neither in the celebrated Fonrobert collection nor in this one is there to be found a religious medal of Our Lady of San Juan of the Lakes, nor even an obsidional coin of Hidalgo. This unique piece under consideration came from the Bergsoe collection, second part, sold under my direction on September 28 and 29, 1903. I purchased it at that time for a collector of obsidional coins, which collection was dispersed later and the piece acquired by the late Mr. Salbach. In my sale of the A. L. collection on January 9 last, another obsidional coin of Hidalgo, from the same Bergsoe collection, is described."

"Father Hidalgo was born in Mexico on May 8, 1753, and had from the time of his ordination served as a curate or assistant priest in the town of Dolores, State of Guanajuato. In opposition to the wishes of the Spanish Government, Father Hidalgo had taught his parishioners how to grow mulberry trees and vines and propagate the silk worm. When news of his action reached official Mexico, in 1810, agents of the Viceroy, accompanied by troops, appeared at Dolores and destroyed the vineyards, cut down the mulberry trees, and put all other industries that were under the official ban, out of commission. In destroying this evidence of industry among the people of Dolores they also fanned the smouldering fire of revolution into a fiercely burning flame, and the revolt burst forth almost before the troops had returned to their barracks in the City of Mexico. Father Hidalgo was then nearly 60 years of age, but he solemnly swore that so long as God was pleased to permit him to live, so long would he devote his energies to the annihilation of Spanish rule in Mexico. He immediately began a campaign of exhortation among his own people, and by the autumn he felt that the time was ripe to strike the blow. His declaration of independence was prepared and his flag made. Having drawn his patriots together, on the 16th of September, 1810, they started on their march to Guantamo, where they were received with open arms. In the treasury there Hidalgo found $ 1,000,000, which was sent north as a war fund. On its march the army was increased in every city through which it passed. At Valladolid he was joined by Father Morelos, the curate there. When the army was within a few miles of Mexico City, Hidalgo counselled it to postpone the attack until it was better able, through training, to meet the troops in that city. In January, 1811, Hidalgo left the army in charge of General Rayon and proceeded toward Texas to obtain the equipment necessary to his cause. Unfortunately, as he was nearing Texas, in June, he was betrayed by a former friend named Elizondo into the hands of the Spaniards, and he, with three of his chiefs, Jimenez, Almada and Santa Maria, was shot on the 30th of July. The heads of all four were placed on pikes and exhibited in the city of Guanajuato. Twelve years later, by decree of the nation, the bodies of these men were removed with veneration to the City of Mexico and deposited beneath the Altar of the Three Kings under the dome of the Cathedral.

"Father Hidalgo was succeeded in command of the patriots by Father Morelos, who, four years later, suffered the same fate as his predecessor at the hands of the Spaniards."

CURRENCY OF GHENT DURING GERMAN OCCUPATION.

Readers of the "Numismatic Circular" may be interested in the following description of the elaborate brass tokens which, together with paper notes and cardboard tokens, have formed the currency of the town of Ghent during the German occupation.

1. 5 Francs, BRASS. Obv. A crowned lion rampant upon a shield surmounted by a mural crown: the shield is standing in front of a laurel wreath which appears on both sides of it. Around the whole the legend: STAD GENT—VILLE DE GAND—FIDES ET AMOR. The whole within a plain rim.

R. A square standing upon one of its corners; within this, two concentric circles, the inner one containing a large 5; between the inner and outer circles, FRANCS—FRANKEN, separated by ornaments of leaves. Oak leaves in three of the corners of the square: in the fourth (the bottom) corner, the date 1917. Running outside the four sides of the square, the legend: UIT BETAALBAAR—JANUARI. 1920—REMBOURSABLE—JANVIER. 1920; and outside this, four ornaments of small roses. The whole within a plain rim. (The Flemish word "uitbetaalbaar" means "repayable".)

Edge plain. Diameter, 39 mm.

2. 5 Francs, BRASS. A thinner piece, less carefully minted and without a word of French, which was banned by the Germans in Flanders.

Obv. A crowned lion rampant upon a crowned shield within a circle, outside which runs the legend: STAD—GENT—FIDES ET AMOR, the Flemish and Latin being separated by ornaments of leaves. The whole within a plain rim.

R. A large 5, the date 1918 above, FRANK below; around this a tightly bound circular laurel wreath, outside which runs the legend: UIT BETAALBAAR. JANUARI. 1922.—PAX ET LABOR. The whole within a plain rim.

Edge plain. Diameter, 39 mm.

3. 2 Francs, BRASS. Obv. In the centre, a crowned lion rampant within an inner circle. Between this and an outer circle, the legend: STAD=GENT. VILLE DE GAND. The coin is SQUARE in shape, and in the corners of the square are quaint ornaments of leaves.

R. BRONZED. Within a circle a large 2, on the right of which is the date 1915 and on the left FR (Francs). The circle is within a square in the corners of which are characterless ornaments formed by wavy lines. Outside the square the legend: UITBETAALBAAR—OP 1 JANUARIJ 1918—REMBOURSABLE LE 1 JANVIER 1918. At each corner the legend is interrupted by a small circle with a dot at its centre.

Edge plain. Length of sides, 24 mm. and 25 mm.

4. 1 Franc, BRASS. Obv. A plain rim, within which is an ornamental circle formed of a chain of large dots; within this again two concentric circles. Between these, the legend: STAD=GENT. VILLE DE GAND. In the centre, i.e. in the inner circle, a crowned lion rampant.

R. BRONZED. In the centre a large 1, on the right of which is the date 1915 and on the left FR (Francs); this within an inner circle, outside which is an ornamental circle of egg-shaped dots, and outside this a plain circle. Around the whole runs the legend: REMBOURSABLE=UITBETAALBAAR—1.1.1919. The whole within a plain rim.

Edge plain. Diameter, 24 mm.

5. There is also a 50 centimes piece, square in shape and similar to the 2 Francs piece described above (3).

In addition to these there were in use the ordinary pre-war Belgian coins, the coins minted by the Germans for the whole of Belgium, of which the 5 centimes piece is described in the "Num. Circ." for May-June 1916, and any foreign coins that happened to be in the country, as well as the paper and cardboard mentioned below.

The cardboard tokens were printed in black and white on a coloured background.

6. 25 centimes, cardboard. Obv. on red (thus combining the black and white of Ghent with the red background to form the German colours). Within a black and white circle, a crowned and robed female figure representing Ghent, surrounded by flowers and holding in the right hand a sceptre with a diamond-shaped top bearing a crown within a G; below, a shield bearing a crowned lion rampant. Legend, above: STAD GENT.

R. on green. In the centre, within a rectangle, value 25^c; above UIT | BETAALBAAR in two lines, below JANUARI | 1920 in two lines. The whole within a black circle the spaces in which are filled by black and white ornaments.

Diameter, 33 mm.

7. 10 centimes, cardboard. Obv. on green. Within a black and white ornamented circle, the three towers of Ghent, viz. the belfry, the Town Hall surmounted by its dragon, and the Cathedral of St. Bavon, backed by a green sky and white clouds bearing the legend STAD GENT.

R. On brown. In the centre, within a rectangle, value 10^c; above UIT | BETAALBAAR in two lines, below JANUARI | 1920 in two lines. The whole within a black circle, the spaces in which are filled by black and white ornaments.

Diameter, 28 mm.

The following are not mentioned in Mr. J. F. Milne's list in the current number of the "Numismatic Circular":

Belgian Provincial Paper money in the War zone.

Place.	Issuing body.	No., etc., of Series.	Date of issue or authorisation.	Denomination.
Gand (Flemish Gent)	Ville (Flemish Stad)	3	1/1-17	50 c.
Id.	Id.	A	(till 28/2-19 only)	50 c.
Id.	Id.	B	(till 28/2-19 only)	25 c.

Gand also issued circular "coins" of cardboard, value 25 c. and 10 c., "Stad Gent", repayable in Jan. 1920.

The above are all in Flemish, French having been banned by the Germans in occupied Flanders.

TRIAL OF THE PYX.

ANNUAL TEST OF IMPERIAL COINAGE.

One of the least known public services — undertaken willingly and at no expense to the taxpayer — is the annual trial of the pyx, which is now being carried out by the Goldsmiths' Company. This duty is being performed by a jury of the freemen of the Company, which includes some of the leading bankers, assayists, goldsmiths, and silversmiths, with Colonel Sir R. Williams, M.P., as foreman.

For the purposes of the trial the Mint has to set aside a specified proportion of all gold or silver coins of the Imperial coinage, and the trial now in progress is that of the coins for 1918. In the case of gold coins the specified proportion is about one in 2,000, and of silver coins one in about £ 98.

The responsibility for selecting the coins to be examined was originally placed on the Master of the Mint (the Chancellor of the Exchequer) or the Deputy-Master, but power was subsequently taken for the appointment of an independent person to select the coins.

In addition to the coins turned out by the Royal Mint the jury have to try the Imperial coins manufactured in the branch mints at Sydney, Melbourne, Perth, Ottawa, and this year, for the first time, at Bombay, where sovereigns have been turned out since last August. The Imperial coins from the branch mints are all gold. All the coins being made from the same dies, there are few people who can tell from which mint they emanate. Some years ago Australian gold coins were easily identified by the lighter colour of the gold and the different design, but though they circulated freely in this country it is doubtful if they were ever really legal tender. Now they are turned out to the Imperial design.

Those who remember the design of the sovereign will recall that it bears the figure of St. George on horseback fighting the dragon, and it is under the feet of the horse that a very minute letter, which can barely be seen without a magnifying glass, is printed to denote from which mint it comes. Coin collectors will note with regret that there were no English sovereigns or half-sovereigns coined last year, though the average production of the branch mints was maintained. There was a considerable increase in the silver coinage, which has been consistently heavier during the war, although there was a temporary decrease in 1917 as compared with 1916.

The duty of the jury upon receipt of the coins is to count them and then to see that they are of standard weight. This was done last week with the coins from the Mint, and has been done this week with the coins from the branch mints. There is, however, still much to be done. Certain coins are picked out, melted into ingots, and assayed to see that the metal is of standard quality. Other coins are also selected at random and assayed. The verdict of the jury will probably not be delivered until May.

The Times.

SEVEN NEW BYZANTINE BRONZE.

The following seven pieces appear to be worthy of record: —
Constans II (641-668).

Obv. [ENT δ] T O[NIKA]. Constans II, beardless, standing facing, holding in r. [long cross], in l. globus crowned; wears crown with cross, and long robes.

Cut from an earlier type, but details given are quite distinct.

Constans II (641-668).

ENT δ T O[NIKA].

Obv. Constans II in long robes, beardless (as Wroth, p. 268).

R χ . Π , on l. A; on r. N; above K: ex. off the flan.

N E
[A] O

[The K is perfectly clear and distinct.]

Constans II (641-668).

Obv. Constans II, with long beard, and Constantine IV, beardless (as Wroth, p. 304).

R χ . M, on l. apparently a standing figure (of Heraclius), on r. a star over a +; above \mathfrak{E} ; in ex. SCL.

[This is a very puzzling piece: it does not appear to have been struck on an old flan (like Wroth, xxxiii, 20); but as no piece is described with only the three emperors upon it, I give it with all reserve.]

Justinian II (2nd Reign) (705-711).

Bronze piece identical in every respect with Wroth, p. 354, no. 2, pl. xli, 2, except that a star is added under the right and left limbs of the cross behind the head of Christ on the reverse. Pierced for suspension between the X and R of the reverse. An interesting find, on a large flan; die Mionnet, 5, flan Mionnet, 7.

Sabatier records a similar piece, but without the stars. He says it is concave and measures 25 millim. (= Mionnet, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$); Sab. II, 35, xxxviii, 12.

Leo V. and Constantine (813-820).

Thick bronze piece as Wroth, xlvii, 18, with reverse A-K, cross above. Size Mionnet, 2 but probably clipped as only one and a half busts are on the flan. The letters AK on reverse however are complete and measure 7 mm. in length, while those on the common coin measure 11 to 12 mm. This piece therefore suggests a half-follis of this series.

Sabatier records a "module plus petit" of 19 millim. (? 9), but evidently refers to the larger coin.

John II (1118-1143).

Obv. Bust full-face, collar of 4 dots, robe of 9 dots, holding labarum in r., [orb and + in l.]. + $\text{I}\omega\Delta$

R χ . Bust of St. Demetrius, spear (?) in r.

R χ . Bust of Christ with nimbus, r. hand in benediction, two crosses on tunic, border wanting. OI XC, double struck.

C. DAVIES SHERBORN.

COINS OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

AUSTRALIA.

GEORGE V. 1910.

SOVEREIGN, 1911.

O. — Legend: — GEORGIUS V D.G. BRITT: OMN: REX F.D. IND: IMP: Head and truncated neck of the King and Emperor in profile and looking to the left. On the truncation of the neck: — B.M. (Bertram Mackennal). The hair on the head is parted. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Saint George attacking the Dragon. The saintly knight is nearly nude, sitting on horseback and looking to the right, his left hand holding the bridle rein. He is wearing a crested helmet with a tail of hair floating behind. A chlamys flowing freely at the back is fastened in front by a fibula. On the right shoulder a balteus for suspending the gladius. The feet and lower portions of the legs are protected by armour, but the toes are uncovered. The horse apparently half advances, half shrinks, from the fabulous animal at its feet. Saint George has broken his lance by wounding the winged monster, and a portion of it remains in its body, the other part is lying upon the ground, with the initials W.W.P. (William Wellesley Pole) beneath it. The dragon is preparing itself for a deadly spring, and Saint George is about to slay it with the gladius he holds in his right hand. Below the ground, the date, 1911, and the initials B.P. (Benedetto Pistrucci). On the ground above the date the mint mark M (Melbourne). The whole within a plain circle, encircled by an ornamented rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

Similar coins are dated, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916.

PENNY, 1918.

Similar to the Penny described and illustrated in the "Numismatic Circular", Volume 19, Column 13107, but dated 1918, and bearing the mint mark I (India), below the ornament beneath the inscription.

HALFPENNY, 1918.

Similar to the Halfpenny described in the "Numismatic Circular" Volume 20, Columns 13317 and 13318, but dated 1918, and bearing the mint mark I (India) below the ornament beneath the inscription.

BRITISH INDIA.

GEORGE V. 1910.

FIFTEEN RUPEES, 1918.

O. — Legend: — GEORGE V KING EMPEROR. Truncated bust of the King-Emperor in profile and looking to the left. His Majesty is wearing the Imperial Crown, and the ermine Robe of State, the Collar of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, the Collar of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire, and the Badge of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Inscription, in four lines: — 15 | RUPEES | INDIA | 1918. A straight line between RUPEES and INDIA. The inscription is encircled by a beaded circle, which is encompassed by a star of ten points, and much ornamentation. The whole within an ornamented rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

A correspondent writes : — "The Indians show a decided preference for the Fifteen Rupees over the British Imperial sovereign, because not only is it a new and fresh coin, but it is believed in the bazaars to contain more gold than the sovereign, and they also like its colour better. The Bombay Mint authorities are to be congratulated on having produced a coin which has so rapidly become popular."

CANADA.

GEORGE V. 1910.

TWENTY FIVE CENTS, 1914.

CAPE COLONY.

PENNY, 1880.

O. — Legend : — EAST LONDON MUNICIPALITY. A bead between the beginning and end of the legend. Inscription : — 1^p encompassed by a plain circle. The numeral and letter are decorated with horizontal lines. A straight line and a bead below D. The whole within a beaded circle which is encircled by a plain rim.

R. — Legend : — PAYABLE AT THE MUNICIPAL OFFICE. A bead between the beginning and end of the legend. Inscription, in three lines : — EAST | LONDON | 1880 encompassed by a plain circle. The whole within a beaded circle which is encircled by a plain rim.

E. — Plain.

Bronze coins similar to the one described are said to have been put into circulation in East London, Cape Colony, South Africa, for a few months, in the year 1880, owing to the scarcity of British Imperial bronze coins. After the delivery of a consignment of British Imperial bronze money from the Royal Mint, London, they were withdrawn from circulation and demonetized.

JAMAICA.

EDWARD VII., 1901-1910.

FARTHING, 1902.

INTERNATIONAL COINS AND LOCAL IMITATIONS.

(Translated from A. Engel and R. Serrure, Traité de Numismatique du Moyen âge, t. III, Paris, 1905, pp. 1427-1444).

The extraordinary interest and importance of this chapter of Engel and Serrure's standard work induces us, at the request of some of our subscribers, particularly interested in this series, to give a translation of it for the benefit of our English readers in the Numismatic Circular.

The counterfeiting of money may originate from two different causes. Often it owes its birth to fraudulent speculation: by imitating, in a lower standard, the coins of a powerful ruler, smaller princes seek to disperse their currency by favour of a type enjoying public confidence. On the other hand, it may come into existence from a desire to facilitate commercial transactions by creating, between neighbouring countries, a uniform medium of exchange with a view of eliminating thereby the losses of exchange.

Attempts of monetary unification do not go back only to the XIIIth century; we find examples of this already in antiquity. At the beginning of the mediæval age, the whole of Europe and parts of Asia and Africa accepted the gold Solidus; later the Carolingian Denier circulated everywhere. For the period with which we are now dealing we notice the existence of various types of coins which became veritable international currency.

We shall only study here the most important among them.

§ 1. — The STERLING.

The Sterling (or Esterling) is of English origin. Sir John Evans suggested that the word may have been derived from the purity of the silver in use for the Arab coins, which were currently known as *easterlings*¹. This explanation is undoubtedly incorrect, as the e before st, plays the same role as in the words estoile or espérer, which are derived from the Latin stella and sperare.

Whatever may be the etymology of the word, it is certain that towards the end of the thirteenth century the Esterlin became the most disseminated coin in Western Europe.

Among the immense quantity of coins connected with this particular type, we differentiate between four distinct groups: —

A. English types.

1. Close counterfeits of the Sterling or English Penny of Henry III (1216-1272); bust facing; on rev. long cross voided, dividing legend; in each angle, three pellets.

This type, which is only an attempt towards the real English Sterling, found few imitators, and only in the northern part of the Netherlands and Germany, where the Penny of Henry II Plantagenet had been adopted. The following are the most characteristic counterfeits of the coin of Henry III.: —

Bernhard III, seigneur of Lippe (1229-1265).

Simon I, seigneur of Lippe (1275-1344).

Thierry, count of Cleves (-1305).

Seignory of Cuinre, XIIIth century.

2. More or less close counterfeits of the Sterling of Edward I (1272-

FLANDERS. Gui de Dampierre (1280-1305): Alost, Douai [and Damme].

— Robert de Béthune (1305-1322): Alost, Ghent.

HAINGAULT. Jean II d'Avesnes (1280-1304): Mons, Maubeuge, Valenciennes.

— Guillaume I (1304-1337): Valenciennes.

NAMUR. Gui de Dampierre (1263-1297): Namur.

— Marie d'Artois (1337-1353): Poilvache.

HOLLAND. Florent V (1266-1296): Dordrecht.

BRABANT. Jean II (1294-1312): Brussels.

LIÈGE. Hugues de Chalon (1296-1301): Statte.

HERSTAL. Jean de Louvain (1285-1309). — One of the Herstal counterfeit Sterlings is particularly remarkable, in that the crowned head facing is changed into a lion's head.

LOOZ. Arnould V (1280-1323).

— Louis VI (1310-1336): Yvoix.

RUMMEN. Arnould d'Orcy (1331-1365).

AGIMONT. Jean II or III of Looz (1280-1341).

LUXEMBURG. Henri IV (1288-1309): Bastogne.

— John the Blind (1309-1346): Luxemburg, Poilvache, Damvillers. These imitations were so numerous in England that the name Lusshebourne came to designate all counterfeit coins.

FLORENNES. Thibaut II (1281-1312).

— Gaucher de Châtillon (1312-22): Yves.

MOIRY. (Morey, Haute-Saône). Gaucher de Châtillon (1312-22).

BAR. Édouard I (1302-1337): Saint-Mihiel.

LORRAINE. Ferry IV (1312-1328).

TOUL. Thomas de Bourlemont (1330-1353).

CAMBRAI. Guillaume de Hainaut (1292-1296).

— Gui de Collemède (1296-1306).

— Chapter of Cambrai.

— Already under Enguerrand de Créqui (1273-1292), counterfeit Sterlings were struck bearing the mitred head, facing.

ARLEUX. Jean de Flandre (1313-1325).

SERAIN. Walram II de Ligny (1304-1353).

RETHEL. Louis I de Flandre (1290-1322).

SANCERRE. Etienne III (1280-1306).

GERMANY. Henry VII (1308-1313).

— Louis IV (1314-1347): Aix-la-Chapelle.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE. Municipal coins.

TREVES. Baudoin de Luxembourg (1309-1354): Coblence.

BERG. Adolph VIII (1308-1348): Wipperfurth.

GUELDERS. Renald I (1272-1326): Arnhem.

CUINRE. Henry (XIV. cent.).

B. Irish types.

The Irish Sterling is similar to the English type, with the difference that the facing head is placed in a triangle. It was not much imitated.

1. Type of Henry III.

COLOGNE. Henry II of Virneburg (1304-1332). Mitred head; on rev., cross pattée with four mullets in angles.

LIPPE. Bernard III (1229-1265). Close copy.

2. Type of Edward I.

Duby mentions a coin of Walram II of Ligny, struck at Serain, said to be a close copy of the Irish sterling. This coin has not re-appeared.

C. Scottish types.

On the Scottish Sterlings, the King's head is in profile to left.

The coins of king William and those of Alexander III differ from one another as the older English pennies differ from those of Edward I.

The older Scottish type was imitated in the north of Germany by the Abbey of Helmershausen and the Counts of Schwalenberg. The closest counterfeit of Alexander III's Sterling bears the name of Robert de Béthune, count of Flanders.

D. Brabantine types.

Brabant originated two types of Sterlings which were both in great repute in the fourteenth century and from the end of the thirteenth.

1. The Shield Sterling, of John I (1261-1294). On obverse, either a lion shield, or a shield party per two lions; on reverse, sometimes a voided cross with four letters in the angles, or a cross pattée in angles of which trefoils or rosettes.

a) Plain shield. R. Cross voided. Issued in the four mints of Brabant: Brussels, Louvain, Maestricht and Daelhem. The following imitations are known:

Walram, duke of Limburg (1244-1277): Rolduc.

Henri de Louvain, seigneur of Herstal (1255-1285).

Zweder, seigneur of Vorst.

Arnould VIII, count of Looz (1280-1328). His coins bear the fess shield of Looz.

Thierry of Heinsberg (1258-1303): Gangelt.

Otto, count of Cleves (1305-1311): Huissen.

Renaud I, count of Guelders (1272-1326): Arnhem.

Gui de Dampierre (1263-1297) and Jean I (1297-1331), counts of Namur.

b) Shield party. R. Cross pattée. This type, decreed after the conquest of Limburg by John I, duke of Brabant, was minted by him at Bonn, Rolduc, Louvain and Antwerp. We have several imitations.

Arnould VIII, count of Looz (1280-1328).

Jean I, count of Namur (1297-1331).

John the Blind, count of Luxemburg (1309-46).

Jean d'Arzilières, bishop of Toul (1310-1321): Blenod.

Gaucher de Châtillon, as feudatory of Morey (1312-1322).

Renaud I, count of Guelders (1272-1326).

c) Hybrid type consisting of the plain shield and cross pattée. Issued from two Brabantine types or from a Brabantine and an English type, it was never used in Brabant itself.

Jean I d'Avesnes, count of Hainault (1280-1304).

Jean d'Enghien, bishop of Liège (1274-1281).

Henri de Louvain, seigneur of Herstal (1253-1285).

Enguerrand de Créqui, bishop of Cambrai (1273-1292).

Gui, count of Saint-Pol (1292-1317).

2. The Sterling with four lion shield is of Jean III. We now go farther away from the English type, as the cross on the reverse is foliate and does not divide the legend. The following are some of his imitators.

William I, count of Hainault (1304-1337).

Margaret of S' Heerenberg.

Jean II, count of Namur (1331-1335).

Wenceslaus, duke of Luxemburg (1353-1383).

Gerlach of Nassau, archbishop of Mayence (1346-1371).

Godfrey III, seigneur of Heinsberg (1361-1395).

Henry, count of Veldenz.

E. Various types of local formation.

A very large number of princes struck Sterlings reproducing either one of the English crosses (voided or pattée, with three pellets in each angle) or one of the Brabantine crosses. But on the principal side occurs a local type which has nothing in common with the Sterling.

§ II. The Cavalier d'argent (Ryder in silver).

Margaret of Constantinople, countess of Flanders and Hainault created, about 1275, in the mint of Valenciennes, a coin worth two sterlings, or about two thirds of the gros, of the type of the Horseman to r., holding drawn sword. Under Jean II d'Avesnes (1280-1304), the coin, which first of all was faithfully reproduced, was slightly altered, the horseman being turned towards the left, armed with shield and lance with pennon.

The Double Sterling of the Ryder type obtained a considerable success, less however than the Sterling and Gros Tournois. This is a list of the rulers who introduced it in their dominions:

1. Primitive type of Margaret.

HAINAULT. Margaret of Constantinople (1244-1280): Valenciennes.

BEAUMONT. Baudouin d'Avesnes (1246-1288).

UTRECHT. Jean de Sierck (1282-1296): Vollenhoven.

COEVORDEN. Renaud I de Borkulo (circa 1296).

CUINRE. Jean (end of the XIIIth century).

2. Types of Jean II d'Avesnes.

HAINAULT. Jean II d'Avesnes (1280-1304): Valenciennes and Maubeuge.

— Guillaume I le Bon (1304-1337): Valenciennes.

NAMUR. Jean I (1297-1331): Namur and Vieuville.

FLANDERS. Robert de Béthune (1305-1322): Alost.

BRABANT. Jean II (1294-1312): Antwerp and Genappe.

LOOZ. Arnould VIII (1280-1328): Hasselt.

LUXEMBURG. Henri IV (1288-1309): Méraude.

— John of Bohemia (1309-1346).

COEVORDEN. Renaud II or III (1315-1357).

SELWERD. Anonymous ruler of the XIVth century.

CUINRE. Jean (circa 1331).

LORRAINE. Ferry IV (1312-1328): Nancy.

NEUFCHATEAU. Gaucher de Châtillon (1309-1329).

TOUL. Jean d'Arzilières (1310-1321).

CAMBRAI. Pierre de Mirepoix (1309-1324): Cateau-en-Cambrésis.

ELINCOURT. Gui IV de Saint-Pol (1300-1317).

CRÈVECŒUR. Jean de Flandre (1313-1335).

ARLEUX. Jean de Flandre (1313-1335).

WALLINCOURT. Jean (1306-1314).

SERAIN. Walram II of Ligny (1304-1353).

DAUPHINY. Jean II (1307-1319).

ORANGE. Bertrand III (1282-1335).

— Raymond III (1335-1340).

As will be noticed, the Ryder (Double Esterlin au cavalier) served as international money, during the first half of the XIVth century, to four regions: Belgium, the North of the Netherlands, the North of France (Cambresis and Lorraine) and the South of France (Dauphiny and Orange).

§ III. The Gros Tournois.

In studying the imitations of the Gros Tournois, we have to differentiate between the various Royal types. There is first of all the primitive type of Saint Louis, that is, the castle surmounted by small cross, which was closely copied in a large number of mints, very often with the legend TVRONVS CIVIS. But so far from the imitators keeping faithful to the copy, many princes, while giving to their Gros the general aspect of that of St. Louis, made alterations to it, ending by substituting types which are almost original. One of these types which obtained the widest circulation, without however reaching outside the older Netherlands, is the châtel brabançon which appears for the first time at Brussels under the reign of duke John I. Under John II, the gros au châtel is being already coined at Brussels, Antwerp and Maestricht. The coins of the two Johns cannot be confused, because those of the former have the border formed of groups of three globules, whilst those of the second preserve the border of fleurs de lys.

In the county of Namur, under John I, the Brabantine design was slightly altered, and the castle, instead of having two small pointed towers, was shown with crenelated towers. This type of châtel namurois was copied by Henry IV count of Luxemburg (1288-1309), Arnould VIII count of Looz (1280-1328) at his mint of Brusthem, and Gui IV de Saint-Pol (1300-1317) at Elincourt.

Other mints went still further away from the primitive tournois type. Thus, in the Hainault, William I substituted for the castle the ladder or the Hainault monogram surrounded by TVRONVS VALIS (Valenciennes). In Piedmont, Philip of Achaia (1305) substituted for the French type a small shield in an epicycloid, but in adopting the legend TORINVS CIVIS he indicated his intention to strike real Gros Tournois.

More often still, the castle was replaced by a totally different type, and the imitation is restricted to the border of fleurs-de-lys and the two concentric inscriptions. But there also, the modifications are numerous, other subjects are substituted for the fleurs-de-lys, or the old legend benedictum sit, etc. is changed into varied inscriptions. In making up a list of these imitations, it has at first appeared to us logical to classify them according to their degree of connexion with the original piece; but a list should have a practical object, and if we had followed up our intention, the reader would have found it most difficult to understand it. That is the reason why, after due consideration, the geographical arrangement has been adhered to.

EVREUX. Philippe de Longueville (1356-1375). PHVS or PHS NAVARRE.

BRITTANY. Charles de Blois (1341-1364): castle replaced by a crown.

— Jean IV (1345-1399): Gros au châtel and Gros with the I taking the place of the castle.

LIMOGES. Charles de Blois (1341-1363).

AQUITAINE. Edward III (1327-1367): TVRONVS REGEM, DVX AQUITANIE, etc. Castle of the Aquitanian type, sometimes replaced by a crown or crowned leopard.

BERGERAC. Henry of Lancaster: Castle surmounted by leopard, or replaced by LANCAIE DVX in two lines under a crouching leopard. Others with the crown or leopard in place of the castle.

NAVARE. Charles le Mauvais (1349-1387): border of lys and chain border of Navarre; castle replaced by a crowned bust.

BURGUNDY. Eudes IV (1315-50): EVDÈS DEI GRATIA. — An other gros tournois, struck at Auxonne, reads BOVRGVNDIA, the crosslet above the castle being replaced by a small shield of Burgundy.

— Philippe de Rouvre (1350-1361): BRGVNDORV: DVX in two lines across the field under a crown; or three fleurs-de-lys under a crown.

— Philippe le Hardi (1363-1404): TVRONVS DVCIS.

PROVENCE. Charles I of Anjou (1245-1285): KAROLVS. SCL. REX—COMES PVINCIE.

— Louis and Jeanne (1347-1362): TVRONVS PVICE.

ARLES. Guillaume II de la Garde (1361-1374): large crowned G instead of the castle.

AVIGNON. Clement V (1305-1314).

— Clement VI (1342-1352).

ORANGE. Raimond IV (1340-1393): crowned R or crowned leopard in the place of the castle.

VALENCE. Louis I (1354-1379): crowned L in place of the castle.

MONTÉLIMAR. Hugues Adémar IV (1360-1387): crowned H in place of the castle.

DAUPHINY. Charles V (1349-1364): DAPH VIENES; two of the lys of the border replaced by small dolphins.

— Charles VII (1417-1440): large dolphin instead of the castle.

LYONS. Charles d'Alençon (1365-1375): K (beneath a mitre) instead of the castle.

SAVOY. Aimon (1329-1343): crown above castle.

PIEDMONT. Charles II of Anjou (1289-1309): KAROLVS SCL. REX.

— Philip of Achaia (1301-1334): shield of Savoy in the place of the castle.

LORRAINE. Thibaut II (1303-1312): TVRONVS DVCIS (anonymous coins) — LVTORENGIE DVX.

— Ferri IV (1312-1328): PHIRILLVS DVX—TVRONVS DVCIS.

— Raoul (1329-1346): TVRONVS DVCIS (anonymous coins) — LOTHORINGIE.

BAR. Henri IV (1337-1344): gros de Saint-Mihiel; another with a large fleur-de-lys taking the place of the castle.

— Henri IV and Jean de Luxembourg (1342): TVRONVS. LVCEB.

— Robert (1352-1411): TVRONVS CIVIS and TVRONVS DVCIS; another with BARRE instead of the castle, on with a large crown surmounted by fleur-de-lys; on R between fleur-de-lys.

— Edouard III (1411-1415): Gros of Mousson.

TOUL. Amédée of Geneva (1321-1330): KASTRO MEVS.

— Thomas de Bourlemont (1330-1353): large fleur-de-lys taking the place of the castle.

VERDUN. Henri IV d'Aprémont (1312-1350): gros au châtel and gros à la grande fleur-de-lys.

LUXEMBURG. Henry VII (1288-1309): anonymous gros of Méraude (MARCHIO ERLON—EMERAVDENSIS) with forked castle (Brabantine type).

— John the Blind (1309-1346): TVRONVS LVCEB.

— Charles IV (1346-1353): KHAROLVS REX or IMP.

CHINY. Arnould V of Looz (1299-1310): cf. Looz.

CAMBRAI. Guillaume II d'Auxonne (1336-1342): gros au châtel and gros à la fleur-de-lys.

— Pierre IV d'André (1349-1368): castle surmounted with lion or eagle, or replaced by CAMAC or by a crown adorned with croziers and mitres.

HENRY THOMAS GROGAN.

We regret to report the death of Mr. H. T. Grogan, on February 16th last at Barnes.

The following particulars are taken from "London at the Opening of the 20th Century".

He was son of the late William Grogan, of 125, Piccadilly, W. and 97, Queen's Gate, S.W., Surveyor-General to the Duchy of Lancaster; born in 1850; educated at Bonn-on-the-Rhine, Paris and King's College, London, where he matriculated. For some years acted as foreign correspondent to a leading London bank later, entered his father's office at 125, Piccadilly, remaining with him several years. In 1877 he commenced practice in Park Street Grosvenor Square, W., as Surveyor, Estate Agent and Valuer practising as Messrs. H. Grogan and Company; was a Fellow of the Surveyors' Institution. Recreations: travel, numismatics, and collecting antique furniture.

Mr. Grogan was a very faithful contributor to the Numismatic Circular, in which, indeed, all his writings on his special subject appeared. His latest paper was printed as recently as December last and was on "The Gold S. Thomé of 1670". Other articles were The Issues of the Malaca Mint (vol. XXIV); Inedited Pieces of Goa and Ceylon (vol. XXII); The Silver Issues of Goa: The Cross of Christ type (vol. XXI); The Issues of the Diu Mint; The Gold Issues of Goa; The Silver Issues of Goa: The Saint Type (vol. XX); Portuguese Ceylon Coins (vol. XIX); Ceylon Dutch Currency (vols. XVII, XVI); The Indo-European Pagodas (vol. XVI). His collection was sold at Amsterdam in 1914.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

April 24th. Sir Arthur Evans, F.S.A., &c., &c. President in the Chair. Major V. J. E. Ryan and Messrs. W. Arthur Colgate and E. E. Pilkington Rose were elected Fellows of the Society.

Rev. A. W. Hands exhibited a denarius of Carausius found in the Cotswolds, obv. IMP CARAVSIVS AVG. Bust r. R. Clasp hands CONCORIA (sic): R.S.R. (wt. 55.5 gr.). The legend CONCORDIA alone was not previously known on the silver coins of Carausius.

Prof. Oman exhibited debased antoniniani of Victorinus. Tetricus I and II, Aurelian, Tacitus, Florianus, Probus, Carus, all apparently silver rather than silver washed.

Sir Arthur Evans exhibited an aureus of Aurelian obv. IMPCDOM AVRELIANVS AVG. Bust l. R. FIDES MILITUM, Fides holding standard in each hand. Mr. F. A. Walters, F.S.A., showed a silver fourth century drachm of Athens with an unpublished symbol, head of Medusa.

Mr. L. A. Lawrence, F.S.A. showed a denarius apparently a mule between M. Aurelius and Lucius Verus. Obv. IMPLVERVS AVG. Bust of Lucius r. R. Providentia standing l. PROV DEOR TRP XVII COSIII a date of the reign of M. Aurelius.

Prof. Oman showed a 25 pfennig note of Niederlahnstein with the satirical type of an aged and decrepit food controller armed with a quill pen represented as helpless against a food hoarder, and a 50 pfennig note of Aurbach with type the Devil carrying off a food hoarder to Hell. Mr. Webb exhibited a fine series of coins of the third century in illustration of his paper.

Mr. Percy H. Webb read a paper on the reform of the coinage by Aurelian. The evidence of the coins was against Homo's theory of two reforms one in 271 and the other in 274 and none of the historians suggests two reforms. The historical references are inconsistent with a view that the reform of the mint involved any alteration in the monetary system. The coins themselves show a great improvement in size, style and alloy. They fall into two classes and a small class of transitional pieces. The first class closely resembles the coinage of Claudius Gothicus; then follows a small second, transitional, series of better workmanship. The third class shows great improvement and marks the completion of the reform: They always bear a radiate bust or bust on a crescent. The modern practice of mint marking was very irregularly employed till the reform of Aurelian who developed the system, which enabled coins to be traced to the officers responsible for their issue and thus checked previous fraudulent practices. Mr. Webb discussed the XX and XXI coins, and the inscription VSV. He held the view that both XX and XXI indicated XX equal to some unit. He suggested that Aurelian's improved coins were antoniniani of 20 to the aureus. His reforms on the whole seem to have been a restoration of the old system rather than the introduction of a new one.

An interesting discussion followed. Mr. Mattingly expressed his agreement with many of Mr. Webb's conclusions, but insisted on the necessity of taking the "denarius communis" of the edict of Diocletian seriously into account in any consideration of the coinage of the preceding period. He pointed out the apparent connexion between the reforms of Diocletian and Aurelian, as seen for instance in the XX, XXI on the coins, and urged the advantages of an explanation that would cover both. Prof. Oman made the suggestion that the decline of the denarius was mainly due to the flooding of the market with gold by Diocletian. Mr. Sydenham put forward briefly a very interesting new theory of his own, which is attractive for its ingenuity. He proposed to expound it more fully in a coming meeting.

Sir Arthur Evans threw out a new suggestion in explanation of VSV on billon coins of Aurelian and Severus; VSV is an abbreviation, comparable to C.E.S. = Cum Exercitu Suo, on coins of Gallienus, and equals V(OTA) S(oluta) V (Quinquennialia).

May 15th. Sir Arthur Evans, President in the Chair.

Sir John W. Cawston, K.C.B., Messrs. G.C. Drabble, and W. Lisle Savage were elected Fellows of the Society.

Mr. E. A. Sydenham exhibited a representative series of Roman coins in illustration of his paper.

In part II of his article on the Roman Monetary System, Mr. Sydenham traced the changes and developments that occurred in the Augustine Coinage down to the time of Gallienus. These changes were mainly of three kinds: (1) the addition of new denominations or new forms of existing denominations, (2) the temporary or permanent discontinuance of certain denominations, and (3) the tendency towards depreciation by the reduction in the weight of the gold and bronze and by the increase of the alloy in the silver. The first new denominations were the brass semis and copper dupondius. The former obtained currency at Lugdunum from B.C. 2 to A.D. 22 and the latter was merely a sporadic issue of the three moneyers who held office in B.C. 5.

The existence of unusually heavy dupondii during the reigns of Tiberius, Caligula and Claudius opened the question of the value of orichalcum relative to gold, silver and copper. It is evident that, although between the years 22 and 54 A.D. the orichalcum used for coinage was of the finest quality, its value relatively to that of pure copper proved to be less than that originally assigned to it by Augustus. Hence the necessity of issuing coins at a heavier standard. Even so the difficulty does not appear to have been overcome; and during the first six years of Nero's reign the issue of brass and copper was continued, until in A.D. 63 the experiment was tried of striking all the denominations in orichalcum. Nero's elaborate system came to an end in A.D. 68 and Galba reverted to the simpler Augustan coinage which became stereotyped under the Flavians and Antonines. With the settlement, however, began the decadence of the coinage, and from the death of Commodus the tendency to deteriorate grew apace. Such attempts as were made by Caracalla, Alexander Severus, and Decius to restore the prestige of the coinage were attended with ill success, and, in their results, tended for the most part to add confusion to a system that was fast becoming unintelligible. Thus the reign of Gallienus witnesses to the débauche of the once splendid coinage of Imperial Rome.

The institution by Caracalla of a new denomination, commonly called the Antoninianus opens an interesting field of speculation, and, among other things, it seems probable that it had the effect of changing the relation of the denarius to the aureus. That is to say, under Caracalla, the aureus was worth 20 antoniniani or 30, instead of 25, denarii. The large bronze coin, introduced for a short period under Trajanus Decius, and commonly described as a "double sestertius" (p. 17) seems more probably to have been a piece worth a sestertius and a half. Thus it was a quarter of an antoninianus just as the sestertius had been a quarter of the now obsolete denarius. The reform of Aurelian in A.D. 271 marks the advent of a new coin, similar to the decadent "antoninianus" but apparently a new species of denarius composed of plated copper, bearing the mark of value XXI. The probable meaning of this symbol and the corresponding VSV sometimes found on coins of smaller module was considered at length.

The last phase of the coinage dealt with in the article is the important reform of Diocletian. The aim of the reform was the reinstatement of the silver denarius (or miliarensis) so as to bring the gold once more into relationship with the lower denominations of the currency — the latter being of plated copper — and the establishment of a universal standard of values. Of the boldness of the enterprise there can be no question, but that it lacked permanency was due to the unsoundness of the economic principles on which most of Diocletian's schemes were based, and the utter impossibility of arbitrarily enforcing a uniform standard of values through the Empire. Prof. Oman, Mr. Webb, Mr. Mattingly and Sir Arthur Evans took part in the discussion which followed.

June 19. Sir Arthur Evans, President in the Chair.

The Report of the Council for the past year was read and adopted: it showed an increase of five in the number of Fellows in the year and a substantial increase in the Society's balance.

The Society's Medal was presented to M. Adrien Blanchet, Membre de l'Institut, in recognition of his contributions to Numismatics, especially Roman, Gaulish, and Mediaeval.

The President delivered his Annual Address in which he appealed for a more scientific classification of Greek Mints than the arrangement — alphabetic within certain political areas —, at present in use. He then read a paper entitled Contributions to Cretan Numismatics in which he discussed the coinage of Crete on the lines suggested in his address. His fine collection of Cretan coins was exhibited.

The result of the Ballot for office bearers for 1919-1920 was announced and the following were elected :

President : Professor C. Oman, Vice-presidents : Sir Arthur J. Evans and Sir Henry H. Howorth., Treasurer : Mr. Percy H. Webb., Secretaries : Mr. Allan and Lieut.-Col. H. Walters Morrieson., Foreign Secretary : Mr. George C. Brooke., Librarian : Dr. Oliver Codrington., Members of the Council : Miss Helen Farquhar, Messrs. H. Garside, M. Hewlett, G. F. Hill, L. A. Lawrence, Leopold G. P. Messenger, Rev. Edgar Rogers, Rev. E. A. Sydenham, H. W. Taffs and F. A. Walters.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

March 26th, 1919. Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, F.S.A., President, in the Chair. The following gentlemen were elected members of the Society : Samuel Norwood Grant Bailey, B. A., LL.B.; Henry Platt Hall, F.R.N.S.; John Martin; G. Hamilton-Smith.

Paper.

Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson, having vacated the Chair, which was taken by Major Carlyon-Britton, read a paper on entries of numismatic interest contained in an article by Dr. Henry F. Berry, I.S.O., on the Masters' Accounts of the Merchant Tailors' Guild of Dublin, which appeared in Vol. XLVIII of the Journal of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland. All the items discussed by the lecturer occur in the extracts for the years 1553-1561, which appear on page 22 of the article in question, and some of them are definitely given as in Irish currency, although no specific mention of that currency is to be found at any later date. It may be added that sums of less than two shillings are invariably given in pence, a custom which appears to have lasted until the eighteenth century.

By far the most interesting of the accounts is that for the year 1561, in which are mentioned white testers, white groats, testers, groats and obols, and lastly "brown backs". Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson gave a list of the different coins circulating in Ireland in the sixteenth century, illustrating it by a selection from his own cabinet, and discussed the values at which they were ordered to pass current. The white testers and white groats of the account must be referred to Queen Elizabeth's second coinage, issued in 1561, which contained 11 oz. of fine silver to 3 oz. of alloy. Of base testers there were no fewer than four distinct issues during the reigns of Edward VI, Philip and Mary, and Elizabeth. The current values of these ranged from 8 d. down to 3½ d., and those of the groats varied between 1¼ d. and 1½ d. The "brown back" could not be identified with precision, for the only nick-name the lecturer had been able to trace was that of the "Bungal", which was mentioned in Simon's Essays, but it was not unlikely that the term was applied, certainly not inappropriately, to the base shillings of Edward VI, which had recently been decried and countermarked with a portcullis or a greyhound, according to the amount of base metal they contained. Finally, a word of sympathy was expressed for the cashier of the period, who must have had the greatest difficulty in balancing his accounts correctly, with so many coins of similar names but varying values in circulation, and who, in such a monetary chaos, must have been exposed to great temptations to fraud.

Before the meeting broke up, Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson announced that, since he read his paper on the "Bristol Mints of Charles I" at the February meeting of the Society, Miss Helen Farquhar had called his attention to the important evidence furnished by Harleian MS. 6833. This was a statement of Bushell's case, drawn up for submission to the Committee of the Privy Council, which was ordered by Charles II to consider his claims to compensation. The evidence included that of one Richard Nicholls, "a moneyer trusted by the Corporation of His Majesty's mint of the Tower of London, Shrewsbury, Oxon and Bristol". Another witness was one Pigott, who testified concerning the repairing of the castle of Bristol and the setting up there of a mint to coin £ 100 a week. There was also a royal letter addressed to Bushell as one of the wardens of the mint at Bristol. The attribution of the coins bearing the monogram BR to Bristol was therefore placed beyond all doubt.

Exhibitions in illustration of the Paper read.

By Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson: Two Irish "harp" groats of Henry VIII, bearing the initials of Jane Seymour and Ann of Cleves respectively, and a third with the title REX instead of DOMINVS, and the initials h. R.

Base groat and half-groat bearing the portrait of Henry VIII, but struck in the reign of Edward VI, both of the Dublin mint.

Base testoon of Edward VI; mint-mark harp on either side.

Base shillings of Edward VI, countermarked with a portcullis and a greyhound respectively.

Irish shilling of Mary, Irish groat of Philip and Mary, and base penny of Philip and Mary of the London Mint.

Irish shilling and groat of Elizabeth and Irish groat of Elizabeth, of 1561, with on the reverse a shield bearing three harps.

Other Exhibitions.

By Mr. L. A. Lawrence: Penny of the first coinage of Henry II, of the Durham mint: obverse, ✠ HENRI: R: AC; reverse, ✠ CRISTRET: ON: DVN.

By Miss Helen Farquhar: Two half-crowns, three shillings, one sixpence, one groat and one half-groat of Charles I, bearing the letters BR in monogram, all of the year 1644 and a variety of the shilling of 1645 with the monogram BR recumbent, and having peculiar stops.

Miss Farquhar also exhibited the following medals, exemplifying the muling prevalent in the seventeenth century.

1. Crowned bust of Charles II, legend: should bear both houses of parliament for true Religion and Subjects freedom stand: reverse, both Houses of Parliament, with the King and the Speaker, in session, no legend; border on both sides; silver gilt.

2. Bust of the Earl of Essex, outer legend as on No. 1, inner legend: Pro. Religione. lege. et. Parlamento; reverse, borders and gilding as No. 1.

3. Larger bust of the Earl of Essex, legend: THE SWORD OF THE LORD AND OF GYDEON, incuse; reverse type as before, but with incuse legend IN THE MVLTVDE OF COVNCEL-LORS THERE IS PEACE, no borders, silver gilt.

4. Bust of the Earl of Manchester, three-quarters towards left, wearing armour and scarf; legend, incuse: Pro. Religione. lege. Rege. et Parlamento; reverse, Houses of Parliament, neither legend nor border, silver gilt.

5. Bust of Charles I as on Med. Ill., vol. I, p. 292, No. 108: CAROLVS. D. G. MAG. BRITAN. FRAN. ET. HIB. REX. FID.; reverse, bust of Henrietta Maria; signed T RAWLINS, legend: HENRETTA (sic) MARIA. D. G. MAG. BRITAN. FRAN. ET. HIB. REG; border on either side; silver.

6. Obverse as last; reverse royal arms, enclosed in a garter and crowned: no legend; border on either side; silver gilt.

7. Bust of Prince Charles to left; no legend; reverse, arms as on No. 6; no border; silver.

Mr. Lionel L. Fletcher: Three Irish seventeenth-century tokens, each bearing the Merchant Tailors' arms, namely, Drogheda, John Rookes, 1671; Drogheda, Saml. Stanbridg, 1653; Dublin, Stephen Clark.

April 23rd, 1919. Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, R.A., F.S.A., President, in the Chair. Major E. H. Spalding was elected a Member of the Society.

The President reported applications for membership from The Nottingham Free Library, the Rev. Alan Williams, M.A., and Mr. G. W. Shaw.

Presentations.

The following presentations were announced and a vote of thanks to the donors was passed:

"On the Coinage of Henry VII", by L. A. Lawrence, F. S. A., reprinted from the Numismatic Chronicle.

"Royal Charities" (Part I), by Miss Helen Farquhar, reprinted from the British Numismatic Journal.

"Decimal Coinage", by the Decimal Association.

"Industrial Reconstruction and the Metric System", by Harry Allcock, M. I. E. E., A. M. I. Mech. E.

The Numismatist, issues of February, March and April, 1919.

Paper.

Mr. L. A. Lawrence, F. S. A., read a paper entitled "Notes, Documentary and Numismatic, on Trials of the Pyx." Mr. Henry Symonds, F. S. A., in a paper published in Volume X of the British Numismatic Journal, drew attention to provisions, made in this connection, in the reigns of Henry VII and Henry VIII, and Mr. Lawrence, following the subject back to earlier times, came to the conclusion that much important information could be obtained concerning the issues of the Plantagenet Kings and the various privy marks used in connection with them. There is still much obscurity concerning the methods of the mint under the earlier Sovereigns, but Edward III, in his eighteenth year, ordered trials of the pyx to take place every three months, and many particulars concerning these are to be found in the indentures recorded in the Close Rolls. Directions are given for the provision of a box, or chest, with more than one lock, the keys of which were to be in the hands of various officers, and a certain small proportion of the coins struck was to be placed in this after a preliminary examination by the mint officials. In due course this pyx was examined by experts, in the presence of the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, by a jury of goldsmiths, and, if all was found correct, as was usually the case, the master moneyers received their acquittance. Unfortunately, the existing records, though dividing the gold from the silver, do not inform us of the amount struck of each denomination.

The whole matter requires fuller investigation before very definite results can be obtained, especially as the issues of some of the coins were comparatively small, and it has not yet been possible to compile complete lists of all the varieties to be found, some of which are naturally of considerable rarity, but the lecturer was able to produce numerous examples of changes in the form of certain letters, the insertion of an annulet or a saltire below the King's bust, or in one of the quarters—not always the same—of the reverse, or the placing of pellets between certain letters of the legend, and there is every probability that, at any rate as regards the more abundant issues, it will eventually be possible to determine, with more or less exactness, the order in which they were struck.

Exhibitions.

By Mr. Lionel L. Fletcher: Poor Badge of the Parish of Saint Martin's-in-the-Fields, dated 1816. This badge, which is referred to on p. 220 of McMasters' History of the Parish, bears the names of I. C. Parker and T. W. Barron, Churchwardens.

By Mr. Walter L. Pocock: proofs in silver of the following Eighteenth-Century Halfpenny Tokens—Durham, South Shields, Atkins' No. 5; Norfolk, Blofield, Atkins' No. 7; Suffolk, Ipswich, Atkins' No. 33; Warwickshire, Birmingham, Atkins' No. 30; Warwickshire, Willey, Atkins' No. 276; proof in bronze of the halfpenny of Tamworth, in Staffordshire, Atkins' No. 19; proofs in silver of shillings of Dundee, Atkins' Nos. 1 and 2.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

A well attended meeting of this Society took place on April 10/19 at the house of W. Savage Esq., when Richard Cooke Esq. presided. Following the formal business, the Election of P. D. Jones Esq. of Loose, and C. Igglesden Esq. of Ashford was performed.

A long discussion was held upon the subject of the proposed Coin

Cabinet at the Maidstone Museum but all particulars are not yet to hand and the final decision was reserved. The Collection of the late Vice-President J. P. H. Wood Esq. having been offered to the Society it was decided to purchase the same by subscription, and as very substantial sums had been already promised by the President and V. Presidents the Hon. Sec. was desired to circulate a subscription list for the purpose of completing the purchase. A presentation copy of the Paper on the Pennies of Edward I. II. III. by J. Shirley Fox and H. B. Earle Fox had been sent by J. Shirley Fox Esq. R. B. A. and was presented to the Society by the Hon. Treasurer, H. Risch Esq. Many interesting items had been prepared for Exhibition but this was somewhat shortened for want of time. Mr Savage's handsome volumes of Snelling however were much admired, and a very unusual and large brass Georgian Counter was shewn by Mr Risch. The arrangements for a Summer Exhibition were considered at this meeting and will be developed later.

The May meeting of the Kent Numismatic Society took place on May 8/19 at the house of the Hon. Secretary when the chair was occupied by W. Savage Esq. — The usual business was transacted and C. H. Saunders Esq. of Maidstone was nominated for Election. — This gentleman had very generously placed his collection at the disposal of the Society and a long and pleasant time was spent in making a useful selection from it to add to the general Collection of the Society following which a special vote of appreciation and thanks was passed to the donor.

An interesting item was a letter from J. Shirley Fox Esq. R. B. A. enclosing a rare and valuable Groat of Edward III which he suggested should be sold to the highest bidder and the proceeds placed to the fund for the purchase of the J. P. H. Wood Collection — the coin however is held over for the June meeting which will doubtless be more representative.

A discussion was opened by the Hon. Treasurer on the great comparison observable in the art displayed in the present issues of English Coinage with that of many Foreign Countries and small States, notably some of the Silver issues (War-time) of Italy and Rumania which are in strong contrast in both design and execution to our own. The Hon. Treasurer gave an exhibition of some of these coins and later produced a very interesting specimen of an unpublished Token of the xvii Centy. of a most unusual type, i. e. of "Thomas Sharrard in Dover" bearing the very extraordinary date of 1638.

Illness had prevented the production of the promised Paper by Mr Savage but it will probably be read at the June meeting.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The tenth annual meeting was held in the Museum, Leeds on January 18th 1919. The President (Mr G. L. Shackles, F. R. N. S.) occupied the chair and there was an unusually large attendance of members and visitors. The recent decease of two members — Mr Councillor W. L. Harrison of Hull and Mr Chas. Wakefield of York — was announced and a vote of condolence with the relatives passed. Mrs. Greevz Fisher (Leeds) and Messrs. W. Horne (Leyburn) and D. H. Shackles (Brough) were admitted ordinary members of the Society.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr J. Digby Firth F. L. S.) presented the Annual Report which was adopted unanimously together with the Financial Statement presented by the Hon. Treasurer (Mr E. Croft).

On the motion of Mr W. Denison Roebuck, M. Sc., F. L. S., seconded by Mr T. Sheppard, M. Sc. it was decided to raise the annual subscription to the Society to five shillings and to fix the composition fee for Life membership at £ 3 = 3 = 0 d.

Mr T. Pickersgill suggested that in view of the coming Peace Celebrations a commemorative Crown Piece might suitably be struck at the Royal Mint as a lasting memorial of the Great War. Mr H. Crowther, F. R. M. S. strongly approved of this suggestion and proposed that representations with reference to the matter be forwarded to the proper authority. The motion was duly seconded by Mr W. Sykes and carried unanimously.

The following gentlemen were elected as Officers and Council for 1919:—

President: Mr G. L. Shackles, F. R. N. S.

Vice-Presidents: Mr J. F. Musham, F. E. S.

Mr J. E. Bedford, F. G. S.

Council: Messrs. M. A. Brigg, C. Edwards, R. M. Ladell, W. H. Hutton, J. Turpin, H. E. Wroot, S. Kirkwood and W. D. Roebuck.

Hon. Treasurer: Mr E. Croft.

Hon. Editor: Mr T. Sheppard, M. Sc.

Hon. Secretary: Mr J. Digby Firth, F. L. S.

Thanks were accorded the President and returning officers for their services during the year.

Papers and Exhibits: The President (Mr G. L. Shackles, F. R. N. S.) read a paper on Johann Karl Hedlinger (1691-1771) the Swiss Medallist, giving a detailed account of the life and work of this celebrated die engraver. The Lagom Medal (1746), in imitation of the antique, one of his most noted productions was shown and described.

Exhibits were as follows:—

By the President: Plaque of Thomas J. Shryock, 25 years Grand Master of the Freemasons of Maryland, also Medaille de la Reine Elizabeth des Belges which had been presented to his daughter (Miss Margery Shackles) for work among the Belgian Refugees at Hull.

By Mr* Greevz Fisher: Pieces of general interest including a scarce Irish coin weight.

By Mr J. Turpin: A large number of bronze portrait medallions by famous British and Continental engravers including examples of the work of C. Christensen, Wiener, L. C. Wyon, Hancock, Stothard and many others.

By Mr J. F. Musham, F. E. S.: A pewter medal of Sir Isaac Newton by L. B.: Pewter medal struck on the occasion of the opening of the Leeds Town Hall by Queen Victoria (1858); Leeds Farthing (1817); Glasgow Retailers' Farthing; medal of Vincent Lunardi, First Aerial Traveller in England (1784) and a very rare Masonic halfpenny (1785).

By Mr W. Sykes: Collection of 32 Leeds 18th Century tokens, 20 of these were formerly a portion of the collection of the late Mr Jas. Atkins, the numismatic author.

By Mr W. Denison Roebuck, F. L. S., M. Sc.: A small collection of silver and copper coins of Brunswick-Wolfenbüttel, Brunswick-Lüneburg and Hanover with "Horse Courant" on the obverse. The significance of the "Running Horse" on these coins and on the Badge of the West Yorkshire Regiment was explained by the exhibitor.

By Dr Ladell: Medals of Popes Alexander VII and Clement IX.

By Mr E. Croft: Bridlington and Scarborough Silver tokens for one Shilling dated 1812.

By Mr H. Crowther, F. R. M. S.: A long series of Papal medals in silver from the Leeds Philosophical Society's Cabinets.

By Mr T. Pickersgill: A series of Skidmore's 18th Century Tokens illustrating the Churches and Gates of London in existence at the period of the issue of the tokens. The exhibitor supplied interesting notes.

By Mr A. Knight: Two leather medals of the Barnsley Cordwainers' Society issued on the occasion of the Jubilee 1887 and the Coronation 1902 respectively; also a York Penny of Archbishop T. Rotherham and a Shakespeare medal by Westwood.

By Mr F. Heeley: Pattern Crown of Victoria by Bonomi; Pattern Shilling of Victoria by Wiener; Chinese Helmet Money; Fort Marlbro' Rupee; German Iron Cross; False Spanish Dollar with head of George III countermarked and afterwards recountermarked for Keighley, and Bradford Workhouse 3/— token.

By Mr T. Sheppard, M. Sc., F. S. A. (Scot.). An interesting collection of old Yorkshire Volunteer medals and Badges.

By Mr A. Rider: A collection of Papal medals, 21 pieces in all, together with a series of 36 modern Roman Catholic confirmation tokens in silver, bronze and white metal.

By the Hon. Secretary: A series of silver coins of the United Netherlands issued for home and colonial use by the States of Zeeland, Utrecht, Guelderland, West Friesland, Holland, &c.; examples of British Dump Coins for Ceylon in copper and silver; new issues in silver of the United States of America; a series of coins of Anhalt-Bernberg; coins of the Hansa towns; an undated Thaler of Brunswick-Lüneburg of Frederick II (1636-48); double thaler of Ratisbon with view of city; a uniface prisoners of war iron token for 10 pfennigs from Munster camp, Germany; a French 5 Franc piece of the First Empire, together with many other pieces of general interest.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr J. E. Bedford, F. G. S. kindly entertained the members and was thanked for his hospitality on the motion of Mr T. Pickersgill, seconded by Dr Ladell.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Report of November 1918 Meeting.

The November Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on the 28th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the Chair.

After the formal business had been transacted a letter was read from Mr. Henry Garside, the Society's Corresponding Member for London, containing recent news of interest to Numismatists, extracts from which are given at the end of this report.

The President, Dr. Abbott, opened the Numismatic proceedings with an Address on "The Cult of Poseidon as illustrated by Greek Coins".

The Doctor commenced his address with a short account of the rise and nature of this important cult and its influence on life in Ancient Greece, and afterwards traced their bearings on history and art of a number of Greek Coins whose types directly refer to it; chief among which are the following, exhibited by the Doctor from his own collection :

The Curious staters of the City of Poseidonia with their incuse reverse and flat fabric of finest Greek Archaic art. Professor Percy Gardner thinks that the incuse character of this coinage was induced by the popularity of the beautiful repoussé bronzes of Argos and Corinth. The cable border which surrounds the coins is a characteristic of this work. Illustrated by a specimen or Ward's type 62.

Macedon. Demetrios Poliorketes. The beautiful and celebrated coin on the Obverse of which Nike is on prow of a vessel blowing a salpinx; the original statue, which the coin commemorates, (mutilated unfortunately) is now in the Louvre. The Reverse being a fine nude figure of the god Poseidon advancing to l. and wielding trident; and it is feasible to suppose that this also is from a statue. (type Ward 399).

Also the very fine tetradrachm of the same monarch. (Type Ward 401). The Obv. having a fine head of Demetrios and the Rev. Poseidon resting foot on stone and leaning on long trident.

Bruttium. The fine Octobol (Type Ward 91) with Obv. Head of Amphitrite and Rev. Poseidon same position as on last coin but foot resting on top of Ionic Column.

A discussion followed in which a novel theory was suggested, viz : that Poseidon may have been king of Atlantis.

In connection with an exhibition of Coins of the British East India Company, Mr. H. Priestley read a descriptive paper in which this most important series of coins was described from its inception under Elizabeth to the abolition of their coinage privileges in 1858. Particular attention was drawn to the series struck at the Company's Indian mints of Indian and Anglo-Indian types but of native fabric, mute witnesses of some of the greatest actions of the British Raj in India. The connection of the Coinage with the history and commercial activities of this great Company was also outlined.

1599. Foundation of the Company.

1599/1612. "Separate" Voyages.

1612. Inauguration of "Company" Voyages.

1676. Establishment of the Mint at Bombay sanctioned by the Crown (Bombay rupees issued).

1698. First Amalgamation (3 Companies).

1709. Second — ("London" & "General" Companies).

1813. Its monopoly abolished.

1833. Charter renewed but trading abandoned.

It will thus be seen that this paper forms a useful guide to this very fine and important British series.

The special exhibits were of much interest.

By Mr. P. J. Marks. A New Medal issued by the War Chest in commemoration of the A. I. F. and introduced on War Chest Day 1918.

Description. Brass. Weight. 143.5 grains with ring. Diameter 27 mm. Obv. Bust to r. of private of the A. I. F. with rifle and bayonet. Leg. HONOR TO OUR SPLENDID MEN OF A. I. F. Rev. III. Thomas Stothard. (Painter and Book illustrator) by L. C. Wyon. Obv. Bust to r. Rev. "The Canterbury Pilgrims".

IV. David Cox (Painter) by G. Morgan. Obv. Bust almost full face. Rev. "Lancaster Sands".

By Mr. H. Priestley. Three porcelain coins of Eastern Asia, possibly of Corea, description as follows :

I. Octagonal. Green on white ground. Obv. Chinese characters. QUOY SHING (possibly name of the ruler or officer issuing the coin). GUN FONG. Currency, Tablet. Reverse. A Crab.

II. Larger size, Octagonal. Blue on white ground, Chinese lettering. SHUN LEE (a name). CHIN — Coin.

III. Smaller size as above. SHUN LEE (a name). FONG — Tablet.

Translation of the Chinese characters by the Editor of the "Sydney Chinese Herald".

Extracts from Mr. Garside's letter :

"The design of the Gallipoli Star has received the approval of His Majesty the King, and all those gallant men who fought in the campaign will be entitled to this distinctive decoration.

"A gold coin of the value of fifteen rupees has been minted in India. It bears the crowned bust of the King and Emperor on the obverse, and the value and the date, 1918, on the reverse.

"His Majesty the King has approved of a special medal being granted to Masters, Officers, and Seamen of the Mercantile Marine for services performed in the danger zone during the war. The medal will be issued at the end of the war, and clasps will be awarded where conspicuous service has been rendered.

"A correspondent in Canada kindly informs me that in future all coins required for circulation in British Honduras and Jamaica will be struck in the Ottawa branch of the Royal Mint; instead of in the Royal Mint, London.

"A correspondent in the Far East kindly informs me that a proposal is on foot to coin a gold dollar in China."

Report of January 1919 Meeting.

The January meeting of the Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Bridge Street, Sydney, on the 23rd of the month, Mr. W. A. Gullick, Vice-President being in the chair.

After the usual business the Numismatic Proceedings commenced with the reading of the first portion of a paper by Mr. Henry E. Parkes entitled "Modern sources of history especially applicable to Numismatic research" which although somewhat long was well received.

This comprised the "Introduction" in which the various sources were classified as follows : (I.) Non-literary Sources. (II.) Literary Sources. The second division did not fall within the scope of the essay as it comprised the works of ancient, mediaeval and modern historians and writers on collateral subjects.

The first or non-literary division, the great and ever fertile source of modern research was subdivided as follows : (I.) Sources of history previous to the advent of the printing press. (II.) Sources of history after the dissemination of knowledge by the press became general.

The author proposed treating only the first of these subdivisions and divided it into the following sections of which the first only was treated in the paper read.

I. Inscriptions.

II. Coins.

III. Engraved seals, gems and scarabs.

IV. The technique of the potter and smith.

V. The art of the potter and smith.

VI. Wall paintings and mosaics.

VII. Sculpture (architectural and decorative).

VIII. Architecture (public, domestic and funereal).

Before entering on the character and value of inscriptions the author first treated of the materials used, which often determined their character and then passing on to the inscriptions themselves illustrated their extraordinary variety and value by the results of modern excavation and research on ancient sites particularly during the seven years preceding the war.

This paper was followed by an exhibition by Mr. Percy J. Marks, of Government War Medals, awarded to Australians fighting on Australia's behalf in the wars of the British Empire previous to the present great war; he read his series of extended catalogue notes which proved of much interests. These medals comprised New Zealand Army and Navy for the Maori War, and of this medal there are 22 dates for the Army and 10 for the Navy. The "Soudan Contingent" medals (Egyptian war of the eighties) British-Medal, Khedive's star (official), City Council of Sydney Medal (unofficial). The Boer War Queen's and King's Medal. China War (1900) Australian Naval forces (British Medal), and the long service Medals of New South Wales., (Pistrucci's design) Victoria, New Zealand and Commonwealth.

Mr. W.A. Gullick exhibited Two French Commemorative Medals by Prudhomme. One commemorative of the glorious defence of Verdun and the other of the continued faithful attachment of Alsace and Lorraine to France. These while of small intrinsic value were magnificent examples of modern French medalic, art and veritable chef d'œuvre upholding the acknowledged position of many French issues of later years. The female heads on the obverse of the Medals, impersonating "Verdun" and "Alsace-Lorraine" are of the highest grade of idealistic art and the simple reverses complete the charm. The former has the legend AUX/GLORIEUX/DEFENSEURS/DE/VERDUN, below a branch of roses; and the latter a Cupid bearing a scroll inscribed FIDELITE A/LA FRANCE.

The obv. type suggests that the Roscia gens came from Lanuvium the most ancient and principal sanctuary of Juno Sospita. The rev. type depicts the scene which occurred at Lanuvium at the annual festival in honour of the goddess, when a young girl descended into the grotto under her temple with food for the sacred serpent that dwelt there. If the girl was chaste she returned in safety to her home where she was greeted with much rejoicing. Crowds from Rome witnessed the ceremony and it is possible that a member of the Roscia gens may on one occasion have been selected to perform it. B.M.C., 1, 422.

 * The bombardment of Algiers was conducted by the English fleet in consequence of the ravages made by Algerian pirates on the commerce and coasts of the Mediterranean. The battle lasted from two o'clock in the afternoon till ten o'clock, when, the shore batteries having been nearly all silenced, the English fleet ceased firing. Next day Lord Exmouth sent off a despatch, offering the Dey peace on the conditions of the ultimatum. The chief of these related to the abolition of the slave-trade for the future, and the immediate restitution of all Christian slaves without ransom. These conditions were immediately agreed to.

COINS OF THE CITIES VISITED BY ST. PAUL

Galba A.D. 69.

As Galba reigned only a few months it is surprising that any coins should have been issued at Antioch bearing his authority, especially as he never went to the Eastern provinces. Antioch must have been in constant connection with Rome and the means of communication good and rapid.

The only two coins in the British Museum of the Emperor are of bronze.

ENI in the time of

C. Licinius Crassus Mucianus Legate of Syria A.D. 67-69. He had been Consul in A.D. 52 and was afterwards consul in A.D. 70 and 75.

He had passed by adoption from the Mucianian gens to that of the Licinian. His character is given by Tacitus in Hist. I. 10. "Affable and arrogant, addicted to pleasure and by fits and starts a man of business. When at leisure from affairs he gave a loose rein to his luxurious passions, if his interest required it he came upon mankind with superior talents."

The date on the coin is 117th year of the Cæsarian era at Antioch that began in 49 B.C. so the date signifies the year 68 of the Christian era.

The coin must have been struck as soon as the news arrived that he was proclaimed Caesar.

Otho.

The bronze coins of this Emperor issued in Antioch are much sought after because they fill up the gap in the Imperial Bronze series. No bronze coins were issued by the Senate during the brief reign of Otho. Mucianus at Antioch acknowledged Otho as Emperor. Otho died on the 15 April A.D. 69 so his reign had lasted only three or four months.

Like Galba he had never been in the Eastern provinces. The letters S C on the coins of Antioch issued by Galba and Otho do not signify that the Roman Senate recognized their authority but only that they were issued by the Senatorial decree which gave the right of coining money to Antioch in the days of Pompey.

Rev. ΕΤΟΥCΑ. Eagle to left on laurel branch : wreath in beak ; in front a palm branch.

Vespasian.

Vespasian went to the East in A. D. 66 at the head of a powerful army probably the year before St. Paul was beheaded at Rome. Three years after, Vespasian was proclaimed Emperor at Alexandria.

Mucianus, whose name occurs on coins of Galba, helped materially to establish the authority of Vespasian. The reign of this Emperor lasted ten years all but six days; he died 4th June 79 A.D. being 69 years of age.

The coins of Antioch bear witness most prominently to the power of the Roman Emperors, whose portraits take the place of the older heads of divinities. Of these gods very few appear on the coins of this city. Zeus, Apollo, Artemis, occur on the earlier coins, then the Tyche of Antioch and finally only the Roman Emperors and symbols of their authority as the letters S·C. within a wreath.

In W. T. Arnold's "Studies of Roman Imperialism" the chapter (VII) on the organization of Asia Minor is helpful to those interested in the influence of Rome in Asia Minor.

The Sibylline Oracles express the feelings of the eastern provinces towards Roman rule. To many students of the coins of these cities visited by St. Paul the interest of the types will be centred in the kind of religion the early Missionaries had to oppose, and in the case of Antioch very little of special interest appears in the choice of types.

It will be noticeable that Greek letters were used in the legends generally until the reign of Valerian 253-260 A.D. Latin letters do not occur after the earlier period of the Empire.

Seleucia Pieria.

St. Luke relates the beginning of St. Paul's first Missionary journey thus "So they being sent forth by the Holy Spirit went down to Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus" (Acts XIII). Seleucia was not a small unimportant port, but a large and strong city with many inhabitants. We therefore ask why did the Apostles pass through without witnessing for their Lord to these citizens? The answer may probably be found in the account given by Josephus (Ant. XVIII, IX, 8) of the massacre of five thousand Jews of Seleucia which had recently taken place. The Jews of Babylon had arrived in great numbers on account of the violence of Anilius, a Jewish brigand chief, who had made the nation hated by the Babylonians. This happened about 16 A.D. in the time of Artaban III (Arsaces XIX), who made his peace with Rome in the time of the Emperor Caius. There was probably no Jewish Synagogue in Seleucia when St. Paul passed through, after walking the sixteen miles of road between Antioch and the port.

As Barnabas was a Cypriote it was only natural that he should sail to his native land, moreover the sea was safer than the land to travellers in those days.

Although in the writings of St. Luke and St. Paul we can see no evidence that the beauty of the scenery impressed them as it naturally would travellers of our day, yet it is of interest to us in tracing his footsteps to notice the scenes he passed through and the money he must have handled. We wonder in what coin the ship master was paid; did the apostles have to change their money of Antioch in the Port for money coined in Seleucia?

In Lewin's life of St. Paul (Vol. I, pp. 116-118) are plans and views of the city shewing the picturesque nature of the site. The walls have a circumference of about four miles, and the long passage cut through the rock leading down to the quays of the port or harbour, must have been a striking and unusual approach to the sea. The city was built on the site of a former town which Strabo tells us was called Hydapotami. There is a good description of the city by Polybius on p. 171, Vol. II, Leipsic Ed. Bk. V, c, LIX. English Version by Mr. Hampton, p. 328.

Strabo (Lib. XVI, c. 11, § 4, Casaub. 748) thus describes the city :

"Seleucis is the best of the above mentioned portions of Syria. It is called and is a Tetrapolis, and derives its name from the four distinguished cities which it contains; for there are more than four cities, but the four largest are Antioch on Daphne, Seleucia Pieria, Apamia and Laodicia. They were called Sisters from the concord which existed between them. They were founded by Seleucus Nicator, the largest bore the name of his father, and the strongest his own; of the others Apamia had its name from his wife Apama, and Laodicia from his mother."

Seleucus Nicator died in 280 B.C., the city was therefore about three hundred years old when St. Paul passed through it.

The name Pieria by which it was distinguished was given to it by the Macedonians, who wished thus to recall the Pieria of their native land, mentioned by Homer as a spot touched by Hera on her way to Lemnos to meet Sleep.

So English colonists have given the names of their native towns to their far distant homes. Polybius however called Pieria the hill Coryphaeum κορυφαίη; the head, or apex, or chief point of the hills running from the Amanus range to the sea.

THE COIN TYPES.

The types witness to the influence of the Syrian citizens who, according to Josephus, before these two parties joined in driving out the Jews from their city, had been in opposition to one another. The Zeus was the Syrian god of Thunder, the wielder of the thunderbolt. His name ΚΑΣΙΟΞ is a Syrian word akin to the Hebrew קַטְזֻז, Katzuz, and to the Phoenician Baal Kitz. The emblems on the coins, a stone and a thunderbolt, are symbols of Zeus Kasios rather than of the Greek Zeus.

On one of the mountain tops near Seleucia was a temple to the Thunder god and hence the mount was called Kasios (Strabo, XVI, II, 5).

Suidas mentions Trajan's gift of silver bowls and a gilded bull's horn to this divinity after his victory over the Getæ.

Spartianus in his life of Hadrian tells us that the Emperor went to the temple on mount Casius to see the sun rise, but a thunder storm arose and a thunderbolt struck the altar and the sacrifice.

Nero is said to have sacrificed to this god in Epirus. Zeus Kasios was an aerolithic god, and the word is sometimes translated βασιλος or βασιλιν. The late legend, that Belus and Casus, sons of Inachos, who with Triptolemus brought an Argian Colony to the Orontes, was a myth made by those Syrians who desired to be thought Greeks (John Malalas, VIII, 201). Casus brought Cretans and Cyprians after having espoused Citia of Cyprus. The worship of the god of thunder was very ancient. Hadad the chief male god of Syria was a god of thunder and fertility. At Baalbec his image was represented holding a thunderbolt and ears of corn. And in still more ancient times Adad of the Babylonians and Assyrians had the thunderbolt for his image and a bull.

THE TYCHE OF SELEUCIA.

This again is a Syrian rather than Greek divinity ἡ Γαδ (Gad) was probably a native Canaanite word meaning fortune; and in Genesis XXXII Leah exclaimed, when Zilpah her maid bore Jacob a son, "fortune is come", or "the fortunate" or "with fortune". The name is not met with in Babylonian literature. In Isaiah LXV, 11 we read of those who forsook the Lord and prepared a table for Gad or Fortune. Astrologers identified Gad with the planet Jupiter, which is called by the Arabs great Fortune. Evidence of this worship is seen in place names Baalgad (Joshua, XI, 17) and Migdal Gad., (Joshua, XV, 17).

Gad, or Fortune, of the Syrians, was a masculine god, the goddess Astarte or Atargates, who was a patroness of cities, had the same attributes, but the head is more probably the common Greek type of Tyche which they copied, as it responded to the ideas of both Syrians and Greeks.

What the Greek idea of Tyche was is clearly and beautifully expressed by Pindar in his twelfth Olympian Ode, "Daughter of Zeus the Deliverer! Thou saving goddess Tyche! I pray thee keep watch around mighty Himera: for at thy bidding swift ships are steered upon the sea, and speedy decisions of war, and counsels of the people are guided on land."

Most probably the head was copied from some statue of the goddess in the city, or from some more celebrated statue such as that by the sculptor Bupalus erected in Smyrna.

THE BRONZE COINS OF THE TETRAPOLIS 149-147 B.C. ARE DATED FROM THE SELEUCID ERA B.C. 312.

I. B.M.C. 1. Size .8. Obverse. Head of Zeus to right, laureate, border of dots.

Rev. ΑΔΕΛΦΩΝ ΔΗΜΩΝ. A Thunderbolt, above ΔΕΡ (= 164 = 148 B.C.) and two monograms; beneath, a monogram, the whole in a laurel wreath.

II. B.M.C. 2. Size 7. Obverse. Head of Apollo to right, bow and quiver at shoulder, border of dots.

Reverse. ΑΔΕΛΦΩΝ ΔΗΜΩΝ. Tripod; above inscription ΔΕΡ; beneath, two monograms, the whole in a laurel wreath.

III. B.M.C. 4. Size 1. Obverse. Two bearded heads to right, each bound with a taenia: border of dots.

The heads represent the people (demi) of Antioch and Seleucia.

IV. B.M.C. No. 11. Size .9. Obverse. Similar type to No. III.

The Tyche of the city wearing chiton, peplos, and turreted head-dress, standing to left with a wreath in her right hand extended over the second word of the inscription, in her left a cornucopiae, in the field to left a monogram.

V. The Bronze coins of the second century B.C. bear on the Obverse the Head of Zeus to right laureate and on the Reverse ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ and a thunderbolt with large wings and various monograms.

VI. On the Reverse of some as No. 11 B.M.C. Æ .8 the legend ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ a thunderbolt; the whole in a laurel wreath.

VII. B.M.C. No. 14. Æ .65. Obverse. Head of Apollo to right, quiver at neck: border of dots.

Reverse. Same legend, a tripod; beneath inscription, monogram; the whole in a wreath.

SILVER COINS FROM 104 B.C. AND DURING THE FIRST CENTURY A.D.

VIII. B.M.C. No. 16. Size 1.15. Obverse. The bust of the Tyche of Seleucia wearing turreted head-dress, veil, earrings and necklace; bead and reel border.

Reverse. ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ Thunderbolt, with fillet attached, on cushion placed on a stool: the whole in a laurel wreath, ΤΗΣ ΙΕΡΑΣ ΚΑΙ ΑΥΤΟΝΟΜΟΥ various letters signifying the date.

The letter Δ signifies the year 4 probably reckoned from the era of the autonomy of the town beginning B.C. 108. See Eckhel D.N.F. III 327.

BRONZE OF 1ST CENT. B.C.

IX. B.M.C. No. 25. Size .8. Similar types and legend to No. VIII.

X. B.M.C. No. 28. Size .9. Obverse. Head of Zeus to right laureate; bead and reel border.

Reverse. ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ ΤΗΣ ΙΕΡΑΣ ΚΑΙ ΑΥΤΟΝΟΜΟΥ. Bust of the Tyche of Seleucia wearing turreted head-dress, earring and necklace; behind ΓΑ; in front, Β (9?) Κ

BRONZE COINS OF THE II CENT. A.D. WITHOUT THE HEAD OF AN EMPEROR.

XI. B.M.C. No. 29. Size .8. Obverse. ΙΕ Ρ ΑCΥΑ ΑΥΤΟΝΟΜΟΥ. Bust of the Tyche of Seleucia wearing turreted head-dress and veil: border of dots.

Reverse. ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ ΠΙΕΡΙΑC. Sacred stone of Zeus Kasios within a shrine consisting of four pillars supporting a pyramidal roof surmounted by an eagle; beneath the Type ΖΕΥC ΚΑCΙΟC: bead and reel border.

On the upper part of the stone a cavity is seen; the type and bead and reel border shew that these are coins of Trajan.

The year 188 = A.D. 157 dating from the Actian Era B.C. 31. The Commodus whose name appears on the Obverse of B.M.C. No. 31 is a legatus of Syria, apparently C. Julius Commodus Orfitianus.

See Liebenam, Die Legaten, p. 382. Cf. pp. 342, 391.

SILVER COINS OF AUGUSTUS.

XII. B.M.C. No. 32. Size 1.1. Obverse. ΚΑΙCΑΡΟC CΕΒΑCΤΟΥ. Head of Augustus to right, laureate. Bead and reel border. Weight 238 grains.

Reverse. ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ ΤΗΣ ΙΕΡΑΣ ΚΑΙ ΑΥΤΟΝΟΜΟΥ. Thunderbolt, with fillet attached, on cushion placed on a stool; beneath the stool ΙΔΡ; in the field, Α and Η: the whole in a laurel wreath.

The year 114 of the Era of Seleucia = A.D. 6.

BRONZE COINS OF TIBERIUS A.D. 4-37.

XIII. B.M.C. No. 33. Size 1.1. Obverse. ΚΑΙCΑΡ CΕΒΑCΤΟC CΕΒΑCΤΟΥ.

The Silanus named in the inscription is Q. Caecilius Metellus Creticus Silanus, Legatus of Syria from A.D. 11-17. Tacitus (Annals, Lib. II, 43) records that when Germanicus was sent to the east on account of the troubles in Armenia "Creticus Silanus, governor of Syria, had promised his daughter in marriage to Nero, the eldest son of Germanicus, and for that reason Tiberius recalled him from the province".

The date ZM = the year 47 reckoning from the battle of Actium B.C. 31; this would = B.C. 16.

The Γ = the third year of Tiberius.

A very similar coin to this was struck at Antioch on the Orontes. B.M.C. No. 150.

BRONZE COINS OF TRAJAN A.D. 98-117.

XIV. B.M.C. No. 35. Size 1.05. Obverse. ...T·P[ANOC APICT CEB Γ[EPMAAK].

Trajan the most noble Augustus Germanicus Dacicus.

Reverse. ΣΕΛΕΥΚΕΩΝ ΠΙΕΡΙΑC.

HILLE, BASTIAN der Jüngere (Germ.) of Stade; Mint-master at Tönning (Holstein-Gottorp), 1705-1713, Rendsburg, 1716-1720, and Kiel, 1722-1726.

HILLE, SIEGFRIED (Germ.). Mint-master at Wernigerode, 1488.

HILLS, JOHN (Brit.). Seal and Gem-engraver of the second half of the eighteenth century.

A bust of Cromwell, taken from the Dunbar medal, is engraved on a carnelian intaglio, and is the work of an artist of the name of Hills. The signature: J. HILLS F. occurs on a carnelian engraved with a figure of Herakles seated, as if he was taking a thorn out of his foot.

Hills is mentioned by Dalton in B.M. Cat. of Engraved Gems of the Post-classical Periods, as having been in the employ of Tassie, in conjunction with Bemflut, Bragg, Doddington, Fraser, Grew, Lambert, Law, and Manson.

At the Society of Artists Hills exhibited: 1777. Seven imitations of Flies; in crystal; — 1778. Flies; in real crystal; and at the Free Society: 1766. A Frame of impressions of Seals; — 1767. A Frame of impressions; in wax; — 1768. Two Engravings of Seals. He also exhibited at the Royal Academy: 1778. Two frames of insects; engraved in crystal and painted; — 1779. Two frames of birds and insects; engraved and coloured in real crystal.

HINGRE, LOUIS THÉOPHILE (B.D.M., Vol. II, p. 502). At the Salon of 1904, this artist exhibited a frame containing thirteen Plaquettes: A fighting Cock; — The End of the Fox; — A Bitch; — Family of Cats; — Heads of Sheep and Ram; — Head of Persian Cat; — Cocks and Turkeys; Turkeys and Hen; — Litter of Pigs; — Cows and Goats; — The Morning; — Stags and Ducks; — Sheep and Bull; — L'Alimentation; — Race canine; — 1905. HIOLIN, AUGUSTE (French). Contemporary Sculptor, born at Septmonts (Aisne); pupil of Aimé Perrey, Jouffroy, and Viollet-le-Duc. At the Salon of 1893 he exhibited a medal "To the glory of American Liberty".

HIOLLE, GUSTAVE (French). Contemporary gem-engraver; pupil of Delaporte. At the Salon of 1882 he exhibited a Portrait-cameo in sardonyx of A.M.; — 1883. M^{me} H., sardonyx; — 1885. Portrait-cameo of T. Barker, onyx; — T.L., cameo; — 1888. V.B., onyx cameo; — 1892. Michel Angelo, onyx cameo.

HIRAM (Hebrew). The artificer procured by king Solomon from Tyre for the purpose of casting the various vessels and ornaments of brass for the temple (1 K. 7. 13 f.): acc. to 2 Ch. 24, he was also "skilful to work in gold and in silver... in iron, in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen, and in crimson". The more important of his works were the two pillars of brass, the molten sea and the twelve oxen, the ten bases and the ten lavers, all of brass, besides the vessels of brass required for the temple service. According to 1 K. 7 his mother was a widow woman of the tribe of Naphtali, and his father a Tyrian brassworker. The Chronicler, however, describes him as "Huram Abi".

HIRIART, AUGER DE (French). Mint-master at Bayonne, 1500-1508; distinctive mark, a crescent at the end of the legends.

HIRSCHY, JEAN DAVID (Swiss). Contemporary Sculptor, born at La Chaux-de-Fonds (Switzerland); pupil of Chaplain. At the salon of 1906 he exhibited Portrait-plaquettes and a Saint-Sebastian; — Munich 1909: Emile Hirschy; — Eduard Meister, peintre. The writer learned drawing under this Master.

HISSIN, THÉODORE DE (French). Goldsmith, Sculptor, Chaser and Engraver, born at Vautard (Guelders). On the decease of Germain Pilon, the King appointed him Comptroller General of the effigies and dies, but the Cour des Monnaies did not ratify his nomination, 1595.

HITL. Signature on a head of young saint Æ 46 x 56.

HOBERT (also OBERT, AUBERT, or ÉBERT), BARTHÉLEMI (French). Mint-engraver at Romans, cir. 1460; later he became Mint-engraver and Assayer to all the mints of Dauphiny. The last record of him is dated 1501.

HOEF, C. J. VAN DEN (Dutch). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, by whom is a medal of the Dutch Friendly Society to Artists; 65 mill.

HOERL, WILHELM (Austr.). Die-cutter at Kremnitz, 1631-1636.

HÖGYES, DR FERENC (Austr.). Contemporary Physician and Medallist, residing at Budapest. He has completed (1914) twenty-five Portrait-plaquettes of Physicians, including Dr Andras Högyes of Budapest.

HÖHN, JOHANN (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 520). HÖGER, GIACOMO (Ital.). Mint-engraver at Naples, cir. 1735. By him is the Piastre of that date, with the legend DE SOCIO PRINCEPS and Sebetes seated on beach of Gulf of Naples.

HOHENAUER, MICHAEL (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 517). To this artist are ascribed a number of the so called Joachimsthaler Medals, one specimen of which, representing the Conversion of St. Paul is reproduced below;—

The Conversion of St. Paul.

HOITSEMA, Dr C. (Dutch). Director of the Royal Mint, The Hague; his privy mark, hippocamp, occurs on coins of Queen Wilhelmina, of varied dates.

HOLBROOKE (Brit.). Medallist of the second and third quarters of the nineteenth century, by whom there is an accession medal of Queen Victoria, 1837.

HOLE or HOLLE, WILLIAM (Brit.). Cuneator of the Royal Mint, London, from 1618 to 1623.

HOLLAND (Brit.). Gem-engraver of the end of the eighteenth century. By him is a Portrait in the character of Bacchus, in various sizes.

HOLLE, WILLIAM (Brit.). Chief-engraver at the Royal Mint, London, appointed on May 29, 1618; died in the Summer of 1624. Ruding makes no mention of him.

Mr. Hy. Symond, Engravers of the Tudor and Stuart Periods, Num. Chron., 1913, 361; Mr. H.A. Grueber, Num. Chron., 1907, p. 346, and Miss Farquhar in Vol. VIII (1905), p. 273 have contributed valuable information in connection with the work of this Engraver, which proves him to have been a fit successor to the Anthonys. "In the twelve months ending March 31, 1620, he was paid £ 120 for making twenty-six patterns, stamps, and irons for the coining of the newly made gold moneys; this occupied him for half a year" (Symonds, p. 361).

Mr. Grueber tells us that Holle was the first engraver of music on copper plates in this country and records a number of his works; he further associates him with the coinage of 1619, which shows variations in the types of the Rose-ryal, Spur-ryal, and Angel, and inaugurates new types for the Sovereign, Half, and Quarter-sovereign, which received the name of Laurels, Half-laurels, and Quarter-laurels on account of the bust of the king being represented with a laurel-crown. Miss Farquhar however is of opinion that the laurel and its parts which are of rough design and uneven workmanship and much resemble the earlier coins of Charles I, should perhaps be attributed to John Gilbert or Edward Green, who were employed as engravers at the Mint in a subordinate capacity.

At the Meeting of May 20, 1908, Royal Numismatic Society, Miss Helen Farquhar read some 'Notes on William Hole or Holle', who in 1618 was appointed "Head sculptor of the Iron for money in the Tower" and who was generally supposed to have held that post till the appointment of Nicholas Briot in 1633. From the 'Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series', it appears, however, that Holle died in 1624, and was succeeded in his office by John Gilbert and Edward Green. Miss Farquhar suggested that as the laurels, half-laurels, and quarter-laurels issued during the reign of James I. are of inferior work to the rose-royal, spur-royal, and angel, they were executed not by Holle, but by John Gilbert and Edward Green, who worked on into the reign of Charles I. This would account for the similarity of the fabric of the latest coins of James I. and the earliest of Charles I.

HOLLOWAY, THOMAS (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 534). In the Royal Academy Catalogue he is described as a gem-engraver and Painter, and the following exhibits are recorded: 1773. Portrait of the Rev. Mr. Wesley. Impression of a seal from life; — Head of Ariadne. From the antique; — The grinder. From the antique; — 1775. A portrait; a model in wax; — 1776. Portrait of a gentleman; model in wax; — The Pensive muse; an impression from an intaglio after Angelica Kauffmann; — 1685. A medal.

HOLPEIN, FRANZ (Austr.). Assistant-engraver at the Vienna Mint, circ. 1802-1811.

THE FAUNA AND FLORA ON THE COIN-TYPES OF ANCIENT ROME A CORRECTION OF THE SECTION ON "SYREN".

BY ANGELICO PRATI.

(The following article is taken from "Rivista Italiana di Numismatica", Vol. II, 1919.)

In Francesco Gnechi's work on the above subject the statement is made that the Syren is usually portrayed as the body of a woman ending in a fish, but it would seem that the Roman moneyers allowed themselves plenty of licence, because in the two sole instances where this type occurs, there is a wide difference. L. Valerius Acisculus (B.C. 46-45) depicts a bird with a woman's head, wearing an Athenian helmet, advancing and carrying a double flute; whilst P. Petronius Turpilianus (B.C. 19) stamps on his denarius a female figure, with wings and tail of a bird, playing on the flute, and Gnechi surmises that it must be the same one of the three sisters therefore, the flute-player, which is represented under two forms very different one from the other and differing also from the classical form of the Syren. He therefore asks if these can be Syrens really, as numismatists affirm, and adds that it may be that the moneyer intended to represent a Harpy, a Chimaera or some other purely imaginary type, the meaning of which has entirely escaped us.

And he finished thus: "Should they however still be Syrens under new forms, we have no right to question this arbitrary alteration seeing that on the new Italian coinage we have considered it right, or at any rate have allowed the artist, to represent Liberty by the type of an Erinna, and Italy in such a manner that no one recognizes her.... even when the name is there!"

At the outset let me say that this conception concerning the representation of Syrens as viewed by the imagination of the ancients, thus expressed by Gnechi, and unfortunately held in many learned quarters, is quite at variance with the truth.

The Syren with a body half-woman, half-fish, is a creation of the Middle Ages, whilst amongst the ancients it was depicted neither more nor less than as found on the Roman coins. In the "Mitologia classica illustrata" by Felice Ramorino (5th Ed. Milan, 1914), p. 150 the following statement is made: "As to form, the Syren was imagined to have the face of a maiden and the body of a bird. Ovid in the "Metamorphoses" (V. 552 et seq.) explains the matter, when he records that after the rape of Proserpine, they searched for her in vain throughout the earth, then desiring to be able to fly to look for her in the sea also, states: and thus have they been represented in the arts, with a tendency however to accentuate the female characteristics, leaving only the wings and the lower extremities to the bird."

.... facilesque Deos habuistis et artus
Vidistis vestros subitis flavescere pennis

In the Lessico ragionato della antichità classica by Frederic Lubker (Rome, 1891), p. 1127, it is stated that the oldest form of the Syren is that of a large and heavy bird with a woman's head, and that the power of song and the knowledge attributed to them are derived from this combination. Later legends imagined them as having the upper part of a woman and the lower part of a bird. In art they are first depicted as birds with women's heads, then as female figures with bird's legs, and lastly as women with long draperies.

It was during the Middle Ages, perhaps during that period when the study of the classics was abandoned, that the Syrens were imagined as monsters half woman, half fish, a conception still extant, especially amongst the ignorant population who asks if Syrens really exist!

Franco Sacchetti defines them thus: "The Syren is an animal, or fish, which from the middle upwards has the form of a maiden and from the middle downwards that of a fish with two tails. It lives in dangerous spots in the sea and sings so beautifully that all those who heed it fall asleep, and are then lured to destruction." (Cf. Vocabolario by Scarabelli, art. Sirena.) Dino Provenzal on p. 87 of his Dizionario dei nomi propri della "Divina Commedia" di Dante e del "Canzoniere" di Francesco Petrarca (Livorno, 1913) describes the Syrens in the same way, whilst Scartazzini in his Enciclopedia dantesca (Milan, Hoepli II, 1858, p. 1824) says that, according to some, the Syren resembled a woman from the head to the thighs, and a fish with two tails from the middle downwards; and, according to others, had wings and claws, without however adding that it was thus that the ancients had imagined them.

NUMISMATA MISCELLANEA.

1. GERMAN PRISONERS OF WAR IN AUSTRALIA MAKE MEDALS.

During the Great War of 1914-1918, a number of German prisoners of war were interned in a concentration camp in Liverpool, New South Wales, Australia, where some of them manufactured medals. A specimen struck in bronze is in the National Collection, British Museum, London, and the following is a description of it:—

O. — Upper legend: — GCC (German Concentration Camp) with a bead on the left and another on the right. Lower legend: — LIVERPOOL. N. S. W. A plain shield with a kangaroo on the left, and an emu on the right, as supporters. Above the shield a seven pointed star, and a curved line varying in thickness. Beneath the shield, a branch of mimosa on the left, and another on the right, the lower portions of the branches being crossed below. The whole within a plain rim.

R. — Upper legend: — ZUM ANDENKEN. Lower legend: — AN UNSERE KRIEGSGEFANGENSCHAFT. The legends are on an engraved raised border and their translation is: — In commemoration of our captivity. An outline of Australia bearing the inscription, in two lines: — 1914 | 1915, 1916 with a bead before and after each date. Below, an outline of Tasmania. The outlines are encircled by a beaded circle. The whole within a plain rim.

E. — Plain and bevelled.

A specimen of this medal was exhibited by the writer at a meeting of members of the British Numismatic Society in London, on Wednesday, May 23rd, 1917.

2. AUSTRALIAN BRONZE COINAGE.

Under date February 20th, 1919, an esteemed Australian correspondent writes as follows:—

The question of coining bronze money in the Royal Mint, Melbourne, is being considered by the Australian Government. In the past it has been impracticable to manufacture these coins in Australia because the machinery at the disposal of the Mint officials was unsuitable for dealing with an alloy so hard as bronze. They have therefore been made in London, Birmingham and Calcutta. Lately, however, additional machinery has been erected in the Melbourne Mint, and it is now probable that all the bronze currency required in Australia will be coined there.

3. BRITISH HONDURAS COINAGE.

A correspondent in British Honduras kindly reports the issue of copper-nickel five cents and bronze cent, both dated 1916 and each bearing the mint mark H (Heaton).

4. BRITISH INDIA GOLD COINAGE.

An esteemed Indian correspondent informs me that the gold fifteen rupees dated 1918, has practically disappeared from circulation. Most of the issue is believed to be hoarded.

5. BRITISH IMPERIAL BRONZE COINAGE.

British Imperial bronze pence dated 1918 and 1919 coined in

The Mint, Birmingham, bear the mint mark H (Heaton) to the left of the date. Similar coins, dated 1918 and 1919, minted in the works of the King's Norton Metal Company, Limited, near Birmingham, bear the mint marks KN to the left of the date.

6. EARLY PAPER CURRENCY IN AUSTRALIA.

A very interesting illustrated article by Mr. F. Gardner, President of the Numismatic Society of Victoria, on the "Early Paper Currency of Australia" is printed in "The Victorian Historical Magazine", for January, 1919.

7. SPECIAL CONSTABULARY LONG SERVICE MEDAL.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to signify his approval of the issue to the Members of the Special Constabulary of a medal (with ribbon), to be called the "Special Constabulary Long Service Medal".

HENRY GARSIDE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Sir,

Of course the article by M. Claro in your last issue refers only to the combination of Peace and Justice. However, as I happen to be reading the delightful Life of that extraordinary artist and rascal, Benvenuto Cellini, I cannot refrain from mentioning two Peace medals by him (Bk I, ch. xiv and Bk II, ch. i).

Peace of Cambrai (1530). — Obv. CLEMENS. VII. PONT. MAX. AN. XI MDXXXIII.

R. Peace with a torch, and Furor bound with chains. CLAV. DVNTVR. BELLI. PORTAE. — BENVENVTVS. F.

Peace between Hercules II duke of Ferrara and the Pope (1539). — Obv. The duke's head.

R. Peace and chained Furor. PRETIOSA IN CONSPECTV DOMINI.

The legend is held to be an allusion to the 180000 gold ducats with which the Duke purchased his precious Peace.

OBITUARY.

STOKES. — On the 21st May, of pneumonic influenza, at his late residence, Lissadurn, South Yarra, Henry Richmond, the dearly beloved husband of Emma Rawdon, aged 50 years (from Argus, of 22nd May 1919).

The many friends of Mr. H. R. Stokes, managing director of Stokes and Sons Proprietary Limited, Post-office place, were greatly shocked to hear of his sudden death, which occurred at his home, Lissadurn, Toorak road, South Yarra, on Wednesday evening, from pneumonic influenza. He went into business on Tuesday morning apparently in his usual health, and about 11 o'clock was suddenly seized with fainting, but soon regained consciousness, and was able to proceed to his home. Mr. Stokes was a man of much geniality of manner, and was greatly esteemed by his employees. He leaves a wife and four children. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Friday afternoon at the Heidelberg Cemetery (from Argus, Saturday, 24th May 1919).

The above notice in the Melbourne Argus came as a surprising and painful shock, Mr. H. R. Stokes being so well known to the writer who had found him so kind and obliging in answering his many requests for information about the very many medals struck by his firm at different times and so helping the writer to find out many points connected with Australian History.

I consider him to be the finest die sinker that Australia has produced.

It is impossible in this short notice to enumerate the very many Medals, &c. for which he has cut the dies.

Amongst a few specimens of his work before me are Melbourne International Exhibition 1880 Prize Medals. A bold and most beautiful head of Minerva used on several medals.

A helmeted head of a Roman warrior, very fine, Memorial Portrait medal of Alexander Morrison, several portrait medals for the Adelaide University, also one of his later pieces of work being a portrait medal of the late E. W. Cole.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Wednesday, May 28th, 1919. Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, F.S.A., President, in the Chair. The Nottingham Free Library, The Rev. Alan Williams, M.A., and Mr. G. W. Shaw, were elected members of the Society.

The President reported an application for membership from Mr. Herbert Ellis Norris.

Presentation. The following presentation was announced, and a vote of thanks to the donor was passed :

The Victorian Historical Magazine, containing an important article on early Australian paper currency, by Mr. F. Gardner, of Melbourne.

Paper. Mr. Alfred Anscombe dealt with Odilo, a Northumbrian moneyer of the ninth century, and with some of the stycas bearing his name.

The faulty chronology of the archbishops of York and of the kings of Northumberland was commented upon, and various finds of their stycas at York, Hexham, and elsewhere were enumerated. Some of the coins of Odilo were described, and a list of the plates in which they are illustrated was given. Comparatively few coins bear Odilo's name. Two of Mr. H. Alexander Parsons' stycas received special attention. The royal names, when turned right-about, read FHDLVOL and RDSMOF, and the moneyer's names are O-DHL and O-DHLO. Mr. Parsons attributes both these coins to King Eardwulf's times, and it is difficult to make anything but ERDVOLF out of the royal name. The divergence of O-DHLO from "Odilo" yields another puzzle.

It was pointed out that only three out of 258 forms of eighth- and ninth-century moneyers' names listed by Kenyon-Hawkins in connexion with Eardwulf, Eanred, and Ethelred II. end in o, and only one of these, viz., Odilo, is normal. This was held to justify the contention that Odilo was not the name of an Englishman. Three reasons were given : 1° the un-English ending in o ; 2° the un-English absence of vocalic infection ; and 3° the non-appearance of the name before 796. The assistance of W. G. Searle's Onomasticon Anglo-Saxonicum was invoked, and it was learnt therefrom that Odilo was a continental name, and that many Teutons who bore it from the eighth century downwards are enumerated in Förstemann's, Potthast's, and Paulus Piper's lists. "Odilo" appears in combination in the names of men of the Rhineland in the centuries enumerated, and such names as Odilbald, Odilbert, Odilolf, Odilhard, and the like are found very frequently.

The phonological side was briefly examined, and the dialect to which "Odilo" belongs was adjudged to be Old High Dutch. The peculiarities of that dialect enabled the lecturer to explain five of the problems presented by the inscriptions of the Eardwulf-Odilo Coins. These are : 1° the quite irregular absence of i-infection from initial Ō of "Odilo" ; 2° the un-English use of the digraph dh in "Odh[i]lo" ; 3° the retention of un-English final o ; 4° the unbroken vowel before the r-plus consonant in ERDVOLF ; and 5° the un-English spelling -wolf. It was explained that these difficulties are normal criteria of the Old High Dutch dialect of the time of Charlemagne, the contemporary and friend of Eardwulf of Northumbria.

Having proved that the name of Odilo is Rhinefrankish, Mr. Anscombe explained the appearance of Odilo in England as a possible consequence of the alleged marriage of Eardwulf with a daughter of Charlemagne. The Annales Lindisfarnenses were cited in support of this statement. It was pointed out that, though they are uncorroborated, and though Charles kept all his daughters about him till he died, it must be remembered that he repudiated his first wife in 771, the year after that in which he was married. Moreover, when Eardwulf was expelled from Northumbria in 808 he forthwith went to Charles at Nimeguen, and by his aid, and that of Pope Leo III, recovered his kingdom in the same year.

Exhibition. By Mr. Henry Garside : a two reales piece of Charles III of Spain, dated 1782, countermarked on the obverse with an octagon containing the letters G.R., in Roman capitals, surmounted by the royal crown. This piece was countermarked for circulation in Jamaica.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Report of Annual General Meeting, March 1919.

This meeting was held at the Society's room, 4th Floor, Education Buildings, Bridge Street, Sydney, on the 27th of the month the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the chair.

The first business consisted in the election of officers for 1919-20. Owing to the epidemic of influenza interfering with the nominations those of the council were passed.

Next followed the reading by the General Secretary, of his report of the year's progress, and also the Treasurer's statement appended thereto which latter shewed a small credit balance for the year. The report was issued with that of the January meeting, and although shewing a slight falling off in membership, the number, importance and interest of the papers and other communications of a numismatic character shewed no falling off. A vote of thanks was passed to the Officers of the past year for their efforts on the Society's behalf.

Mr. C. J. Weaver, of Sydney, and Mr. S. R. Phippard, of Sydney, were elected members.

The President then laid on the table a beautifully mounted specimen of one of the dollars salvaged from the "Emden" and presented to the Society by Captain Glossop on behalf of the Captain, Officers and Ship's company of H. M. S. A. "Sydney" aboard on November 9th 1914, the date of the "Sydney" — "Emden" engagement. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Captain Glossop for his interesting gift.

Description : Mexican dollar of the date 1896. Mint condition. Silver mounted with Crown / scrolls inscribed :

Nov. 9 1914
with silver ring attached and in leather velvet-lined case.

Then followed the Presidential Address by Dr. G. H. Abbott, entitled :

"False Coins and how to Discern them."

This, which is certainly one of the most useful and comprehensive papers on the subject which has been so far compiled, does not lend itself readily for compression but a summary of the ground covered will show its value.

Summary.

1. An account of ancient counterfeits together with their methods of fabrication and detection.
2. An account of modern imitations of ancient coins of the "Becker" and "Billy & Charley" class and their methods of manufacture.
3. Modern imitations of modern coins (not necessarily now current) and intended to deceive the public, with their methods of manufacture :

The paper contains the following headings :

1. Introduction.
2. Classes of false coins.
3. Roman Serrati.
4. Penalties of forgery.
5. Modern forgeries.
6. Ingenious methods of forgery.
7. Detection of forgeries by the ancients.
8. Debasement of Roman Coins.
9. Modern imitations of ancient coins.

10. Forgeries from false modern dies.
11. Casts from genuine ancient coins.
12. Casts from forged coins.
13. Electrotypes.
14. Genuine coins altered.
15. 19th Century forgeries.
16. Restrikes.

A most interesting exhibit of false and counterfeit coins from Dr. Abbott's own collection illustrating the paper was on view and evoked much interest.

Discussion on the address was postponed until the next meeting on account of the lateness of the hour.

English Correspondence.

From our London Corresponding member.

Extracts from Mr. Garside's letter dated 3rd January, 1919.

"Mr. Hill is now extremely busy in getting the National Coin and Medal Room (British Museum) into its normal condition.

"During the war most of the cabinets and their valuable contents were removed to a place of safety 'somewhere in England' and I am very pleased to say they have not been injured in any way by the air raids of our enemies.

"I was very glad to hear that the Australian Numismatic Society have secured a suitable room in the Education Buildings, Sydney, and I trust it will be a permanent meeting place for the members whose good work is being recognised by those in authority.

"A new copper-nickel two annas, dated 1918, has been struck in one of the mints in British India. This is the first time that this denomination has been coined in a copper-nickel alloy. They are made square with rounded corners to distinguish them from silver coins, and bear on the obverse a crowned bust of the King-Emperor and on the reverse the value in English and four other languages.

"It is reported that it has been decided to issue two war medals to officers and men who have served in the war. One medal will be granted for service in the Home Forces and another for Overseas service. It is understood that the latter will be an international medal common to all the armies of the Allies, and that in the case of both medals a bar will be given for each year of services.

"His Majesty the King has approved of the grant of a special medal to sailors of the merchant fleet for services during the war. The general recognition of the mercantile service conveyed in this award will remove any feeling which may have existed as to the value of the work done by the gallant seamen who, conjointly with the Navy have risked the submarine peril with traditional bravery in order that not only should the British Islands be supplied with food, but that the armies of the Allies should be safely transported to the scene of hostilities.

"It is reported that a medal to commemorate peace will be struck by the Corporation of London.

"I am very pleased to inform you that a Ministerial decree has been recently published in Strasbourg, under which money of the German Empire is to be replaced by French for the advantage of the recovered province of Alsace and Lorraine. Exchange is effected at the rate of one franc twenty-five centimes for a German mark. This measure has been received with much satisfaction for it saves the people from heavy loss on exchanging their German money."

Mr. G.F. Hill, M.A., Keeper of the Coins and Medals, British Museum, in a letter dated from the British Museum, London, Nov. 27, 1918, and referring to the Society's work as evinced by the "Synopsis of three years work" says, referring to the Society:

"Your endeavours to excite interest in numismatics interests me greatly and I think you are much to be congratulated on the success which has so far attended your efforts. It is a great thing to have interested the public authorities in your work; such studies are the last thing in which our public authorities take any interest here, and the first in which they economise. I am particularly glad to see that you are giving so much attention to ancient and mediaeval numismatics, the study of which is the only possible basis for the scholarly treatment of anything later."

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of this Society took place on Thursday

June 12th, when S.H. Pavière Esq. occupied the chair. The usual business of minutes and correspondence being disposed of the chairman announced two candidates for election; these were C.H. Saunders Esq. and Walter H. Day Esq., both of Maidstone, who were elected accordingly.

The death of G. Hewett Esq. of Newington was recorded with great regret; he was one of the earliest members of this Society and a keen student, collector and local historian and he leaves a large and varied collection of local finds, from early British burial pottery down to the tradesman's token. A special vote of condolence was passed to his family.

As this meeting was the last of the present session an executive was appointed to meet during the summer vacation for the alteration and amendment of rules and if possible to arrange another summer exhibition.

Among the exhibits during the evening the Hon. Sec. shewed several Anglo-Saxon pennies, two very fine pennies of W^m the Conqueror, the official silver coronation medal of Caroline, consort of Geo II., by Croker, and some very fine specimens of the rare Newington XVII century tokens.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held on May 31st 1919 in the Institute of Science, Art and Literature, Leeds.

The President (Mr G.L. Shackles, F.R.N.S.) occupied the chair. Reference was made to the death of Mr W. Denison Roebuck, M. Sc., F.L.S., F.R.P.S.L., a member of the Council, and a vote of condolence was passed with his relatives. The late Mr Roebuck was a distinguished Yorkshire naturalist and had a world-wide reputation as a philatelist.

Mr Frank Varley was admitted an ordinary member of the Society.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr J. Digby Firth, F.L.S.) read a paper on "Hop Growers' Tokens" and showed a representative collection of upwards of 300 pieces mainly from the county of Sussex. Hop tokens were little noticed by numismatists until quite recently but it was claimed that they should be considered as a legitimate branch of the tokenage. Hop Growers' tokens have possibly been in use for 300 years but they are now almost entirely replaced by more modern systems of book-keeping. The pickers received tokens in exchange for crop gathered and at the close of the season these were redeemed by the grower. In the meantime they were frequently used as an unofficial coinage being freely accepted by the local shopkeepers in lieu of coin. The denominations in early types were in currency but later the tokens were marked in 'bushels' which was more convenient as the rate paid for picking varied from year to year. Most of the tokens were cast from locally made dies in lead or lead alloys but tin, zinc, brass and other metals were occasionally used. Particulars were given as to size shape, denomination and comparative rarity of typical examples. Mr. Firth acknowledged his great indebtedness to Mr. E.B. Smith of London without whose help and advice he would not have been able to bring forward the subject of hop tokens or show such a good collection of pieces.

The President exhibited and described a selection of rare Dutch Masonic medals as follows:—

- 1) Silver medal struck in honour of the 25th Celebration of the Lodge Virtue of Leiden 1783.
- 2) Silver medal struck by the same Lodge in honour of its Jubilee and also in commemoration of an explosion which occurred at Leyden on January 12th 1807.
- 3) Silver medal struck by the Lodge "Three Pillars" at Rotterdam in honour of their Worshipful master.
- 4) Silver medal issued at Dordrecht in 1836 in commemoration of the launch of the ship "The True Brothers".
- 5) Bronze medal struck in commemoration of the founding of the Lodge, "The Cradle of the King of Rome", at the Hague in 1811. This piece, five only of which were struck, is of particular interest. At the time of the French occupation of Holland at the beginning of the 19th Century and also in 1810 when the incorporation into the French Empire took place, the Grand Orient of France wished to claim jurisdiction over the Dutch Lodges, and in a circular letter dated 17th February 1813 demanded the submission of the Grand Lodge of Holland, which was declined with great vigour on the 21st March 1813 by the Dutch Brethren. They could not, however, prevent the setting aside of their Grand Lodge, and a number of Lodges of French origin were established at Amsterdam, The Hague and elsewhere, chiefly composed of French officials and military officers. After the French rule ceased, these Lodges which comprised many members, naturally clung together and some of them sought an alliance with the Dutch Grand Orient. The same circumstances occurred at that time in Germany. One of these French Lodges was "The Cradle of the King of Rome" at The Hague.

Mr T. Sheppard, M.Sc., showed and described a number of Yorkshire medals of historic interest emanating from many Yorkshire cities and towns, also an unpublished 17th Century $\frac{1}{2}$ d. token of W^m Auckland of Askrigg, 1666, obverse head of K. Charles II.

Mr T. Pickersgill exhibited a series of English Silver and Copper Coins of William and Mary including two pattern halfpennies, also rare medals relating to the Leeds Parish Church and a Priestley medal in white metal.

Mr G. Harrison showed a number of Silver Coins of the York Mint including scarce types of Cnut, Edward III, Henry V, Henry VIII and Charles I. Also a German Iron Cross (1914) of the 1st class.

Mr F. Heeley exhibited and described curious currency from various parts of the world including red and white Shell money from the Marshall Islands, Gate money of Benin, Gaulish wheel money, Fish-Hook money from Ceylon in gold and silver, a token in black composition used in the Ceylon Plantations &c. Also a French 2 franc trial piece in cardboard (1844) and a number of English and French medals.

Mr J. F. Musham, F.E.S., showed a pair of money scales of unusual type by Daniel Robinson of Prescott, and also silver pieces of Poland, Bavaria, Gelderland and Egypt.

Mr A. Rider displayed a large collection of medals relating to Yorkshire and Lancashire.

The Hon. Sec. showed an English Bank token for 5/6 (1811).

Mr F. Varley exhibited an electrotype of the rare Charles I Rawlins Crown and a Paduan copy of a Roman 1st brass of Titus.

Mr W. Sykes sent for exhibition a medal of Pietro Bembo (Cardinal 1538-47) by Cellini, one of the foremost artists of the Renaissance period, together with other pieces by famous English and Continental engravers of later periods.

Mr W. Horne showed a Leyburn 17th Century token of James Allen 1666.

This coinage, which was evidently intended for the use of the fleet commanded by Coponius in the East, is of a very exceptional nature, for we have an ordinary moneyer of the Roman mint still using his official title and striking money for a praetor urbanus who had vacated office. To justify this action the formula S. C. is added, in order that it might appear as if the coins were struck under senatorial authority. This instance is unique in the whole series of military coinage of the Roman Republic.

SULPICIA.

- 74168 P. Sulpicius Galba (B.C. 69). Æ. Obv. Head of Vesta r., veiled; behind, S.C. ℞. P. GALB (in exergue). Sacrificial implements: simpulum between knife and axe ornamented with lions head; on l., AED; on r., CVR. B., 7. B.M.C., 1, 433. E. F. » 7 6

This type of Galba's coins relates to his priestly functions as curule aedile, and it was in virtue of that office that he issued this special coinage, probably to meet some extraordinary expenditure.

- 74169 Servius Sulpicius Galba (B.C. 64). Æ. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laur.; behind, SER; before, SVLP. (VL joined together). ℞. A naval trophy, on the r. of which stands a naked captive, his hands tied behind him; on his head is a petasus, above which appears the point of a spear; on the l. of the trophy is another figure, clothed, and also wearing a petasus. B., 8. B.M.C., 1, 488. R. V. F. » 2 10 »

Probably relating to his ancestor's capture of the island of Aegina. The trophy would refer to the destruction of the hostile fleet, and the prisoner to the captives who were sold sub hasta and repurchased by their fellow citizens; the latter being represented by the draped figure on l.

- 74170 L. Servius Sulpicius Rufus (B.C. 43-44). Æ. Obv. Head of the tribune Servius Sulpicius Rufus r., bare, and bearded; around L. SERVIVS RVFVS. ℞. The Dioscuri standing facing, each armed with spear and parazonium, wearing pileus surmounted by star. B., 10. B.M.C., 1, 566. RR. V. F. » 3 15 »

The type relates to the relief of Tusculum B.C. 374, by the Roman military tribune, Servius Sulpicius Rufus, on which occasion the Latins having captured the city forced the inhabitants to take refuge in the citadel, where the Temple of the Dioscuri was situated.

- 74171 C. Sulpicius Platorinus (B.C. 8). Æ. Obv. Head of Augustus r., bare; around, CAESAR AVGVSTVS. ℞. Augustus and Agrippa togate, seated side by side towards l. on a bisellium placed on a platform, which is ornamented with three rostra; on l. of bisellium an apparitor's staff; around, C. SVLPICIVS. PLATORIN. B., 11. B.M.C., II, 97. R. V. F. » 2 15 »

Attributed to B.C. 8, the rev. type refering to the joint investment of Augustus and Agrippa with the tribunician power in B.C. 18 and to their joint-presidentship of the Ludi Saeculares in the following year.

Curule chair between the letters s.c., below, sceptre with royal diadem; above PATRE. COS (TR joined). B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 493. RRR. E. F. » 5 »
Babelon thinks that the curule chair on rev. shows that Messala was quaestor with Faustus Cornelius Sulla and that he struck money by order of the Senate; the sceptre recalling the circumstance that one of his ancestors P. Valerius Publicola, assisted in banishing the kings from Rome and was consul with Brutus during the first year of the Republic.
There is considerable controversy on the identity of Messala, as the coins are absent from nearly all the finds of the period and are very rare.

The representation of Jupiter Auxurus or Axurus suggests that the Vibia gens originally dwell at Anxur (Tarracina) a city of Latium which was situated on the Tyrrhenian sea, about sixty two miles from Rome. In that place there was a special cult of Jupiter whose temple was situated on the highest point of the city, and who was represented as a youth handsome in features and of perfect form.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM JOHN WEBSTER.

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death, on the 23rd. August last, of this widely known and highly respected numismatist.

Born on 12th. December 1848, Mr. W. J. Webster, whose great uncle was the well-known Mr. Till of Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, early developed a taste for numismatics, and in course of time became his father's active help and right-hand man. Much of the best cataloguing work of that time fell to the Websters, and many of the chief collections passed through their able hands before being submitted to public auction. In addition, the younger Webster prepared the well-known inventory of the Royal Mint Collection. He was also for many years the chief official expert for giving evidence as to counterfeit money; and no forger, however subtle, was able to gainsay or overthrow Mr. Webster's conclusions upon false coins. Practically during the whole of his life he was connected with the Queen's Westminster Rifle Corps, and was granted the Long Service Medal of the Volunteer Force.

The late Mr. Webster was associated with his father at Bedford Square until the death of the latter in the year 1885, upon which he succeeded to the business and removed it to 1, Bloomsbury Place, W. C., where he continued for about seven years.

After that period Mr. Webster joined the numismatic staff of Messrs. Spink & Son of Piccadilly, which position he held until his death.

Of the deceased gentleman it may be truly affirmed that he was a thorough numismatist. Brought up in the very atmosphere of coins and medals, and inheriting his great uncle's and his father's enthusiasm and natural aptitude for their study, he speedily became a most excellent judge and authority, and, wisely, from the necessity born of a wide and comprehensive business, he studied and became master in many series both of the ancient and modern coinages. It would be, indeed, an invidious task to say in which class his knowledge excelled, for he could give an authoritative opinion as to the genuineness or value of a coin of ancient Greece or Rome or with equal facility pronounce with commendable accuracy upon a rare penny of the Heptarchy or, say, upon a medal of the Tudor or Stuart dynasties. It is needless to add that such all-round experts are exceedingly scarce, as the exigencies of to-day almost demand, and certainly produce, specialised skill in perhaps only one or at most two or three out of the many subjects that confront the modern numismatist; the reason being no doubt due to the fact that each series or class of numismatic knowledge has to-day practically a whole library of technical and learned works to itself, thus precluding through sheer want of time the proper study of and practical acquaintance with the whole vast series and its concomitant literature.

The late William John Webster had, however, other sides and qualities than those merely of a student and numismatist, for he possessed a character which was unusually gentle and courteous. So much indeed was this true of him that it is no exaggerated panegyric to assert that he probably never made an enemy, as it was certainly impossible for him to have ever broken a friendship. As an affectionate and skilled collaborator in the many-sided numismatic department of the firm which he studiously and zealously served for over a quarter of a century, his loss is and will be severely felt, and his pleasant voice and genial personality will be long missed by the staff with whom he was for so many happy years associated.

CYPRUS.

How clearly the coins of a nation bear witness to its history we may see when we examine those of our own country; for there lie before us coins of the ancient Britons, of the Saxons, Normans, Plantagenets, Tudors, Stuarts and those of our present reigning house.

So when we turn to the coins of Cyprus they will help us to understand the character of the people descended from a similar mixture of races.

The coins bearing a ram lying to left, with a smooth reverse carry us back to the period 560-525 B.C. the days when Amasis of Egypt invaded the island.

He was not the first Egyptian King who tried to rule Cyprus, for Thothmes III (Tahutmis) of the XVIII dynasty invaded the isle between 1503-1449 B.C.

Mycenaean settlements had been made, and the goddess afterwards identified by the Greeks with Aphrodite was introduced in the neolithic period.

During the Mycenaean age Greek settlements were made, and Phoenician colonies arose in their neighbourhood. From the xth to the VIIIth centuries tribute was paid to Tyre and in 709 B. C. Sargon of Assyria conquered the island. An inscription of his, found in Citium, is now in the Berlin Museum. Essarhadan and Assurbanipal record tribute received from twelve Cypriote Kings, some bearing Greek names. The island was then called Iavan (i.e. Ionian).

The distance sailed by St. Paul from Seleucia to Salamis was about 100 miles and the sailing vessels would, with a fair wind take about a night and a day to reach that port. The coasts of Cilicia and of Syria are visible from the island. Cyprus is about 60 miles in breadth from north to south, and about 150 in length from East to West. The inhabitants in St. Paul's time were mostly Greeks, but very large numbers of Jews were residents. Many of these were employed by Herod in working the copper-mines. Josephus (Ant., XVI, iv, § 5) says "Caesar (Augustus) made him (i.e. Herod) a present of half the revenue of the copper-mines in Cyprus and committed the care of the other half to him". The Apostles went to their own nation first with their gospel, and Cyprus was therefore naturally chosen as the first land to be evangelized in this first missionary journey. The two principal cities were Salamis and Paphos but there were about fifteen other cities of considerable size. Pliny (Lib. V, c. xxxi) gives their names:

Paphos and Palæpaphos, Curias, Citium, Corincum, Salamis, Amathus, Lepethos, Solæ, Tamaseus, Epidarum, Chytri, Arsinoe, Carpasium and Golgi. He mentions also three others which had come to nothing. In the old map from the Peutinger Table it appears as if there were three main roads through the island, one along the north, one through the centre, and one along the south coast.

Angelo Mosso in his work on the dawn of Mediterranean Civilization (1910, cap. xix), has shewn that there were no rich copper mines in Cyprus. Count Luigi Cesnola tried to find the mines near Amachus or Tamasus.

Professor Wyndham Dunstan reported to the same effect in 1905. The ancients made use of secondary deposits found on or near the surface of the ground, formed from the decomposition of pyrites which lie deep down in the earth. It was a silicate of copper called Chrysocollo. Strabo (XIV, 5, p. 583), mentions incrustations of copper used in medicine. Probably the copper worked by the Jews was found in such small quantities that it was soon worked out. A large ingot of copper was found at Enkomi in Cyprus, incised with the sign = si, in the Cypriot script, and it may belong to the Mycenaean age. Pliny mentions the copper of Cyprus but we cannot tell whether it was found there or brought there to be worked (Hist. Nat., XXXIV, 8, 20).

A flat axe of copper was found in Cyprus similar to those used in the neolithic age.

Angelo Mosso says, "The Greeks did not give the name of Cyprus to the island on account of its copper-mines, or they would have called it Chalcis, like a city in Euboea, where Pliny says copper was first discovered". As bronze was so called from Brindisi, so cuprum was called from Cyprus, from the market of copper in that island.

The name Cyprus comes from κύπρος, the name of the plant called henna (Lawsona inermis alba) (Sprengel Diosc., I, 124).

COINS OF SELEUCIA.

The Seleucia mentioned in the passage quoted from Josephus was not Seleucia Pieria near Antioch on the Orontes, but the city on the Tigris also called Seleucia.

Therefore the observation made concerning the reason for St. Paul passing by Seleucia without stopping is not founded on fact and should be rejected.

Bückle at Karlsruhe; returned to Basle in 1792 after a stay of some duration in Rome. One of his earliest works is the medal signed I.F.HVBER F. on the Proclamation of the Rauracian Republic at Porrentruy, 19. December 1792 (Ewig., 766). The medal of the Burgomaster of Basle, Andreas Buxtorf, is dated 1786 and signed HVBER. By him are also the seals of Office of the Helvetic Republic in Canton Basle.

The Thalers and Half Thalers of the Helvetic Republic, coined at Basle and Soleure in 1798 (Ewig., 213 and 214; Wunderly, 3327, etc.) with the initial H are also from Huber's hand. After the dissolution of Christian von Mechel's art business Huber gave up his profession in 1805 to devote himself to political life. He founded the firm Falkeysen und Huber (till 1812) and Birmann und Huber (till 1823). He died on 30. September 1832.

The two Winterthur artists Franz and Johann Aberli were Huber's pupils. Cf. M. A. Ruegg-Karlen, Basler Münzmeister, Stempelschneider und Medailleure, Rev. suisse num., 1915. — Cf. D. Burckhardt, Schweizer. Künstler-Lexicon.

HUND, GEORG (Swiss). Mint-master at Fribourg, circa 1569.

HUNDENBERG (Germ.). Engraver of Cologne, sixteenth century. There are two amulets struck about 1580, attributed in the Salomon Catalogue, Dresden, 14. November 1893, n° 2828 to this Engraver. They are both in the Boston Medical Collection. One of them bears DIESES + METALL + DIENET + VOR + DIE + FLVSS (Gonorrhoea), and the other VOR | FLÜSS KRAMPF (dysuria? rheumatism) | UND ROTLAUFF (erysipelas). The latter bears the arms of Dr. Leonhard Thurneysser (1531-90) of Basle, physician to Grand Duke Joachim II. of Brandenburg. They are akin to a much more common amulet EHRE DEN ARTZT etc., a portion of which inscription is upon one of the medals of Dr. J. C. A. M. Theden of Berlin. The first three are alchemical, and all the four are in the Boston Collection. (Communication of Dr. H. R. Stoer of Newport, R. I.)

HUNDERTPFUND, ANTON (B. D. M., Vol. II, p. 576). Mint-master to Dukes Albrecht IV., Wilhelm IV., and Ludwig X. His portrait exists in the Irish National Gallery at Dublin, and is reproduced in Mitt. Bayer. Num. gessellschaft, 1909, p. 56.

HUNDLEY, G. (Brit.). Sculptor of the second half of the nineteenth century. By him is a panel, in white metal, engraved with an arabesque design after Lucas van Leyden, which is now in the Victoria and Albert Museum. Vide Fortnum's Bronzes in the South Kensington Museum.

HUNT, ROBERT, C. M. G. (Brit.). Deputy Master of the Sydney Mint from January 1st, 1878, until his death on September 27th, 1892. He was Acting Deputy Master of the Melbourne Mint after the resignation of Major-General Ward in 1877 until the appointment of Mr. W. D. Broughton.

HUNT & ROSKELL (Brit.). (B. D. M., Vol. II, 1904, p. 578). 1864. Published Wyon's medal of Shakespeare for the tercentenary anniversary, Æ 62.

HUPP, KARL (Germ.). Medallist, born in 1822, died at Dusseldorf in 1906.

THE EARLIEST ANGELS OF HENRY VII.

By

MAJOR P. W. P. CARLYON-BRITTON, F. S. A.

Richard III, the last King of the House of York, was slain on Bosworth Field on August 22nd 1485, whereupon his successful opponent, Henry Tudor, proceeded to London, where he was received by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen on August 27th. On October 30th he was crowned at Westminster Abbey.

The mint-mark in use upon Richard III's coins at the time of his death was the Yorkist badge formed of the emblems of the Sun and Rose dimidiated.

The coins of which an account is appended prove that this was so and that, however inappropriate as a badge of Henry VII, this distinctive Yorkist emblem was not only continued through the conversion of dies prepared for Richard's coinage for use in the issue of that of his supplanter but, in one case was impressed on an obverse die newly prepared for Henry's coins.

This is probably due to the circumstance that the official routine of the mint in regard to the employment of a mint-mark until it was duly superseded by requisite authority was strictly followed.

An exactly similar course was pursued in the case of the earliest gold issue of Edward IV. The only two known specimens of the Noble of the 108 grains standard continue the use of the lys mint-mark, the favourite badge of Henry VI. The obverses of both specimens are from dies newly made for Edward IV and the same condition obtains as to the reverse of one of them, the other being from an altered die of Henry VI's last coinage.

The following are the essential particulars of three angels which are the subject of this note: all are in the writer's collection.

1. Obv. Mm. Sun and rose dimidiated. HENRICVS DI GREGORIO REX ANGL & FRANC

R. Mm. Sun and rose dimidiated PER ARVSEM TVN SALVAT ROS XPO REX h, altered from R, to dexter and rose to sinister of cross.

Weight 78.8 grains. From the F.A. Walters Sale lot 475 (illustrated). Figure 1.

Another example of this coin, from the same dies, was in the Montagu Sale, lot 654 (illustrated).

2. Obv. Lys upon rose, over sun and rose dimidiated. HENRICVS DI GREGORIO REX ANGL & FRANC

R. Mm. Sun and rose dimidiated. PER ARVSEM TVN SALVAT ROS XPO REX h, altered from R, to dexter and rose to sinister of cross.

Weight 80 grains. From the late Col. Leslie Ellis's collection.

3. Obv. Same die as that of n° 2.

R. Mm. Lys upon rose. PER ARVSEM TVN SALVAT ROS XPO REX No stops. h to dexter and rose to sinister of cross.

Weight 80 grains.

It will be noticed that with the exception of the obverse of n° 1 and the reverse of n° 3, which are from dies newly prepared for Henry VII, all three coins are from officially altered dies of Richard III.

BRITISH IMPERIAL BRONZE COINAGE. 1860-1918.

PART VI.

VICTORIA I. 1837-1901.

37. — FARTHING, 1881.

O. — Legend: — VICTORIA D: G: BRITT: REG: F: D: The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the head of the monarch. Truncated bust of the Queen in profile and looking to the left. The portrait of Her Majesty is more matronly. The nose is more aquiline. She is wearing a wreath of laurel, partly hidden by the thin wavy hair, which is parted on the forehead, carried over the ear, and collected into a plaited knot behind the head. The hair at the nape of the neck is short, coarse, and wavy. The laurel wreath of fourteen leaves and three berries has its ends united at the rear of the head by ribbon, which is tied into a bow, the hanging parts being crimped and flowing, and one of them touching the neck. The veins in the laurel leaves are single lines in relief. From the top of the head the laurel leaves are arranged in the following order: — 3 + 3 + 2 + 4 + 2, and the berries as follows: — 2 + 1. The Queen wears a bodice with folds, and with part of a barbed and seeded rose, as a brooch, in front. On the bodice, a mantle, with a groundwork of lines, and embroidered with roses, thistles, and shamrocks, united, and a portion of The Star of the Most Noble Order of The Garter, within part of The Garter, which is inscribed: — HONI S, incuse. The mantle is smaller than that on some earlier issues, and has less embroidery on it. The base of the bust is in contact with the plain circle. The whole within a plain circle encircled by an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — FARTHING. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet, and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes, and she is draped in a long flowing robe, with scale armour, ornamented with four scrolls on the breast, two on the left, and two on the right, all turning outwards. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a flat oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb nearly touching the fimbriation of the cross of Saint George in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George, and the saltires of Saint Andrew and Saint Patrick, united, and heraldically coloured. The fimbriation of the cross of Saint George is depicted by double lines, in relief. Her left arm entwines an ornamented trident which she holds with her hand. The ornamentation of the trident is of a different design to that on some previous issues. On her right foot, a sandal. In front of the figure, a three-masted battleship, fully rigged, and behind, a lighthouse, built on a rock above the sea. There are rocks, but no sea, on the left of the lighthouse. The rock on which Britannia is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1881. The whole within a plain circle, encircled by an ornamented rim.

O. — Legend: — VICTORIA DEI GRA BRITT REGINA. FID. DEF. IND. IMP. Truncated bust of the Queen and Empress, in profile and looking to the left. Below the truncation of the bust: — T. B. (Sir Thomas Brock, K.C.B.). Her Majesty is wearing a diadem richly jewelled and heightened with alternate crosses pattées and fleur-de-lys. The wavy hair is parted on the forehead and carried behind the ear to the rear of the head. The diadem and hair are partly hidden by drapery arranged in folds, which fall gracefully upon the shoulders. A necklace of beads, with a pendant in front, encircles the neck. An ear-drop is suspended from the left ear. On the dress, which is decorated with a tucker, part of The Star of the Most Noble Order of The Garter on the left breast. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — FARTHING. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes. Some of her long, thick, wavy hair rests on her right shoulder. An ornament round her neck with each end terminating in a scroll. She is draped in a long flowing robe with an ornament on each shoulder and fastened on the breast with a clasp and at the waist by a garnished girdle. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a convex oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb touching the space between the cross of Saint George and the cross of Saint Patrick in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George and the saltires of Saint Andrew and Saint Patrick, united, but not heraldically coloured. Her left hand firmly grasps a plain trident. On her right foot, a sandal. The rock on which she is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1895. The whole within an ornamented rim.

FOREIGN COINS.

ABYSSINIA.

MENELIK II. 1889-1913.

EIGHTH ARGENTEUS, 1894.

O. — Legend in Guèez or Ethiopian (Sacred language): — DAGMAVI MENELIK NAGUSHA NAGASHT ZA ITHIOPYA

(Menelik the Second King of Kings of Ethiopia). The continuity on the legend is interrupted by the upper part of the crown. Draped bust of the Emperor in profile and looking to the right. On the bust, the date, 1894, in numeral letters. His Majesty is wearing drapery on the head which forms a hood. It is tied with a band behind the head, a portion falling on the neck and shoulders. Over the hood a crown with three tiers of ornaments. On the lowest tier a man sitting on horseback and attacking a reptile with a lance. A necklace of four rows of beads, with a cross in front, encircles the neck. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Upper legend in Guèez or Ethiopian (Sacred language): — MOA ANBASA ZA EMMANGADA YEHUD (He is victor. The lion of the tribe of Judah). Lower legend in Amharic (Popular language): — YABER TENAN (Eighth Argenteus). The lion of Ethiopia, namely, a crowned lion passant guardant, standing on the ground, holding with his left front foot, a staff, with a banner attached to the upper part, and surmounted by a cross. Below the ground: — LAGRANGE, with a cornucopia on the left, and fasces on the right. The mint mark A (Paris) beneath. The whole within an ornamented rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

Similar coins are dated 1896.

BELGIAN CONGO.

LEOPOLD II. 1865-1909.

CENTIME, 1887.

O. — Legend: — LEOP. II R. D. BELGES SOUV. DE L'ÉTAT INDEP. DU CONGO (Leopold the Second King of the Belgians, Sovereign of the Independent State of the Congo). A five pointed star between the beginning and end of the legend. The Roman Capital letters IL (Leopold the Second), the first reversed, surmounted by the Royal Crown, repeated five times around a central circular perforation and encompassed by a beaded circle. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — 1 C^{ME} (One centime). An ornamented star with five points and many rays, and with a central circular perforation. One of the points and some of the rays of the star interrupt the continuity of the legend. Below the star, the date, 1887, with the letter L on the left and W on the right (Leopold Wiener). Three five pointed stars on the left and three on the right between the legend and the date. The whole within an ornamented rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

Similar coins are dated 1888.

FRANCE.

NAPOLEON III. 1852-1870.

CENTIME, 1853.

O. — Legend: — NAPOLEON III EMPEREUR. The date, 1853, between the beginning and end of the legend, with an ornament on the left and another on the right. Head and truncated neck of the Emperor in profile and looking to the left encompassed by a beaded circle. Below the truncation of the neck: — BARRE. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Upper legend: EMPIRE FRANÇAIS. Lower legend: —

UN CENTIME. A five pointed star on the left and another on the right between the legends. The Imperial Eagle encompassed by a beaded circle. The bird's head is turned to the right, in an attitude of vigilance. Its wings are displayed, but with the tips of the feathers drooping, as they would be in the living bird. Both its claws grasp a thunderbolt. The mint mark A (Paris) below. The whole within an ornamented rim.

E. — Plain.

AUSTRALIA.

HALF SOVEREIGN, 1893.

O. — Legend: — VICTORIA DEI. GRA. BRITT. REGINA. FID. DEF. IND. IMP. Truncated bust of the Queen and Empress, in profile and looking to the left. Below the truncation of the bust: — T. B. (Sir Thomas Brock, K. C. B.). Her Majesty is wearing a diadem richly jewelled and heightened with alternate crosses pattées and fleur-de-lys. The diadem is partly hidden by drapery arranged in folds, which fall gracefully upon the shoulders. The hair is parted on the forehead and carried behind the ear to the rear of the head. A necklace of beads, with a pendant in front, encircles the neck. An ear-drop is suspended from the left ear. On the dress, which is decorated with a tucker, part of The Star of the Most Noble Order of the Garter on the left breast. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Saint George attacking the Dragon. The saintly knight is on horseback and looking to the right, his left hand holding the bridle rein. He is wearing a crested helmet with a tail of hair floating behind. A chlamys flowing freely at the back is fastened in front by a fibula. On the right shoulder a balteus for suspending the gladius. The feet and lower portions of the legs are protected by armour, except that the toes are uncovered. The horse apparently half advances, half shrinks, from the fabulous animal at its feet. Saint George has broken his lance by wounding the winged monster, and a portion of it remains in its body. The other part is lying upon the ground. The dragon is preparing itself for a deadly spring, and Saint George is about to slay it with the gladius he holds in his right hand. In the exergue, the date, 1893. On the ground above the date the mint mark S (Sydney). The whole within a plain circle, encircled by an ornamented rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

DE LA FONDATION DE L'UNION DE BERNE ET DE L'ASSOCIATION INTERNATIONALE POUR LA PROTECTION DE LA PROPRIÉTÉ LITTÉRAIRE ET ARTISTIQUE.

Le Musée des Monnaies et Médailles, à Paris, et le Cabinet des Médailles à la Bibliothèque Nationale vont s'enrichir, par le dépôt légal, de la plaquette frappée pour commémorer le 25^e anniversaire de la Convention de Berne et la fondation de l'Association Internationale pour la protection de la Propriété littéraire et artistique. Fondée au lendemain de la Convention Internationale d'Union, dite de Berne, de 1886, c'est-à-dire dès 1887, l'Association comptait vingt cinq années d'existence en 1912. C'est au cours de cette même année 1912 qu'eut lieu, à Paris, au Cercle de la Librairie, une réunion de travail suivie, le soir, d'un grand banquet auquel assistèrent, avec les notabilités des lettres et des arts, de nombreuses personnalités de marque, parmi lesquelles M. Comtesse, ancien président de la Confédération helvétique, aujourd'hui directeur des bureaux de la Propriété intellectuelle à Berne, et M. Raymond Poincaré, président de la République française, qui y prononça une de ces allocutions dans lesquelles on ne sait que plus admirer de la perfection du style ou de la hauteur de la pensée.

1. Le 5 décembre 1912, v. le compte rendu dans le Droit d'Auteur, organe officiel du Bureau de Berne, 1913, p. 14 et s.

A cette occasion, l'un des cinq fondateurs originaires de l'Association — le seul actuellement survivant — M. Schmitt, de Vienne (Autriche), fit don à l'Association des fonds nécessaires pour la frappe d'une médaille commémorant ses « Noces d'argent et celles de la Convention d'Union elle-même ». Une pleine cordialité scientifique régnait alors avec les écrivains et artistes de langue allemande, particulièrement avec les Autrichiens, et aucun obstacle n'existait à l'acceptation de cette offre généreuse, si conforme aux traditions artistiques. Le don fut donc accepté et l'exécution de la plaquette confiée au graveur belge Samuel.

Différentes circonstances... puis la Guerre, se mirent en travers de la réalisation de ce travail qui était sur le point d'être achevé lorsqu'éclata le conflit déchaîné par les Empires Centraux. La frappe de la plaquette vient seulement de pouvoir être terminée. Cette plaquette est en elle-même une œuvre très intéressante, comme la description que nous en allons donner permettra de s'en rendre compte. Elle offre, en outre, un intérêt en quelque sorte historique et philosophique. Elle fixe, en effet, dans le métal, un état de choses aujourd'hui révolu, celui d'une communion hors de laquelle les Allemands et les Autrichiens ne s'étaient pas encore eux-mêmes exclus, pour longtemps, sinon pour toujours. Il va sans dire, en effet, que l'Association internationale pour la protection de la propriété littéraire et artistique s'est dégagée désormais de tout élément allemand et autrichien et qu'elle n'admet plus, dans son sein, que des éléments de l'Entente ainsi que des nationaux des pays neutres. Sans doute, la Convention d'Union de 1886, révisée à Berlin en 1908 et à Washington en 1911, subsiste en tant que législation internationale et l'Allemagne, qui en faisait partie, s'y trouve encore soumise. Mais, sous l'égide d'une législation commune, la collaboration des intelligences, et surtout celle des cœurs, ont cessé...

Le donateur des fonds, pour la plaquette du 25^e anniversaire, ne doit pas être un des moins attristés de cette régression qui a suivi de si près la fête dont cet événement avait été l'occasion et en méditant la maxime : Tempora mutantur... il doit éprouver quelque amertume de la folie des dirigeants et des peuples du centre de l'Europe. Peut-être sa tristesse s'accroît-elle du sentiment que les écrivains et les artistes de langue allemande ne sont pas sans avoir leur part de responsabilité dans l'état d'esprit germanique qui a abouti au chiffon de papier, à la violation de la Belgique... et au reste.

Plaquette rectangulaire avec le côté horizontal supérieur cintré (70 mm. × 56 mm.).

Au droit : Une femme jeune assise à droite symbolisant la loi internationale. Elle tient, reposant dans l'angle du bras droit, appuyé sur des Tables de la Loi où on lit : LEX, une main de Justice. Elle tend la main, dans un geste d'accueil et de protection, à un jeune éphèbe, debout, presque entièrement nu qui la regarde, paraît l'invoquer et tient, le long du bras pendant vers le sol, une statuette.

à gauche, CH. SAMUEL.

THE ORDER OF THE COMPANIONS OF HONOUR.

Edge inscribed,
The Companion of Honour conferred by King George the Fifth on W. J. Davis, 17th December, 1918.

We have much pleasure in making the announcement that our old friend and erstwhile contributor, Mr. W. J. Davis of Birmingham, has been honoured by His Majesty the King, who has bestowed the above order upon him.

Mr. Davis has evidently been serving his country faithfully and honourably; though the public does not know much of his doings, he having worked quietly and unostentatiously, his labours have brought him before those who appreciated them, as evidenced by the motto IN ACTION FAITHFUL AND IN HONOUR CLEAR.

The Order consists of the Sovereign and fifty members only, of which about half have been admitted, to the present.

The 5th Statute of the order declares, "It is ordained that the persons to be admitted as Members of this Order shall be such persons, male or female, being subjects of Our Crown, as may have rendered conspicuous service of National importance".

The exacting qualifications for the Order keep it select and Mr. Davis is to be congratulated upon fulfilling them. He is probably known best to numismatists as the author of "The Token Coinage of Warwickshire" and "The Nineteenth Century Token Coinage", both of which proclaim his painstaking industry as above the average.

The official description of the badge is set forth in statute 9 as follows. A gold medallion with a representation of an oak tree and pendant from a branch a shield of the Royal Arms; on the dexter a representation of a Knight armed and in armour mounted on a horse, the whole within a circle azure inscribed with the motto "In action faithful and in honour clear" in letters of gold ensigned with the Imperial Crown proper, the badge in the case of men suspended from a carmine riband of the breadth of one inch and a half with a bordure interlaced gold around their necks, and in the case of women attached to a similar riband tied in a bow and worn on the left shoulder.

OBITUARY

COMM. FRANCESCO GNECCHI.

As we go to press we learn the sad news of the death in Rome, on the 15th June last, of Commendatore Francesco Gneccchi, for so many years one of the highest authorities on Roman Coins, and whose many articles on Numismatics have been so widely appreciated both for their learning and for the interesting and novel subject matter of which they treated. The following notes are taken from the memoir which has been published by the Circolo Numismatico Napoletano.

Francesco Gneccchi was born in Milan of a highly respected industrial family, which had rendered conspicuous services to the State during the War of Liberation in 1848. When but just 18, in 1866, he voluntarily joined the army to fight against the hereditary enemies of Italy and served with great enthusiasm. On his return he entered in to possession of the vast family estates in Verderio Superiore and nobly carried on the family traditions by erecting numerous buildings of public utility, including a new church and various Infant orphan asylums. From his earliest days he devoted himself to painting, shewing enthusiasm, understanding, method and perseverance; and many of his pictures found their way to various exhibitions or to the private collections of his friends. He was archaeologist, historian, numismatist, philatelist, but above all things numismatist; he collected and studied the coinage of Ancient Rome and has left his marks on the literature of that period. Of especial note was his monumental work entitled "I Medaglioni romani" which would be sufficient to bring fame to the name of any scientist. His collection too was of a tremendous size and could justly be called a national monument.

Honoured in no little degree by the King of Italy, who more than once had recourse to his expert judgment, Francesco Gneccchi was Honorary Fellow of the "Royal Numismatic Society", of the "Société Suisse de Numismatique", and of the "Société royale de Numismatique de Belgique"; he also was a Medallist of the "Royal Numismatic Society" in 1906, a highly prized distinction which H.M. the King of Italy was the only other Italian to receive. He was the founder and the soul of the "Società numismatica italiana", as he had been of the "Rivista italiana di Numismatica"; and was one of the chief members of the Monetary Commission in Rome.

To judge adequately of his surprising culture, his inexhaustible scientific activity and his marvellous faculty of work one must cast a glance at the list of his works, universally known, appreciated and eulogized; one must bear in mind the judgments passed on his numerous articles by the reviews and scientific periodicals of all nations. Many of his books are in their fourth and fifth editions, others have been translated into many languages, and numerous articles have been reproduced or quoted from in countless numismatic periodicals the world over.

Last year he was accused as "Consigliere di Amministrazione" of the "Società dei Cascami" of having been privy to certain transactions with the enemy states, an accusation which it is firmly believed would have been found to be without foundation had his inopportune death not preceded the date of the hearing of the case. His friends and admirers are confident that his character will be found to be without a stain and his honour fully vindicated.

MR. D. F. HOWORTH.

The passing of Mr. Daniel Fowler Howorth the well known Lancashire numismatist calls for more than casual comment. His was a singularly unique personality, for he possessed that rare combination of gifts — alertness of judgment, methodicity of mind and a sympathetic nature. As one who for many years had the privilege of his friendship I think I may claim to be entitled to write this short article. He always contended that all good work in numismatic research and study was done from higher motives than the prospect of material reward, and because the work itself was worth doing for the benefit of those who are interested in the science, but have not had either the opportunity, or time, to devote to it.

Warm hearted and generous to a degree, he was a discriminating collector, and by his concise work on the British Colonial coinage alone, he sowed more than he knew, for its influence on those who have studied this particular branch of numismatics has been lasting. He was one of the best, most robust, most straightforward, honest men that ever walked God's earth, and often when he might have rested for the benefit of his health, he continued to correspond with his many friends, to answer the questions of numerous unknown correspondents, to give lectures to the members of literary societies, and to contribute to various periodicals on numismatic subjects. Some of the early volumes of the "Numismatic Circular" contain interesting articles by him.

He had his faults — what man has not?
Let each one strive to mind his own,
And he who is without a blot,
Shall be the first to cast a stone.

And when his brightness most did shine,
When ease and pleasure he could take,
He sacrificed both health and time,
For Numismatics and its sake.

Mr. Howorth in common with many people knew that most of his contemporaries had passed into the Land Beyond and now he himself has entered the Garden of Sleep. With reverent and respectful affection, I pay this small tribute to the memory of a true numismatist, a devoted student, a wise counsellor, and a real friend.

HENRY GARSIDE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors,
The Numismatic Circular.
Sirs,

I have waited in the hope that Mr Webb's interesting article on the N.F. coinage might have brought forth further correspondence on the problems involved. I am exceedingly grateful to him for the courteous way in which he has dealt with the suggestions I ventured to put forward. I think it can now be fairly assumed that the attribution of the N.F. coins to Helena, the mother, and Fausta, the wife of Constantine the Great, is correct. The outstanding point is the date of issue. I cannot see that Mr Webb has convincingly disposed of my hypothesis that the N.F. coins were struck as memorial coins after the death of the two augustae. He has misunderstood my argument regarding the sudden abandonment of her simplicity by the Empress Helena when he says that I have overlooked the fact that the coins show exactly the reverse. If I had admitted that the coins were struck in the life-time of the Empress Mr Webb would undoubtedly have made a good point against me, but I made no such admission. What I said was "If, as Mr Webb thinks, the title and the coins were a preliminary step towards the elevation to the higher rank" and "The evidence, so far as it goes seems to me to be entirely against the attribution of the Helena N.F. coins to any issue struck during her life time". The italics were not in my original article. That the Christian simplicity which we recognize in the N.F. portrait of Helena should have been dissipated within a few short months (as must have been the case if Mr Webb's theory holds good) still seems to me to present a difficulty which can best be surmounted by the assumption that the coins with this portrait were struck subsequent to those bearing the more conventional portrait of an empress.

There is just one other point in Mr Webb's exhaustive paper upon which, in the face of his far greater experience, I hesitate to express an opinion and I only do so in the hope of contributing to a final settlement of the question. Mr Webb states that the portrait and fabric of the N.F. and Augustan coins of the Empress Fausta are practically identical. I have but one specimen of the N.F. coins in my own small collection — and that not in the finest condition, but both the portrait on and the fabric of this coin appear to me to differ considerably from those of the Augustan series. The bust is bolder and better modelled, the face more pleasing and the relief superior to any coin I possess of either Helena or Fausta. To test the accuracy of my own observation I have just placed a tray containing twenty-three coins of Helena and Fausta before my son, a Harrow boy with no numismatic proclivities, and asked him to select the coin which in his judgment displayed the highest type of art and he has unhesitatingly selected the N.F. coin.

Yours &c,
Hugh GOODACRE.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

October 16th. Sir Henry Howorth, K.C.I.E., F.R.S., Vice-President in the Chair. Mr. Henry Garside exhibited a penny of Barbadoes countermarked crown G.R. in an octagon for Jamaica.

Mr. L.A. Lawrence F.S.A. read a note on some of the difficulties of distinguishing halfpence from farthings during the period between 1465 and 1523. In the latter year Parliament enacted some alteration of type of the farthings as it was shown that half-pennies and farthings were with difficulty distinguishable, owing to both denominations having been struck from the same "coin". A discussion was also raised on the profile half groats of Henry VII bearing the mint marks, martlet and rose. Some of these have keys below the shield on the reverse and others are without the keys. The question raised was, whether these later coins were to be considered as having been struck at York in consequence of the martlet mint mark previously only known at York or whether the absence of the keys denote their issue at London. Arguments on both sides were advanced and the difficulties determining an attribution either way were recognised. Mr. Brooke and Colonel Walters Morrieson urged that these coins were sede vacante issues of York. Mr. H. Mattingly read a paper entitled "A. Vitellius Imp. Germanicus" in which he attempted to determine the reasons for the variations in Vitellius's obverse legends, between the forms IMP.GERM. and GERM.IMP. After distinguishing clearly the class of coins on which these titles appear, he brought evidence to show that the title "IMP.GERMANICVS" is characteristic of the non-Roman coins of Vitellius and of the early period of the reign before the victory over Otho. It implied a definite challenge thrown out by the German armies to the rest of the Empire, and in consequence when Vitellius became constitutional Emperor at Rome the title was deftly deprived of offence by inversion to GERMANICVS IMP., a normal form of title already borne by Claudius and Nero.

Paper. Mr. H. Alexander Parsons lectured on the coins of an unrecorded king of Northumbria whose name appeared on his coins, which are of the styca series, as BEOM. After reviewing the two previous references to these coins, which placed them respectively to East Anglia and to the end of the Saxon dynasty in Northumbria in A.D. 868, the lecturer demonstrated, by the production of a series of coins for which dies were interchanged, that the Beom stycas were, beyond all doubt, of the period of King Eardwulf, for he showed that at one end of an unbroken chain of varieties appeared coins of King Eardwulf and at the other the coins of King Beom. The internal evidence of the moneymen's names on the coins described indicated that King Beom's stycas were struck after King Eardwulf's expulsion in A.D. 806 and, by invoking the aid of the annals of the time, a place for the unrecorded king was found in the year 808, after the reign of Ælfwald II and just prior to Eardwulf's restoration. The coins produced helped towards a solution of the very confused chronology of the time and, by their aid, the debateable chronology of Eardwulf, Ælfwald II and Eanred was placed on a somewhat surer foundation.

Precedents in Northumbria itself were cited to show that there was nothing remarkable in the existence of coins of a king with a very short reign to his credit, and the close analogy of King Redwulf, the only historical reference to whom was in the last of the annals of Matthew of Westminster, was cited to show how very near this king also was to be known only through his coins, as in the case of Beom.

Exhibitions in illustration of the Paper read. By Mr. H. A. Parsons : — Coins of King Beom, King Eardwulf, and cognate pieces of Northumbria.

Other Exhibitions. By Mr. H. A. Parsons : — A shilling of the Commonwealth, dated 1659.

By Mr. Henry Garside : — British Copper Twopence, dated 1797, with the obverse countermarked in four places with a capital G within a circle having nineteen projecting points, somewhat like teeth, directed inwards. The coin has a circular perforation to the right of the king's head. It was current in Guadeloupe during the British occupation, 1810-1816.

By Mr. E. Francklin : — A cross bearing the Sanctus Vultus, with inscription hale3 above and Fax below.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Report of May 1919 Meeting.

This meeting was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 31st of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the chair.

After the general business had been transacted, Mr. William Andrew Drury, of Killara, was elected a member.

The President then called upon Mr. W. A. Gullick to deliver his address entitled "A Standard Method of Coin Photography".

This was certainly the most important communication which has been made to the Society since its inception, and it is certain to give an impetus to the scientific comparison and study of coins by the dissemination of standard photographs, simply and cheaply produced (only the most ordinary photographic knowledge being necessary) and it should thus prove of permanent interest to all numismatists.

The address referred principally to an improved, and simple method of registering numismatic specimens by photography, giving a much more accurate and legible reproduction than the hitherto practised "rubbing" system, with which members of the Society are all more or less acquainted.

In advocating photography the lecturer admitted at once that the rubbing system required very little paraphernalia, and this fact could not be lost sight of; but the most expert members knew that its successful use required delicacy of manipulation and an exact choice of material. Even then, for coins of high relief and module, like the ancient Greek, Roman and Byzantine, the best of rubbings failed to convey any accurate idea of their beauty or condition, whilst by the majority of ordinary members, the process was found very unsatisfactory. One's Card Index was of necessity of little use without the cabinet specimens at hand to illustrate a point.

The lecturer then produced a rough and cheaply made apparatus, utilizing a common single lens folding camera of the Cameo type, an instrument which at its best was originally sold at about a guinea on the retail market, and was purchasable for very much less in second-hand condition, which in no way interfered with its usefulness. Specimen prints from the resulting negatives were distributed round the table together with exhibits of the original coins which they represented.

It was frankly admitted by all present that the results of the simple method of the cheap fixed-focus camera out-distanced the "rubbing" method, as also did the ease with which it was adapted to its purpose. The common quarter plate instrument was found sufficiently large to allow half-a-dozen coins, the size of a florin, being shown on one plate. Two minutes exposure with ordinary indoor light gave most satisfactory results, especially as same exhibited a critical sharpness and definition under the magnifying glass, which fitted the negative to be used for contact Lantern Slide reproduction.

The question of whether the reproduction carried a white background with written details, or a black background to show off the coins was entirely at the determination of the user. Evidence was given of the great depth of focus obtainable from the single lens in reproductions of large Roman aes grave and the smallest and thinnest mediaeval coins without altering the focus, and with regard to many Roman and hammered mediaeval coins it was generally remarked that the photographic reproduction was very much easier to read and discern than an inspection of the object itself.

The lecturer explained the method of fitting up the camera, and concluded a brief but practical address which was very fully illustrated by exhibits of photos taken, which were compared with the original coins from the cabinet of Mr. H. E. Parkes, as a test of the results.

Mr. P. J. Marks then read a note on a unique section of a "holey" dollar in the Dangar collection quoting from P. J. Hyman's Coins, Coinages and Currency of Australia, in support of his contention that such sections were current in the Colony, which contention was however adversely commented on by several of the members present.

The special exhibits again proved of much interest and were : — By Mr. Herbert Priestley :

I. A unique Chinese temple coin, old and very curious (probably loot from Peking) of bronze, cast, the coin much corroded, on the rim of which is a nude stooping figure of a god, arms akimbo and legs apart. Total height of coin and figure 84 mm. Diameter of coin 41 mm. Weight 38.25 grammes.

II. The very fine British Empire medal in bronze, the first and largest of a series issued by Messrs. Spink and Son to commemorate the 60th year of the reign of Queen Victoria; the obverse bearing a bust of the Queen by F. Bowcher. Diameter 76 mm. Illustrated and described (together with the series) in the Numismatic Circular, Vol. V, 2155.

The 54 encircling shields on the reverse with the names of British possessions have evidently a mediaeval origin, for in the Numismatic Circular for June 1903, col. 6033, a thaler of John Casimir and John Ernest of Gotha dated 1587 is figured on which 12 shields of arms are thus displayed.

By Mr. D. Elliott Smith :

I. A brass "Cook sequin" described on p. 79 Literary and Historical atlas of Africa and Australia (Everyman Series) and figured on pl. VII, 8.

II. Two papal commemorative Joan of Arc medals in white metal.

(1) Obv. Bust of the Pope 3/4 face to r. above which mitre over cross and crozier in saltire to l. and r. date 1884 legend :

IN PIAM MEMORIAM JUBIL XXV EPISCOPATUS PII PAPAEX

Rev. Half figure of Joan of Arc, bareheaded, and in armour holding banner inscribed JESUS MARIA legend BEATA JOANNA DE ARC. Diameter 31.5 mm. Weight 201 grains.

(2) Obv. as (1) but date 1909.

Rev. Joan on horseback, bareheaded, and in armour carrying banner, city in background, legend BEATA JOANNA ORA PRO NOBIS. Diameter 31.5 mm. Weight 221 grains.

By Dr. G. H. Abbott :

I. A very fine 20,000 Reis gold piece of Portugal dated 1727 and countermarked with the arms of Portugal for colonial circulation.

II. One of the very interesting Ptolemaic bronze pieces of Antiochus Epiphanes of Syria with legend : —

ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ ΑΝΤΙΟΧΟΥ ΘΕΟΥ ΕΠΙΦΑΝΟΥ

A memento of his invasion of Egypt. Vide Head, Hist. Numorum 2nd Ed. p. 763. This was the king who was treated in so cavalier a manner by the Roman ambassador Popilius as related by Livy in his History Lib. XLV, cap. XII.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The opening meeting of the Winter session took place on Thursday Oct. 9th at the house of the Hon. Treasurer, 54 High St., Maidstone, when W. Savage Esq. presided. An accumulation of Correspondence during the past three months vacation occupied a considerable time, but having been disposed of, the Hon. Treasurer announced that he was deputed by C. H. Saunders Esq. to make a presentation of two volumes of standard Numismatic Works to the Society. These were gratefully accepted and acknowledged, being the second gift from the same gentleman this year.

The nominations for the coming year were then discussed and a suitable list was at length prepared, together with the appointment of auditors.

A suitable system of cataloguing having been decided upon during the summer, a pleasant time was spent in examining the sheets produced by those entrusted with the work which it is hoped will be completed during the coming winter.

Some valuable and interesting remarks were made by Walter H. Day Esq. on the subject of coin cabinets especially those made in duplicate with interchangeable trays particularly suitable to Societies, Museums and for Exhibition purposes. Among the Exhibits by the Hon. Treasurer was a curious copper forger's mould of Queen Anne's Reign and having the impression of a shilling of that period. The usual votes of thanks concluded the proceedings.

Plutarch tells us that "when Sulla was at Nola, on his way to attack Marius at Rome, there appeared to him in a dream, the goddess whose worship the Romans received from the Cappadocians, whether it be Selene, Minerva or Bellona. She seemed to stand by him and put thunder in his hand and having called his enemies by name one after another, bade him strike them, and they fell and were consumed to ashes".

These coins were struck by Antony for the use of his fleet and legions when he was preparing for the struggle with Octavius, which culminated in the battle of Actium, 2 Sept., B.C. 31. They are of baser metal than the ordinary currency of the time, and plated specimens are frequently met with, which prove that the coinage was a species of "money of necessity", struck to meet a special demand and in the midst of great military preparations.

The type — the head of Apollo and the horseman — refers to the Ludi Apollinares which were established in B.C. 212, and the annual celebration of which was proposed in the following year by the praetor L. Calpurnius Piso, an ancestor of the moneyer. The numerous symbols, numbers, letters, etc., on these coins show that this issue must have been one of the largest that occurred at the Roman mint; this may have been due to the great expenses incurred by the Social war and the suppression of the local mints.

GREEK COINS.

THE COINS OF SALAMIS.

The influence of the Greeks to which the coin types bear witness causes us to desire to trace briefly the history of the Greek colonies in the island. Even before the days of Homer, the Greek prophetic singer Euclios, mentioned by Pausanias, Lib. X, c. 12, wrote his poetry in Cyprus; and Stasinos, the reputed author of the poems about Troy called Cypria, flourished in Cyprus in the VIII cent. B.C. According to Diogenes Laertius, Solon died in Cyprus, and Laertius quoted an old poem containing the line "The Cyprian flame devoured great Solon's corpse". Solon's death took place about 553 B.C.

The author of the poem called the Argonauts was Cleon of the city of Curium, and another poet of that city was Hermeias quoted by Athenæus. Clearchos the pupil of Aristotle was born in Soli. The most celebrated of the Stoics, Zeno was born at Citium in 362 B.C. The early legends of the cities of Cyprus shew that the rise of the Greek influence began after the Trojan war. According to these legends Salamis was founded by Teucer and named after his native island, Soli by Athenians, Lapathus and Cerynia by Lacedemonians under Praxander, Curium by Argives, Neo Paphos by Agapenor returning from Troy with Arcadian followers, Gelos by a leader of that name from Sicyon. Cyprus is mentioned in the Odyssey, IV, 83, I, 181, XVII, 442 (confer the legend of Kinyras in Iliad, XI, 19).

The earliest known coins of Salamis were issued about 560 B.C. When Amasis of Egypt had been reigning nine years, he was the first Egyptian king to invade Cyprus, and his rule extended to his death in 525 B.C.

The standard of the coinage was Persian and consisted of Staters of about 170 grains, Tetrobols of 50 to 57 grs, Diobols of 24 grs, and Obols of about 12 grs, Quarter obols of 3.8 grs.

The first three bore on the Obverse a ram lying to left and the Reverse was smooth.

The inscription on the Obverse in archaic characters signified ΕΥΦΕΛΘΩΝΕ.

On one stater in the B. Mus. the Egyptian Ankh ? appears. In the obols and quarter obols a ram's head to left appears on the Obverse.

A story about this king is told by Herodotus B., IV, p. 162: "At that time Euethon bore rule over Salamis, the same who dedicated the curious censer at Delphi which is deposited in the treasury of the Corinthians. He relates how he gave a lady, who asked for an army, a golden spindle and distaff, saying women should ask for such things, but not for an army".

Darius the Persian invaded Cyprus soon after the death of Amasis in 525 B.C., and the island was made the fifth Satrapy of the kingdom. Darius reigned from 531 to 485 B.C. During the revolt of the Ionian Greeks against Persia the citizens of Salamis in 512 joined the Greeks under Onesilos who was slain in 498 B.C., and the island again passed under Persian rule.

Gorgos of Salamis, according to Herodotus, was the son of Chersis, son of Soromos, son of Euethon.

Gorgos, Onesilos, and Philaon were the sons of Chersis. Gorgos was expelled in 499 B.C., but restored after the death of his brother Onesilos, who was killed by the Persians in 498. Philaon was made prisoner at Artemesium by the Greeks (Herodotus, VIII, 11). M. Six assigns 25 years to the reigns of Soromos and Chersis, and 20 years to the reign of Gorgos.

The type of the ram on these early coins has been explained as that of the animal sacred to the goddess called Aphrodite by the Greeks, but a goddess of far earlier date than the Greek influence in the island. The early terra cotta female idols with the hands supporting the breasts are found also in Crete and many other places on the shores of the Mediterranean.

The coins of Gorgos continue to bear the ram lying, but to right instead of to left and on the Reverse a ring with either ¥ KY for KYΠPOC or an Ankh perhaps the symbol of the authority of Egypt given to Euethon. What the Ankh meant to the Greeks is not clear; probably, as the symbol was seen in the hands of gods and kings, it may have signified to them power or sovereignty rather than life.

Isocrates informs us that the Tencred dynasty of Salamis was expelled some time before the birth of Euagoras by a Phoenician exile who being an enemy of the Greeks subjected the whole island to the great king. Some time later, his descendants were expelled by one Abdomon of Citium who seized the throne, and expelled Euagoras who fled to Cilicia.

In 411 B.C. Euagoras returned and captured Abdomon and Salamis by surprise.

Apparently we have no coins of the Phoenician rulers who perhaps used those of the great king.

M. Six attributes some small coins to Abdomon bearing a ram's head on obv. and a youthful male head perhaps of Heracles in an incuse square, and some with the head of Heracles on the obv. rev. smooth. They bear the letters Σ perhaps for Σ i.e. Abd(omon). The reign of Euagoras was a period of Hellenic revival. When he tried to rule the whole island, Amathus, Citium and Soli turned to Persia for help, and he was eventually shut up in Salamis in 386 B.C. In 381 B.C. Euagoras recognized Artaxerxes as his suzerain, but not as his master; he died in 374. Until the beginning of the reign of Euagoras the coins continued to bear the old type of the ram lying to left.

Heracles, bearded, wearing the lion's skin was adopted by Euagoras I as his obverse type, and for the rev. type a goat lying to right or on tenths of a stater the fore-part of a goat, and on twentieths of a stater the head of a goat.

The silver was of the Persic standard.

Euagoras was succeeded by Nikokles, the friend and pupil of Isocrates. He probably reigned from about 373 to 361 B.C., and continued the Attic culture in Salamis. His coin types are, on the obv., bust of Aphrodite, and on the rev., bust of Athena in laureate crested Corinthian helmet.

The successor of Nikokles was his son Euagoras II. In 351 Cyprus revolted from Persian sovereignty with Phoenicia and Egypt, and Euagoras II was driven out of Salamis by one Pnytagoras, perhaps a member of the royal family.

Euagoras was restored to favour of the great king, and made governor of a town in Asia, probably Sidon. He was disloyal and fled to Cyprus, was taken prisoner and executed soon after 346 B.C.

His bronze coins bore on obv. a lion walking to left, above a ram's head to left, and on the rev. a horse walking to left with a star of eight rays above. Size .7. On those in size .6, Head of Athena in Athenian helmet to left, and on rev. Prow of a warship $\Sigma\Lambda\Lambda$, on those in size .5 the same obv. but on rev. the fore-part of a bull kneeling to left Σ .

The types of Pnytagoras issued between 351 and 332 B.C. bear on the obv. bust of Aphrodite, and on rev. bust of Artemis. The obv. type is evidently meant to connect Aphrodite with Astarte.

Pnytagoras helped Alexander against the Persians at the siege of Tyre (Arrian, Anab., II, 20, 22).

As his successor Nikokreon represented Salamis at Alexander's court it is probable he ceased to reign soon after the siege of Tyre. In the war between Antigonus and Ptolemy Nikokreon sided with the latter in 315 B.C. In 312 he became strategos over the whole island. His silver didrachms were of the Rhodian standard, and bear on obv. the head of Aphrodite, and on rev. that of Apollo with his bow on his shoulder.

Menelaus who succeeded Nikokreon only issued gold coins with a head of Aphrodite Astarte.

After the victory of Demetrius Polyorketes in 306 B.C., Menelaus surrendered Salamis, and was sent to Egypt. Bronze coins were then issued under Demetrius from 306-294 B.C. bearing on the obv. a head of young Heracles in lion's skin, and on rev. $\Lambda\Lambda\text{E}-\Sigma\Lambda\Delta\text{POY}$ a club to right, and bow-case within bow. $\Sigma\Lambda$ or Σ . From 294 B.C. the island was governed by the Ptolemies and the coinage was of the Ptolemaic class. Paphos was the centre of government, as also under the Romans, and Salamis did not regain its importance until the sixth century A.D.

MONEY SCALES AND WEIGHTS.

By T. Sheppard, M.Sc., F.G.S. and J.F. Musham, F.E.S.

The following notes are based upon a collection of over 200 examples, each of which has some particular characteristic, now in the Museum at Hull. These we have been able to get together during the past few years. The majority of them date from the seventeenth to the nineteenth centuries, though a few are much earlier, and others later.

The necessity for money scales and weights arose long ago, but was accentuated in this country, and on the continent, during the middle ages, in consequence of the interchange in the process of trade of an enormous number of varieties of coins; so much so that in some sets of English examples as many as twenty or more weights were required, even greater numbers being found in foreign boxes of scales and weights — these foreign sets being frequently used by English merchants in their financial transactions.

Judging from the Greek, Roman, Egyptian and even Chinese antiquities, it is clear that from the earliest times there have been scales and weights, and as the earlier coins were valued by their weight, it is obvious there were scales to test them. Illustrations of scales dating before the birth of Christ are not uncommon¹.

In our own collection the earliest example is a bronze balance-beam of a small pair of scales, of Roman date, probably of the second century A.D., which was found at South Ferriby some years ago. It is $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length².

There is no direct evidence that these particular scales were used for weighing money, but as they were found in the same place as a collection of over three thousand Roman coins, described by Mr. T. Pickersgill³, it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that they were used for some such purpose.

Though the Romans used boxes of money scales and weights, under ordinary circumstances it could hardly be expected that such things would be preserved in anything like a complete state. Egypt, however, where the conditions are so eminently favourable for the preservation of objects of wood, seemed a likely source for suitable specimens. One of us therefore communicated with Prof. Flinders Petrie, F.R.S., and subsequently paid a visit to the remarkable collection of antiquities under his charge, at the University College, Gower Street, London. It was found that not only were interesting examples preserved, but that their condition and construction was such that they might very readily be mistaken for English examples of a century and a half ago. In some cases even the cords for the attachment of the pans were still intact. These examples had not been figured or described, and we are considerably indebted to Prof. Flinders Petrie not only for the facilities he gave for examination, and for permission to describe them, but also for the excellent photographs which are reproduced in figures 1, 2 and 3. In addition, his collection included a rare example with a triangular pan, and with a nest of weights as well as the ordinary weights, of the time of George II, which will be referred to later. The first example (fig. 1) is Roman, and was found in Upper Egypt. It is of the date about 340 A.D. as shown by a coin of young Constantine as Caesar. The box is of wood, is slightly over 12 ins. in length, and is provided with a tray. At one end the box is protected by a piece of metal, fastened on by forty small nails, as will be seen from the illustration. There is a T-shaped receptacle for the beam, square receptacles for the weights, and two circular places for the pans. All are cut out of the solid wood. Several of the square brass weights are still preserved, and contain the Christian symbol, the cross in the centre, between letters which denote different weights. In the larger examples the cross and letters are enclosed in a decorated wreath. The beam is of fine brass wire, and is very delicately wrought. There is a small hole at each end in which is a fine wire ring for the suspension cords. The pans are of brass, very shallow, and each is perforated by four small holes for the cords. Small V-shaped pieces are cut out of the wood in order to facilitate the extraction of the weights.

The oblong tray, shown on the top of the illustration, fits into the box below. It has a smaller scale-beam and pair of pans, and there is also a spare pair of pans slightly larger in size. All these are shallow, of thin brass, and each is provided with four holes for the suspension cords, being in every way similar to the large pans, except for size. The tray has also receptacles cut from the solid for the reception of the beam, pans, and weights. One of these lockers is provided with a lid of wood, with a hole in the centre to assist in lifting; a similar lid also occurs for the oblong bottom right-hand locker. An oblong locker on the opposite side contains a small pair of tweezers for handling the coins and weights. Notwithstanding the fact that this remarkable example is 1500 years old, in many ways it is almost identical in type with the boxes of some scales in use in this country 150 years ago.

The whole construction of the box is the same, the balance beams and pans, the receptacles, some with lids, and the circular and square weights. Unfortunately the lid, which was a sliding one, is missing. The balance beams from this box are shown separately in fig. 2. The larger set is from the lower box, the smaller one is from the tray. It will be seen from this illustration that even these pieces greatly resemble examples of comparatively modern date.

The interesting set shown in fig. 3 is also Roman, and is from Thebes. The board upon which the specimens are shown is 15 ins. in length. The box itself is about 6 ins. long, and like the one already described, is protected at one end by a strip of metal. In this case, however, the lid, which slides in a groove, is preserved. It consists of two pieces of wood, joined together, and is decorated on the top by various small circular holes, each being surrounded by a concentric incised ring. At the bottom of the box is the usual T-shaped receptacle for the beam, two circular depressions for the pans, and two square ones for the weights. The balance-beam is of the usual type, with a hole at each end, and a small ring for the suspension-cords. Each pan is perforated with three holes for the cords, which Prof. Flinders Petrie¹ has supplied, but the or-and dates from the Coptic period. The beam is $6\frac{1}{16}$ ins. in length, the handle is $1\frac{7}{8}$ ins. and the pans are $2\frac{1}{8}$ ins. in diameter. It will be noticed that so far as the box is concerned, its shape, size, ornamentation, hinges and fastener are almost identical with early Jacobean examples made in England, of which specimens occur in the Hull Museum Collection.

In Anglo-Saxon times money scales were in use. "In several of the graves which have been opened in Anglo-Saxon cemeteries in the Isle of Thanet, there have been found the remains of a small weighing balance, and a set of small weights, most of which have been formed, by rubbing down Roman brass coins with great care, to the required weight. These articles evidently formed part of the trade equipment of a money-changer, and it is found by carefully weighing the objects that a few of the weights correspond to recognized weights of the Roman system, while most of them do not conform to any recognized system of the period, and are apparently coin-weights applicable to the coins which were in circulation in those times. This conclusion is confirmed by noticing that many of the larger weights are multiples of the smaller ones, so as to be private marks of individual moneychangers, and not in accordance with any recognized system.

In a "Guide to the Exhibits illustrating Greek and Roman Life" published by the British Museum in 1908, there is an illustration on page 150, of two pairs of scales, one of which is apparently for weighing money. By the kindness of the British Museum authorities we are permitted to reproduce the illustration (fig. 4). "On the larger scales one arm is graduated with twelve divisions corresponding to scruples ($\frac{1}{24}$ of an ounce). The sliding weight would thus be used for weights of less than half an ounce." The smaller balance "was adapted to test the weight of an object weighing about 69 grains, perhaps a Roman coin such as a denarius or solidus".

The illustration given herewith (fig. 5) is from a fresco at Pompeii and shows a Roman coin press, scales, etc. The illustration accompanies a paper on "The Roman Mint and Early Britain" by Mr. W. Sharp Ogden, in The British Numismatic Journal, Vol. V, 1908, pp. 1-50.

The illustration (fig. 6) is taken from an article on Egyptian Weights and Balances, appearing in the Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, Vol. 12, No. 4, for April, 1917. It represents a box and scales, the balance beam being of bronze,

Roman bronze Balances. British Museum. The smaller pair was probably for coins.

One of these weights is worthy of notice : it has the exact weight of the Anglo-Saxon silver pennies at the latter part of King Alfred's reign, when the silver penny had its maximum weight, and was very probably used for weighing those coins¹.

An interesting set of scales and weights was found in an Anglo-Saxon grave (No. 66) at Gilton Down, Kent, by Bryan Faussett, and is briefly referred to in Inventorium Sepulchrale, 1856, pp. 22-23. These are illustrated on plate XVII of that work, which is reproduced (reduced) herewith (fig. 7). It will be seen that the balance-beam and pans are very similar to those in use until quite recently.

FIG. 3.

Box of Scales and Weights; Roman; from Thebes. Prof. Flinders Petrie's Collection.

1. W. Airy on the "Ancient Weights of Britain", Proc. Inst. Civil Engineers, vol. 109, Part i.

These specimens are now in the Liverpool Museum. Other very similar examples were found in a cemetery at Ozingell (fig 8), and are figured in Collectanea Antiqua (vol. III, pt IV). In this case the late C. Roach Smith considered that the various weights were in Hampshire, circa A.D. 925-935. It is there decreed that "If a moneyer shall be a condemned criminal, let his hand be amputated and let it be placed above the mint-smithy. If he be inculpated, and he wishes to clear himself, let him go to the heated iron and grasp it with the hand with which he is accused of having made what is false. If in the ordeal he shall be found a criminal, let it be done to him as above is said" ¹.

The remarkable regularity in the weights of the silver pennies of the early Henrys and Edwards also seems to show that the pieces were subjected to some method of weighing before being issued; and in fact to such a degree does this exactness in weight exist, that even to-day the actual weight of one of these early pieces is carefully taken into consideration in allocating it to its proper reign, even when other means of identification are not available.

Apparently the earliest form of money scales is the well-known type, with a balance-beam and two suspended brass pans, somewhat similar to the familar copper tea-scales in use in grocers' shops today, excepting that the coin scales have shallow pans. Illustrations of such examples occur in the sculptures and on the coins of the early civiliza-chiefly used "for weighing the numerous varieties of foreign coins, both gold and silver, which must necessarily have been current in Britain in early Anglo-Saxon times".

Another Anglo-Saxon set from a cemetery at Sarr, is figured in vol. VI of Archæologia Cantiana, vol. 6, 1866, pp. 157-185, in an "Account of the Society's Researches in the Anglo-Saxon Cemetery at Sarr" by John Brent jun.

That forgeries and counterfeits were in vogue in Anglo-Saxon times, is shown by provisions in the laws of Æthelstan enacted at the synod at Greatanlege, identified with Greatley, near Andover, tions, well over two thousand years ago. With very slight variations this type was in use for testing the weight of coins, both English and foreign, until half a century or so ago. Foreign money of course, was formerly largely circulated in England.

In modern times, the difficulty of making counterfeit coin without detection is so great that testing coins for weight and size is almost unheard of. Formerly, however, coiners and coin clipping were so much in vogue that the Beggars' Litany "From Hull, Hell and Halifax, Good Lord deliver us" is said to have originated from the fact that at Hull and Halifax, at any rate, coiners were punished with unusual severity¹. For this reason coin scales were much used, and are still not uncommon, many examples being in public and private collections.

Early forms consist of elaborate rectangular wood boxes with recesses or lockers, cut out of solid, for the scales and weights respectively, the latter often being very numerous. Usually the balance-beam was of steel, the pan-suspension cords of twisted silk, and the pans and the weights of brass. Occasionally other metals, such as tin, iron, copper and even silver were used for pans, beams and weights. Afterwards the boxes were covered with shagreen, leather, and other materials; still later were usually of polished Rosewood or Mahogany, then all were of brass, steel, iron or tin; and last were made on turned wood pillars or standards, generally in brass and without boxes.

Dr. L. A. Lawrence in his paper on "Coin Weights" printed in the British Numismatic Journal, vol. 6, 1910, figures two early examples, one of these (figs. 9, 10) is a box of Dutch money weights and scales as used in the sixteenth century; another is a box as used in the seventeenth century, also Dutch (see figs. 11, 12). These illustrations I am kindly permitted to reproduce. These early boxes were decorated by impressions made from bookbinders' tools, the outer cases of the two examples given (figs. 9, 11) showing great similarity to the book covers of the period.

The earliest illustration of a pair of English Coin scales that I have been able to trace occurs in "Vetusta Monumenta", a folio publication issued by the London Society of Antiquaries, of which seven volumes have been published since 1747. The publication consisted of very finely engraved plates, though unfortunately there was no descriptive letter-press. In volume I for 1747, plate 69 (which occupies two pages) is described as "The Standard of Ancient Weights and Measures from a Table in the Exchequer". At the bottom of the plate it states that it is "From the Original Table formerly in the Treasury of the Kings (sic) Exchequer at Westminster, and now preserved in the M.S. Library of the late Earle of Oxford. Sumptibus Societ. Antiquariae Londini 1746". It is headed "The Standard of Weights and Measures in the Exchequer, anno 12, Henrici Septimi [i.e. 1496]. N.B. The original Parchment is fixt on an oak table". There are illustrations of various kinds of weights and measures, a view of the Exchequer, a Man in the Pillory for giving short weight, etc. (figs. 13, 14, 15).

From the centre of this document we learn that "By the discrecion & ordinaunce of our soueraine lorde y^e kinge and of his lordes spūall and tepall wth y^e comons of y^e same his realms of England of all man^r of weight and measure y^e was made by y^e grayne of wheate. That is to understand y^e xxxij graynes of wheate taken out of y^e middell of y^e yeare weieth a starlinge otherwise called a penny & xx starlinge maketh an ounce", etc.

In the top left hand corner of this remarkable document are illustrations of "The Whete eare" with the information that "Two graynes maketh y^e xvj pte of a penny. The conage of y^e mynte flower graynes maketh the viij p^t of a penny. The iiij pte of a penny is a farthinge. xvj graynes an halpenny. the halpenny wth y^e peny and halpenny and the farthinge is all poore mens, upon all manner of vitelers of the realme. . . . The cunars to be sworne in speciallie y^e y^e thirde pte of y^e Bullion Be made in halpence & farthings y^e is to saie that one half of the saide third in halpens and y^e other half in farthings".

Accompanying this quaint information is a sketch of a pair of coin scales with a silver penny (on edge) in one tray, the other being full of grains, presumably thirty-two! (It is to be hoped that the eccentric fork to the scales is merely an error in the drawing!)

It occasionally happens that representations of antique money-scales occur on ancient pictures. Perhaps one of the most interesting examples of these is "The Banker and his wife" by Corneille de Lyon, in the collection of H. R. H. the Prince of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, of which there was a copy at Antwerp prior to the war (fig. 16). In this picture the Banker is about to weigh a gold piece in the scales, on one pan of which there is a square weight. He is holding the scales, the pans of which are remarkable in being triangular. On the table is a collection of silver and gold coins, near which is an open oblong box from which the scales have been taken, there being a T-shaped pocket for their reception, and in addition are twenty-four oblong pans for the weights. This is evidently a similar coin-case to that shown on fig. 12. Of similar composition is the picture by Quentin Matsys, in the Louvre, Paris.

In this instance the scales in the Banker's hands have circular pans, and there is not a box for the scales, but instead is a nest of weights on the table, similar to one described later. This picture was painted in 1514, and appears to have been the model for several similar paintings issued subsequently.

More resembling the painting by Corneille de Lyon is that by Marinus at the Prado, Madrid. It is early sixteenth century in date, book. This picture is attributed to Quentin Matsys. A very similar painting, with the figures more grotesque, is in the National Gallery, and there are others (or were until recently) at Cologne, Hagley, Munich, Naples, Bologna, and (a copy) at Antwerp. Four of this series are figured in The Burlington Magazine, Vol. 20, No. 107, for February, 1912. They are all very similar as regards the objects on the table, and in three of them, on a shelf behind the figures, is an open oblong box, very similar to the box of weights in the painting by Corneille de Lyon. On this point Mr. Lionel Cust, in the magazine already refer-and obviously the De Lyon and the Marinus paintings have a common origin. The background and clothes on the figures vary, but the figures, the box of weights, scales with triangular pans, etc. are identical. Somewhat similar pictures, dating between 1538 and 1545 occur also at Munich, Nantes, Valenciennes, Copenhagen, Florence and Dresden, all being by Marinus Van Roymerswael, or are copies after him.

Another series, known as "The Misers" or "The Money-lenders" seems to be more after the style of satires or caricatures. Perhaps the most famous of these is at Windsor Castle. This shows two figures seated at a table, on which are coins, a bag of money, ink, pen, sand-box, etc., and one of the figures is making entries in a red to (to which I am much indebted for information relating to the pictures) states:—

"There occurs on the shelf above the heads of the writers a wooden box, inside the lid of which is posted a label with stamps of seals and the word in Gothic letters Cuelen. Mr. de Mély, in the writer's opinion, goes out of his way without necessity to read this word as Guelen, and to locate the name as that of a village in the province of Limburg near Maestricht on the Meuse. It would seem more reasonable, however, to read it as the Dutch or Low German form of Cuelen or Cologne. This would seem to be the more certain, inasmuch as the seals appear to be those of the Goldsmiths' Company or Guild at Cologne. Cologne was the great central city of commerce and a clearing-house for general traffic in the north, through which a great part of the traffic of Europe passed on its way to Antwerp or other sea-ports of the North Sea. Here would be found merchants, bankers, money-lenders, etc., representing all the nations of Europe. Painters at Cologne found ready patrons, and a Marinus or Cornelis of the Hague, having once achieved a popular success with a picture, such as The Money-changers, would find many occasions for repetitions with slight alterations to suit the purchaser. It is impossible to separate the Windsor picture from those at Cologne, Hagley, and Munich, and it follows, therefore, on the evidence of the pictures known to be by Cornelis van de Capelle at Cologne and Sigmaringen, that the Windsor picture must be assigned to him. The same figures occur in different attitudes, but in similar composition in the picture at the National Gallery, usually attributed to Marinus."

In The Numismatic Circular for September 1912 (Vol. XX, No. 238). Mr. J.B.S. Mac Ilwaine gives a reproduction, actual size, of an engraving representing a seventeenth century merchant weighing coins. The engraver, Metz, was born in 1615. There is a typical pair of scales, with circular pans, in the man's left hand, and, incidentally, he is holding a coin in the correct way by the edges, in his right hand. We are kindly permitted to reproduce this illustration (fig. 17).

Mr. Dudley Westropp, of the Dublin National Museum, has obliged as with a photograph of a page from a paper entitled "Extracts from the Journal of Thomas Dineley Esqr, giving some account of his visit to Ireland in the reign of Charles the II" printed in the Journal of the Kilkenny Archaeological Society, Vol. II, New Series, 1858-9. In this is figured a rare form of coin-scale of the steel-yard type (fig. 18), which is of especial interest as it was used for weighing silver coins. The accompanying letter-press is also of value as showing the quantity of silver coins in circulation in Ireland in the seventeenth century. The page reads: — "The most usual money and that which passeth in the greatest quantity of silver in Ireland is Spanish Coyne known here by the name of cob, or half cob and a quarter cob. A sort of pieces of eight at 4^s 6^d each, which they call plate pieces, Mexico's and Perues.

The cobs that are weight, as well as the french crown, pass at 4^s 9^d but if they want a grain, or turn not the scale or stilyard, they pass but at 4^s 6^d.

None here, either in market or public-house, but with small scales weigh their silver, as well as their gold, before they take it.

Here are also pieces of Portugall coyne w^{ch} go at 7^s 6^d, these only, & now and then a piece of English money pass unweighed.

The copper halfe pence made for the ready change of this nation were after this manner [here follows in the original a pen-and-ink sketch of the obverse and reverse of the coin now known as "St. Patrick's halfpenny": see Simon, Plate VII., Fig. 142], but called in this A^o 1681² and in the place an half penney sett forth, with his Maties head on y^e one side and a harp on the other, with the inscription of y^e English half penny."

Early types of scales in boxes, though suitable for the office or counting house, were rather cumbersome for the purpose of carrying about, and consequently neat scales in small boxes, with fewer weights, or weights made one to fit within another, were brought into use. These at first were of the ordinary hanging-pan type, but the inconvenience of using separate weights, and the fact that they were liable to get lost, was apparently felt, and less awkward forms were made. Originally they appear to have been in the form of a fixed steelyard with a sliding weight, but later these were supplanted ted by the familiar compact folding scales, with all the pieces fixed, the weight of the different coins being ascertained by an ingenious arrangement of hinged weights made to turn over according to the nature of the coin to be dealt with. Occasionally an additional slide indicates slight variations in the weights of the coins; so much so that, according to the directions on some of the boxes, and the figures marked on the balance beams, the loss of even a farthing's worth of gold could be ascertained. The scale boxes were made of a suitable size for carrying in the waistcoat pocket, and averaged 5 inches in length by 1 inch in width and $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch in depth. Sometimes they were even less; one in our possession being less than $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches in length, $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch in width and slightly over a $\frac{1}{4}$ of an inch in depth. This is the smallest I know. These boxes were made in great numbers, so much so, that the early directories contain entries of "watch makers and scale makers" etc.¹

A century ago, and less, every farmer carried one of these scale boxes, and they can still be picked up in old farm houses, village shops, etc.

Some typical guinea scales are figured in Mr. Ling Roth's book on "Yorkshire Coiners", already quoted, and I am indebted to him for the loan of blocks.

In Mr. Lawrence's paper on 'Coin Weights' is an interesting reference to the issue of early boxes of scales. It occurs in a proclamation during the reign of Queen Elizabeth 1587-8. On account of these being the earliest descriptions of the actual boxes I have been able to find, I take the liberty of quoting the particulars :

"1587-8. — This order for the use of certain weights was followed by a proclamation (dated upon the 19th of March) containing a declaration of an order for the making of certain small cases for balances and weights, to weigh all manner of gold coins current within the realm, provided to be sold to all persons that should have cause to use the same, and which had been viewed by the wardens and assistants of the company of goldsmiths in London, by whom it was signed, limiting the sundry prices thereof according to their several quantities; which cases, with the balances and

"1558-9. — This proclamation appears to have been but little attended to, for on the 18th of February, Richard Martin complained to the lord treasurer, that notwithstanding her Majesty's proclamation respecting the weighing of gold and silver coins, they still continued to pass without being weighed, and that he had expended above six hundred pounds in providing scales and weights marked with an E crowned, the far greater part of which still remained upon his hands. He proposed therefore, that the warden of the mint, etc., should have authority to see that the said proclamation be observed, and that all other weights and grains used against the meaning of the same should be forfeited."

An examination of these early scale boxes indicates to what an enormous extent foreign money was in circulation in this country, necessitating the issue of special weights, albeit they bore the effigy of the English monarch; for instance the reign of Charles II weights are known for : —

Proclamations.

In his paper on "Coin Weights", already referred to, Mr. L. A. Lawrence gives details of a number of Proclamations in reference to coin weights, and occasionally to scales, dating back to 1205. The first (John. 1205), states that for discovering lack of weight "there was issued from the Mint office a penny-poize wanting one eighth of a penny, to be delivered to anyone who would have it". In the time of Edward I (1296) money should be paid by weight, "by the tumbril, which was to be delivered by the warden of the exchange, being marked with the king's stamp as the measures were." In the reign of Henry V (1421) certain people were commanded "to make weights for the noble, half noble, and farthing of gold, sufficient for the several cities and boroughs; and to form ten puncheons for each weight, five of them with the impressions of a crown, and the other five with a fleur-de-lis". In the reign of Henry VI (1422-3) another goldsmith was appointed to make similar weights. In 1495 (Henry VII), weights having been found defective, instructions were issued as to the proper weights. In 1587 (Elizabeth) cases of wood, leather and latten, with weights were ordered to be made. In 1617-8 (James I) the master of the Mint was commanded to prepare "a sufficient quantity of uprigh balances and true weights. . . at reasonable prices, to all as should require the same". In the same year Charles Dickeson, of Edinburgh was authorised to make weights in Edinburgh. In 1632, Charles I authorised Sir Thomas Aylesbury to make weights and counter poises in England, Ireland and Wales. In 1683 Charles II autho vised Henry Paris and John Cuthbeard, of Dublin, to make weights. In the reign of William III, the weights made by Paris and Cuthbeard could not be relied on, and Vincent Kidder of Dublin, was appointed to make them.

Towards the end of the eighteenth century and early in the nineteenth, when the Yorkshire coiners were in vogue, scales for testing the weight and thickness of the gold coins, and even of the silver coins, were common, especially in Yorkshire and Lancashire. Names of scale-makers in Ormskirk, Kirkby, Warrington and Liverpool are frequent. Usually the scales were made by watch and clock-makers, a fact plainly obvious on an examination of the details of the scales.

We can find a record of only one scale-maker having issued a by I. Kirk. In St. Paul's Church Yard." This was issued in two sizes, one being slightly smaller than that figured. Occasionally scale makers' advertisements were very elaborate. We reproduce the advertisement of "W. T. Avery (Late T. Beach). The original manufacturers of Scale-beams, Steelyards, Scales, Weighing Machines, etc.", taken from Piggott's Directory of 1835 (fig. 20).

We have not been able to find many advertisements issued by coin-scale makers. In the Leeds Mercury for September 4th, 1773, is the following : — Weights and Scales for weighing gold, made in the neatest and most exact manner at Four shillings and sixpence a Sett, by Dolliff Rollison, Clockmaker at Holton, near Leeds. Persons who buy to sell again, may be furnished with any quantity on the Shortest Notice, and good allowance made." In the same Journal for Dec. 28th. 1773, a story is told of a clergyman who took a parcel containing "A small box with gold Scales, and weights" into the pulpit, instead of his sermon ¹.

Some little time ago Mr. Reginald Smith F.S.A., showed me a small collection of boxes of Money scales at the British Museum, one of which was probably the most interesting example extant. I am pleased to say that this has since been described by Sir Hercules Read in The Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of London, 2nd series. Vol. 29, pp. 17-24, and I am indebted to Sir Hercules Read, and the Society, for permission to reproduce the illustrations herewith (figs. 21, 22). Sir Hercules points out that "This case, given to the Museum in 1890 by Sir A. Wollaston Franks, is a flat wooden box, 7.8 in. long by 4.1 in. wide, the inside lined with white plush, the outside covered with red velvet, over which are laid, on lid and sides, plates of pierced and engraved silver, and it is provided with a lock and key. The silver mounts around the sides are engraved to represent monsters and flowers; the cover is divided into four oblong panels, in each of which is a vase with lion-handles from which spring floral scrolls, roses, pinks, etc. The piercing and engraving of these accessories recall the watch-

2. A nest of six cup-shaped weights ranging from 1 oz. Troy downwards in the usual fashion. On the bases of the two larger are stamped the London date letter V for 1637 and a lion passant. These and all the other weights are of silver.

Of these, no. 5 was for the crown or $\frac{1}{4}$ unite of James I, which, after 1612, was of the value of 5 s. 6 d. Some examples of this weight have the B of Briot, as pointed out by Mr. Lawrence, and all were probably made in the time of Charles I. Nos. 13 and 14 are poor rude productions, roughly filed into a circular form. They are for the Portuguese half and quarter Joannes, in use after 1722. It is unfortunate that very few of these weights can be considered to be contemporary with the box. The hall-marks on the nest of weights taken in connexion with the coat of arms would indicate that these are contemporary, and the same may be said for the James I weight and that for an angel. All the rest are ruled out by questions of date. The moidore of the type in the box does not seem to have come in until about 1680, while the pistole (a Louis d'or modelled on the Spanish piastola) was only introduced into France in 1640.....

The owner of the box of weights, from the evidence of the coat of arms in the pans of the balance, was Henry Somerset, second son and heir of Edward Somerset, earl of Worcester, K.G. He married Anne, sole daughter and heiress of John Russell, styled Lord Russell, son of Francis Russell, earl of Bedford. Their son was the famous Edward Somerset, claimed as the inventor of the steam-engine, and their grandson was created duke of Beaufort in 1682."

MEDAL COMMEMORATING THE VISIT OF
H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES TO THE UNITED STATES
NOVEMBER, MCMXIX.

A gold medal was presented to the Prince of Wales on 19 Nov. by a Committee composed of the President and four of the officers of the American Numismatic Society. The presentation took place on board H.M.S. Renown. The medal has been designed by John Flanagan, one of the best of our American sculptors.

The obverse bears a portrait of the Prince in profile with his crest in the field. The inscription reads EDWARD PRINCE OF WALES. The portrait is a very successful one.

On the reverse is shown the welcoming figure of Columbia. The inscription reads COMMEMORATING THE VISIT OF H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES TO THE UNITED STATES, NOVEMBER, MCMXIX. The field is occupied by two branches of oak, the oak being one of the national emblems of Great Britain.

When the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward VII, visited this country in 1861 he planted two trees in Central Park. One of these trees was an oak, the other an elm. It has been possible to obtain a portion of this elm, and from it a case was made in which the gold medal mentioned above was presented.

From the Circular issued by the Committee on the Publication of Medals.

ON THE COINAGE OF MARTINIQUE.

Monsieur le Directeur,

Permettez-moi de signaler à votre distingué collaborateur M^r Henry Garside, quelques objections au sujet des pièces qu'il attribue à la Martinique dans son article paru dans le n^o de Nov.-Déc. de la Numismatic Circular.

Les pièces ainsi attribuées relèvent de trois groupes :

- 1^o Pièces coupées en segments égaux, à bords crénelés.
- 2^o Pièces contremarquées M entières.

coupées en segments égaux.
- 3^o Pièces au cœur comme

percées en cœur	à bords lisses.
emblème	à bords crénelés.
	c/m d'un cœur sous couronne.

Or, au point où en sont les recherches des collectionneurs spécialistes, je crois bien qu'on ne peut plus aujourd'hui attribuer à la Martinique que le premier groupe de ces pièces.

I

2^e groupe. — Le sou de Cayenne c/m M, de même que la pièce au C couronné semblablement surfrappée, Zay lui-même qui en avait fait l'attribution à la Martinique (Hist. monétaire des colonies françaises, p. 216), en a reporté la jouissance à Montserrat, dans son supplément paru en 1904, p. 24. Il ne donne pas, à la vérité, le motif de ce changement; c'est sans doute parce qu'il avait reconnu que sa supposition première manquait de base.

Cependant M^r Howland Wood, dans The Coinage of the West Indies (New-York, 1915), tout en maintenant à Montserrat les sous de Cayenne contremarqués d'un "crude M" (p. 9), restitue à l'usage de cette île anglaise "the Cayenne sous and certain thin brass flans with M in a circular indent" (p. 23, fig. 95, 96). M^r Wood toutefois ne dit pas pourquoi.

Assurément les documents officiels font défaut; aucune allusion écrite ou imprimée, provenant d'un contemporain, n'a encore été signalée. Il semble donc difficile de faire une détermination certaine. Mais en ce qui me concerne, voyant que Zay ne s'était en premier lieu fondé que sur des arguments de minee valeur (v. son article dans la Num. Circ. de juin 1906, col. 9157), je m'en tiens à sa seconde supposition. Je me confirme dans cette opinion en constatant d'abord que notre "Code de la Martinique", contrairement à ce qui serait naturel, ne contient aucun acte relatif à cette circulation monétaire; ensuite que lorsqu'il m'a été donné de séjourner dans cette île, aucun exemplaire de pièce ayant cette contremarque ne m'a été présenté.

Ces deux mêmes motifs, à défaut d'arguments plus probants, me déterminent aussi à exclure de la numismatique martiniquaise les pièces segmentées surfrappées de la lettre M. Zay ne s'était pas occupé de ces pièces, évidemment parce qu'il n'en avait rencontré aucune qui par un cœur, autour ou alentour, pût rappeler l'emblème qu'il attribuait irrévocablement à l'île charmante dont, il est vrai, tant de gens ont rapporté de doux souvenirs. Avec MM. Caldecott (p. 10) et Howland Wood (p. 9), je les attribue volontiers, jusqu'à plus ample informé, à Montserrat.

II

3^e groupe. — De même il faut renoncer à attribuer à la Martinique les pièces percées en cœur. Zay est, je crois bien, le premier qui ait décidé cette attribution dans son Histoire monétaire des colonies françaises, parue en 1892 (p. 214), tandis que Atkins, dans son ouvrage de 1889, The coins and tokens of the possessions and colonies of the British empire (p. 320, 324) "hazarda a suggestion" que ces pièces appartenaient à Trinidad. La détermination de Zay a été généralement adoptée et pourtant combien faiblement étayée!

Il n'a trouvé aucun texte; cela était déjà un argument contre sa thèse puisqu'il a mis au jour les ordonnances concernant les moëdes et les segments à bords crénelés destinés à la Martinique, et aussi les diverses coupures spéciales à Sainte-Lucie qui, à l'époque dont il s'agit, relevait de l'autorité locale de l'île-sœur du Nord. La législation de ce temps, et pour ces îles, paraît bien nous avoir été transmise en son entier¹ en sorte qu'il est difficile d'admettre qu'une lacune si importante ait pu y exister pour l'émission de toute une série de pièces d'argent.

Zay dit, il est vrai (p. 213): « Les pièces percées... dont la description suit, ont encore eu cours à la Martinique. » Mais d'où lui est venue cette information? Il s'abstient de le faire connaître. Or, quand, en 1817, l'administration française se préoccupa d'assainir la circulation monétaire de la Martinique, une ordonnance du 12 avril prescrivit le retrait des « fractions de gourdes vulgairement appelées mocos »; mais de pièces percées en cœur il ne fut pas question. Comme aucun acte de retrait n'est intervenu plus tard, on doit déduire qu'il n'y avait pas de monnaies ainsi perforées ayant légalement cours à la Martinique.

On peut voir aussi qu'Al. Bonneville, dans son Traité des monnaies, imprimé en 1849, à une époque où beaucoup de pièces du début du siècle circulaient encore aux îles², mentionne, au tableau des monnaies de l'Amérique française, « pour la Guadeloupe et la Martinique » (tableau n^o 5 des Monnaies de France): les segments à bords crénelés de la Martinique ainsi que les segments à la c/m G couronné et les écus et piastres percés en carré de la Guadeloupe, mais aucune pièce ouverte en cœur. Cela d'ailleurs ne constitue pas une preuve certaine, car ce tableau même de Bonneville est incomplet. Mais c'est un élément d'appréciation qui, corroboré par ce fait que sur place, en 1905, je n'ai trouvé aucune monnaie percée en cœur ni rencontré personne en ayant entendu parler, détruit à mes yeux cette affirmation sans preuve que de telles pièces « ont encore eu cours à la Martinique ».

Zay avait un autre argument qui avait pris dans son esprit une extrême importance: le cœur était devenu pour lui l'emblème de la Martinique. Mais sur quoi se basait-il pour en venir là? Simplement sur ce que « Sur le plat de la reliure des Étrennes mignonnes de la Martinique pour l'an de grâce 1781 (Bibl. de la Marine), on a frappé sept cœurs enflammés posés 4, 2 et 1 dans une guirlande de fleurs (p. 214) »; et il ajoutait aussitôt: « Ce sont les armes de la colonie. » Malheureusement cette déduction n'est appuyée sur rien; car de telles armes ne se retrouvent nulle part ailleurs pour la Martinique et comme les 7 cœurs ci-dessus sont sur la reliure et non sur le titre imprimé³, ils ne doivent pas forcément être mis au compte du gentil pays dont parle ce petit livre. Je croisai plutôt, à voir le gracieux dessin reproduit par Zay, p. 209, que cet exemplaire des Étrennes mignonnes avait simplement, avant d'entrer à la Bibliothèque de la Marine, été relié pour être offert à quelque charmante jeune créole ayant par le monde de nombreux cœurs à sa dévotion⁴.

Zay lui-même en était d'ailleurs venu à douter de cette attribution des pièces percées en cœur. Dans son supplément de 1904, il ne la modifie pas; dans son article de juin 1906, dans la Num. Circ., il la maintient. Cependant le 3 janvier 1907, il m'écrivait: « Et malgré ce que j'avance à ce sujet, je doute que toutes les pièces percées d'un cœur proviennent de la Martinique. Du reste les deux éditions du Code [de la Martinique] n'en font pas mention. »

Dès lors les sous surfrappés d'un cœur sous une couronne n'ont plus de raison d'être donnés à la Martinique puisque c'est par le

1. V. le « Code de la Martinique ».

2. A la Guadeloupe, la gourde percée en carré n'a été retirée de la circulation qu'en 1858 (Zay, p. 199).

3. Dans sa note parue dans la Num. Circ. de juin 1906, Zay disait sur la « couverture », ce qui eût changé la question; mais c'est une expression impropre vu la précision du texte de son livre.

4. Il est inutile d'insister sur l'indice consécutif que Zay, dans la Num. Circ. de 1906, tirait « de vieux sous contremarqués M ou LM dans un cœur ».

cœur seul qu'ils paraîtraient lui appartenir. De même l'attribution faite par Zay, aux pièces qu'il décrit sous les nos 60, 61 et 62 de la p. 216 de son Histoire monétaire, ne peut être considérée que comme arbitraire.

Cela dit, je ne vois aucune objection contre la suggestion de M. Caldecott que les pièces à l'emblème du cœur aient vu le jour à la Barbade. Je serais toutefois porté à les renvoyer à une époque postérieure à celle qu'il assigne ; d'après lui leur mise en circulation se serait produite "soon after the last quoted date" (p. 5), c'est-à-dire peu après 1756. Mais son examen paraît n'avoir porté que sur un très petit nombre d'exemplaires. Or j'ai une pièce d'un réal au millésime de 1757 ; Howland Wood donne le dessin d'une piastre de 1761 (p. 23) et Zay, d'une autre de 1764. Aussi me semble-t-il possible de retarder la période d'usage de ces pièces jusqu'aux guerres de la République et de l'Empire. Elles seraient alors contemporaines des monnaies coupées ou percées de la Guadeloupe, la Martinique et Sainte-Lucie pour lesquelles existent des textes précis. Et il ne serait que naturel que le même procédé ait été employé dans toutes les petites Antilles pour retenir dans chacune une monnaie divisionnaire locale, et d'autre part il serait extraordinaire que seule des petites Antilles, la Barbade, la plus peuplée et la plus commerçante d'entre elles, ait échappé à la nécessité de recourir à ce moyen d'assurer sa circulation monétaire intérieure.

III

1^{er} groupe. — Il ne reste donc au compte de la Martinique que les segments de gourdes prévus par l'ordonnance du 1^{er} septembre 1797 dont Zay donne le texte (p. 211) : « monnaies dentelées dans leur coupure » et sans aucune contre-marque ; ce sont les pièces dites mocos (Zay, p. 211).

Je crois toutefois qu'on pourrait aussi rattacher à la Martinique une autre série de segments que Zay, ni aucun autre numismate, n'a encore décrite, celle des segments sans contre-marque et à coupure lisse. J'ai de ce type : un quart de gourde qui paraît être de Charles III, et un quart de 2 réaux de Philippe V ; j'ai recueilli ces deux pièces à la Martinique. Elles ne sont, il est vrai, signalées par aucun acte de l'autorité ni par le Code de la Martinique ; mais aucune des Antilles ne les a, jusqu'à ce jour, revendiquées, et le fait que c'est à la Martinique que j'ai trouvé les deux exemplaires ci-dessus, peut être considéré comme un premier argument en faveur de la détermination proposée. Cette émission aurait précédé celle à bords dentelés ; peut-être fut-elle non officielle, ce qui expliquerait l'absence de texte, les pièces étant sectionnées par des négociants pour les besoins des échanges, absolument comme nous voyons aujourd'hui à Paris, pour la même cause, faire des pièces de 2 francs ou 1 franc, en mettant des timbres-poste dans de petites enveloppes, sans aucun acte officiel. Mais telles quelles, ces fractions étaient par trop faciles à rogner ; les abus et les disputes consécutives durent provoquer l'intervention de l'autorité locale d'où l'ordonnance de 1797 et les dentelures « de telle manière qu'il sera impossible de les altérer sans en laisser des marques visibles » (v. Zay, p. 211). Les deux séries semblent ainsi se rattacher l'une à l'autre en allant du simple au composé : 1^o celle à bords lisses, 2^o celle à dentelures.

La numismatique de la Martinique, pour la période de la fin du XVIII^e et le début du XIX^e siècle, me semble donc se résumer ainsi : avant le 1^{er} septembre 1797, gourdes d'argent coupées à bords lisses ;

ordon. du 1^{er} septembre 1797, gourdes d'argent coupées à bords dentelés ; arrêté du 26 septembre 1805, moëdes d'or contremarquées à l'aigle.

Peut-être peut-on attribuer à la ville de Saint-Pierre, le flan de cuivre, frappé en creux de ST. PE, décrit par Zay (p. 216), ou ceux contremarqués SP signalés pour M. Howland Wood (p. 24), car pendant les guerres générales et les troubles locaux de cette époque, cette ville si commerçante peut avoir eu à certains moments des besoins impérieux de petite monnaie, comme durant la Grande Guerre la plupart des villes de France, d'Algérie ou d'ailleurs. Mais il faut ne procéder qu'avec prudence et chercher au moins un commencement de preuve dans l'origine de telles pièces. Et aujourd'hui malheureusement il n'y a plus espoir de rien trouver à Saint-Pierre même, détruit par l'éruption de la Montagne Pelée.

Excusez, Monsieur le Directeur, ces longues explications. Elles m'ont paru nécessaires à raison de l'intérêt que présentent ces séries de monnaies des Antilles du fait même de la pénurie de documents.

Je vous prie d'agréer, Monsieur le Directeur, l'expression de mes sentiments les plus distingués.

A. SALLES,
inspecteur des colonies en retraite.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

October 22nd, 1919. Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, F.S.A., President, in the Chair. The President informed the Members of the dangerous illness of the Secretary, Mr. H. B. Earle Fox, and the steps he had taken to ensure the carrying on of the business of the Society.

Applications for membership were announced from the following gentlemen : Messrs. G. C. Brooke, M.A., and Edward Francis Young.

The President read the list of those proposed as Officers and Members of the Council for the coming year, and gave notice that the ballot would take place at the ensuing Meeting.

Messrs. Beresford Smith and Edward Shepherd were appointed Auditors of the Society's accounts for the year now coming to a close.

Mr. Dale proposed a vote of thanks to Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson and Mr. L. A. Lawrence for their services during the illness of the Secretary, which was seconded and carried.

The President thanked the Members on behalf of Mr. Lawrence and himself.

Presentations.

The following presentations were announced, and a vote of thanks to the donors was passed : —

"Sterling Decimal Coinage", Part I, 2nd Edition. By W. L. Craig.

"The Decimalization of the British and Colonial Currency". By S. H. Hamer.

"Notes on the Coins believed to have been Struck at Sandstoot Castle and Weymouth in 1643-44". By Henry Symonds, F.S.A.

The foregoing were presented by the Authors.

Journal of the Massachusetts Historical Society for April, 1919. By Mr. Malcolm Storer.

Exhibitions.

In illustration of the Paper read :

By Major W. J. Freer. — Decorations and medals : Great Britain — Victoria Cross, Cloak Star, G.C.B., Distinguished Service Order, Order of the British Empire, O.B.E. (min.), Distinguished Service Cross (min.), Distinguished Service Medal (min.) ; France — Etoile Noire (min.) ; Greece — the Order of George I (min.) ; Montenegro — Order of Danilo I, 5th Class (min.) ; Poland — Order of St. Stanislaus badge and star, 2nd Class ; Portugal — Order of the Tower and Sword, gold, old pattern, Red Cross (min.) ; Russia — Order of St. Anne gold badge and star, 2nd Class, Order of St. George silver and bronze crosses, Cross of the Order of Merit ; Serbia — Orders of St. Sava and White Eagle (min.) ; Tunis — Order of Nichan Iftakar (min.).

By Major Freer for Mr. R. W. Russell. — Order of the Bath, badge and star, G.C.B. Badge of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, C.M.G., Military Cross ; Belgium — Cross of a Commandeur of the Order of Leopold, Star of the Order of La Couronne, Croix de Guerre ; France — Médaille Militaire and Croix de Guerre ; Greece — Commander's Star and Badge of the Royal Order of the Redeemer ; Italy — Badges of the Orders of Savoy and of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus ; Portugal — two different badges of the Tower and Sword ; Russia — gold and enamel Cross of the Order of St. George, and the Cross of that of St. Vladimir.

By Major Freer for Mr. Charles Winter : — Miniatures of the following : — Royal Red Cross 1st Class, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Force Cross ; United States of America — Distinguished Service Medal ; Belgium — Order of Leopold II and Medal of Queen Elizabeth; Egypt—Sultan's Medal for British Forces with Darfur Bar; Greece—Order of George I and Military Cross; Italy—La Croce de Guerra; Portugal—Red Cross; Serbia—Star of the Order of Kara George.

By Mr. G. R. Francis: — Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society awarded to Lieut. D. G. Francis, R.N., for saving the life of his observer when the seaplane in which he was patrolling the North Sea on January 13th, 1918, fell 500 feet and sank. There were 22° of frost at the time and they were in the water 15 minutes.

Other Exhibits: —

By Mr. W. Sharp Ogden: — Bronze Medals of Oliver Cromwell, Turenne, Napoleon I and Wellington.

By Mr. H. Garside: — Examples of the Australian issue of the bronze penny and halfpenny, both dated 1919. This is the first year in which bronze money was coined in Australia for general circulation in the Commonwealth. The pennies are struck in the Royal Mint, Melbourne, and the half pence in the Royal Mint, Sydney, and the coins bear no mint-mark.

Paper.

Major Freer thought that the Members would be interested in an account of the numerous orders, decorations and medals awarded to the British Forces by His Majesty the King and the Rulers of the Allied States for services rendered in the late war.

He first described the rewards given by the King and then those awarded by the Rulers of the United States of America, Belgium, France, Greece, Italy, Japan, Montenegro, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Serbia and Tunis.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held on September 20, 1919 in the Museum, Selby at 3 p. m. The President, Mr G. L. Shackles, F.R.N.S. occupied the Chair. Sympathetic reference was made to the late Mr Aquilla Dodgson of Leeds, a valued member of the Society and a life long student of numismatics and a vote of condolence with the relatives was passed. The Harvard College Library of Cambridge, Mass., was elected a member of the Society. At this meeting it was decided that the Society issue a medal in bronze in Commemoration of the Peace, the obverse to bear the arms of the Society and the reverse a suitable design with date.

Mr. J. F. Musham, F.E.S. read a revised and supplemental paper on the issued Imperial Copper and Bronze Pence of Queen Victoria. Detailed particulars were given of all known varieties of the pence, halfpence and farthings of this period, and examples were shown of nearly all varieties, the lecturer's Cabinet containing very few gaps in the series. The President in moving a vote of thanks complimented Mr. Musham on his valuable contribution which had no doubt entailed a great deal of patient study and research and which would be of immense value to others interested in this section of our coinage.

The vote was seconded by Mr T. Sheppard and carried. Mr. Musham also showed and described a number of local Selby commemorative and prize medals, and gave a very interesting account of the use of refreshment checks by innkeepers and auctioneers in vogue some years ago. He showed a small collection of these pieces from a Selby inn and others from a Selby cattle mart. Mr. A. Rider, A.M.I.E.E. exhibited a series of seventeen crown pieces ranging from Edward VI to Edward VII together with a number of Bank of England and Ireland tokens of crown size. Also an interesting collection of recent German notes from 10 pfennigs to 20 marks and a 1 mark note of the republic of Esthonia.

Mr T. Sheppard, M.Sc., F.S.A. (Scot.) showed and ably described an Anglo-Saxon gold ring found in a barrow near Driffield some years ago. The ring was of exquisite workmanship and of a type of which there are only three other examples known. It was described as being of the 8th or 9th century, and originally brought over from Schleswig-Holstein by the Saxon invaders. Mr J. Digby Firth exhibited and described a large and representative collection of French War Tokens (1916-18) issued by municipalities, Chambers of Commerce and private traders. Also iron and pewter pieces of several German towns and camps for military and civil prisoners. He also showed recently issued iron money of Denmark, Norway. Austria and Hungary together with pewter pieces of Luxemburg and Bulgaria and currency issued in pewter and iron by the Germans for occupied portions of Poland. Mr J. F. Musham described an unusual type of money scales brought by the Hon. Secretary.

At the close of the meeting Mr J. F. Musham entertained the members for which he was thanked on the motion of Mr T. Sheppard seconded by Mr J. Digby Firth.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The July Meeting of the above Society was held in the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 24th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the chair.

After the general business and correspondence, which included a Report of the Victorian Numismatic Society's visit to Messrs. Stokes' Medallic Works, had been dealt with, Mr. Percy E. Williams, of Sydney, was elected a member.

The President then called on Mr. W. G. Rendall to give his address entitled "Ancient Currencies", following which Dr. G. H. Abbott read the first portion of his paper entitled "The Elephant in Numismatics" which embraced ancient India, Greece and Rome.

The special exhibits proved as usual of much interest and were as follows: —

By Mr. Percy E. Williams:

A two guinea piece of George II in extra fine condition.

By Mr. W. A. Gullick:

I. The very fine medal by J. Jourdain to Cardinal Mercier. Obv. Bust and Rev. draped and veiled female holding flag and taking by the r. hand a wounded soldier. Leg. PATRIOTISME ENDURANCE 1914 issued by FONSON & Cie.

II. The Jutland Bank prize design medal designed by A. Bertram Pegram (the 4 prizes being given by Sir Arthur Evans) and issued by Messrs. Spink and Son, London, under the auspices of the Royal Numismatic Society of London. Illustrated in Numismatic Circular of March-April 1917.

By Mr. D. Raymond: A 5 and 10 Pf. piece of German iron money.

By Dr. A. Andrews: Two modern forgeries.

I. A half-crown of Edward VII dated 1907. Soft metal.

II. A florin of the Commonwealth of Australia dated 1918. Hard metal.

By Mr. W. J. Amor:

The August Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on the 28th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the chair.

After the Correspondence and general business had been transacted the Numismatic Proceedings commenced by the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, reading the concluding portion of his address on "The Elephant on Coins", embracing Ceylon, Siam, and the modern coins and tokens bearing that animal.

The most noticeable feature of this address, as indeed with all of its class was the immense range of time and place covered which, as the author remarks, necessarily gave it more of a suggestive character than a monograph would assume although this increased rather than diminished its general interest. It is a far cry from Ganesa the god to Godiva the Good who, enshrined on many tokens of her well loved city formed quite a little Salon amidst the rows of the wise pachyderm, the latter portrayed in every stage of art both realistic and otherwise but being on these coins merely the lady's offside. Quid rides? Omnia bona bonis. With regard to place four continents were laid under contribution, nor was the historical side of the subject neglected, the quotations from history being both numerous and apposite while the display of rare and curious coins from the author's collection, both Greek and Roman, and from India in the East to Britain in the West lent an interest which greatly added to the intellectual profit derived from the address. Some interesting headings are the following: — Defeat of Porus by Alexander, Ptolemy I, Agathocles of Syracuse, Seleucus I, Athens and Antiochus IV, Tarentum, Etruria, Numidia and Mauretania, Greek Cities, Roman Coins, English Coins and Tokens, Carolina and New England, Ceylon, German East Africa. In further illustration, Mr. P. Larsen exhibited a practically complete series of coins of Ceylon in silver and copper. Mr. H. E. Parkes, a series of native fabric copper coins of Mysore, and Dr. A. Andrews, a curious series of seven copper coins of rough flat fabric said to be of ancient Ceylon. Through the generosity of the author printed copies of the address, illustrated with two fine plates of Coins are available for the members.

The postponed discussion on Mr. Rendall's paper then took place. Mr. A. B. Triggs striking the keynote of the whole by remarking that coinages proper only really commenced with payment by tale dating from about the 8th cent. B.C. The gold arm and finger rings (the so called ring money) earrings, etc., constituted merely bullion wealth circulating by weight. The mere fact of the gold rings of Egypt recovered by modern excavations bearing the royal cartouch has no weight 'per se' for are not scarabs similarly stamped? The iron rings mentioned by Caesar (De Bello Gallico, V, 10) and found in quantities in the south of England would seem to have more analogy with the special currency represented by cowries, wampum and the shell currency of the South Seas.

Quite a representative display of European War Money 1914-18, was on view.

Mr. Priestley also exhibited a set of the 10, 15 and 20 kopecs Russian stamp currency giving a short account of same.

Issued by the Ministry of Finance and bearing on the dorse the notice "having circulation on a par with Silver subsidiary coins" they apparently did not become popular for they were later superseded by coupons or small notes. Mr. Priestley called attention to the very trifling value to-day of such small currency, quoting letters from Riga and Stockholm. "Money has lost its value here to an extent for which I was entirely unprepared". A meagre dinner costs 70 ost-roubles (= £7), a pound of bread 20 ost-roubles (£2), a shirt 350 roubles, a pair of remade trousers, 1000 roubles.

Special Exhibits.

By Mr. P. Larsen :

I. The large copper medal (diam. 76 mm.) of the Sydney International Exhibition by J. S. & A. B. Wyon.

II. Large bronze medal (76 mm. diam.) of the Melbourne International Exhibition 1880 by H. Stokes. Excellent work.

By Mr. A. B. Triggs :

A Siculo-Punic Tetradrachm, excellent execution. Obv. Head of Persephone and dolphins. Rev. Horse's head. (Type as Ward 362 var.) A very beautiful specimen of this historically interesting coinage.

By Mr. Percy Williams :

A curious early Numismatic Work illustrated with engravings of coins dated 1692. Title SELECTA/NUMISMATA/ANTIQUA/EX MUSEO/JACOBI DE WILDE/AMSTELODAMI/SUMPTIBUS AUTHORIS/CICIDCLXXXII.

By Dr. G. H. Abbott :

I. Bronze medal by Daniel Dupuis, "Souvenir of the Paris Mint" dated 1900, designed 1899. Daniel Jean Baptiste Dupuis, French medallist; born at Blois, 1849; died at Paris on 14th November, 1899, shot dead by his wife who committed suicide. Forrer states: "As an exponent of the new French Medallic Art this great artist stands only second to such men as Chaplain and Roty and in some of his beautiful works he has even rivalled them".

II. Bronze plaque by André Mery. Obv. Rower. Rev. Allegorical female figure (river Seine).

AUGUST SPECIAL MEETING.

On Thursday evening, the 7th of the month, the members of the Society by invitation of Mr. William Dixon, met at the Dixon Trust rooms, Sydney, where that gentleman had the gold and silver section of his collection of Australian currencies arranged for their inspection.

Mr. Dixon placed at the Society's disposal copies of original notes which he had been fortunate enough to acquire from Dr. Roth, Protector of Aborigines, Queensland, Mr. H. Richards, formerly of Sydney, now of Western Australia, and Mr. A. Bassett Hull, of the Mines Department, Sydney, of whom he says that all these gentlemen had earlier opportunities than himself to study these subjects when such information was much more readily obtainable than in these later years. The Notes included the following:—

I. Dr. Roth's Synopsis of Holy Dollars and Dumps, and Mr. Dixon's own measurements of the specimens in his collection which is probably now the largest available and therefore offers the best means of identification and study.

II. The "Kangaroo Office" Gold and Copper pieces, Port Phillip 1853.

III. The Australian pattern shilling and sixpence, by W. Dixon.

IV. Thornthwait's threepenny pieces (4 types), and Hogarth & Ericksen's threepenny pieces (6 types).

V. The Tasmanian shilling of 1823 (Macintosh & Degraes).

Specimens of all the foreign gold and silver coins formerly current in the Colony and recorded in Hyman's Coins, Coinage and Currency, p. 22, were also exhibited, together with the very beautiful enamelled insignia of the K. C. M. G. and Legion of Honour of Baron von Mueller, and also a Russian Order, a most magnificent piece of enamelling.

Mr. Dixon also presented the Society with a photographic facsimile of a monetary proclamation of King William III prohibiting clipping, the original of which was passed round for the inspection of the members present.
